self that it satisfies the following conditions, vis., that the vessel is fit to undertake the voyage without danger; that she is well-equipped, well-regulated, well-ventilated, provided with a sufficient number of boats, and that she contains nothing on board that is or may become injurious to health or prejudicial to the safety of the passengers; that there are on board suitably stored, besides the provisions of the crew, food, drinking water of good quality, and fuel in sufficient quantity for all the pilgrims and for the entire declared duration of the voyage. This last provision, however, in so far as it concerns food, is strictly applicable only to vessels passing the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb. For all other vessels the Captain is bound to have food only in the proportion necessary for the wants of the pilgrims who may have contracted to be fed on board during the entire voyage. The sanitary authority will refer to the authority to which the vessels are subject for the application of those of the above provisions which do not concern him directly.

Article 20.—Every pilgrim vessel which does not conform to the provisions of the present Regulation will be held to have contravened sanitary rules and be liable to extreme measures regarding quarantine.

Article 21.—Vessels carrying pilgrims are strictly subject to the following instructions concerning the measuring of pilgrim vessels:—

Read and adopted in meeting of the Superior Council of Health, the 10th and 22nd December, 1891, and amended the 23rd and 25th December, 1893.

Instructions regarding the measurement of Pilgrim-ships referred to above in Article 21.

1. Only steamers and ships propelled partly by steam and partly by sail are authorized to carry pilgrims on voyages beyond the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb or beyond the Suez Canal.

2. The space to be given to each pilgrim irrespective of age or sex shall be at least 9 superficial feet and 54 cubic feet between decks. No passenger shall be accommodated in the ship's hold, and the deck, free of all goods, shall be reserved for the use of the crew and the passengers travelling between decks.

3. Any ship which can produce an official certificate, furnished by the authority on which it is dependent, proving its capacity with regard to the number of passengers that can be embarked, shall not be liable to a second measurement, except in the event of the size, capacity, and arrangements of the ship being found by the sanitary authority not to be in accord with the number of passengers shown in the certificate.

4. Any ship sailing under the Turkish flag which is unable to produce an official certificate of measurement shall be measured by a competent officer of the Imperial Marine, to be named by the local authority, with the assistance of the sanitary authority of the port where the ship happens to be. The service rendered by the sanitary authority in such a case is gratuitous.

As regards ships belonging to a foreign marine and not possessing official certificates of measurement, the sanitary authority shall give them the opportunity of producing the documents required in communication with their respective Consuls. The Consul can, if he so desires, cause the measurement in question to be made by the competent local authority in accordance with the requirements of Article (2) above.

5. The sanitary authority shall refuse to give a Bill of Health to any ship which has embarked pilgrims without the necessary certificate.

Read and adopted in meeting of the Superior Council of Health, the 10th and 22nd December, 1891.

Calcutta, the 14th February 1894.

No. 373-26.—The following draft of a proposed amendment of the Rules under the Indian Emigration Act (XXI of 1883) is published under section 81 of that Act, for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby, and notice is hereby given under that section that the draft will be taken into consideration by the Governor-General in Council after the expiry of one month from this date.

2. Any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before that date will be received and considered by the Governor-General in Council.

Draft of proposed amendment of Notification No. 822—10-3E., dated 30th April 1891, which amended Rule 113 of the Rules relating to Colonial Emigration.

In the said notification for "31st day of December 1893" read "31st day of December 1894," and omit the words "From and after the 1st day of January 1894" to the end.

No. 374-26.—The following draft of a proposed amendment of the rules under the Indian Emigration Act (XXI of 1883) is published under section 81 of that Act, for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby, and notice is hereby given under that section that the draft will be taken into consideration by the Governor-General in Council after the expiry of three months from this date.

2. Any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before that date will be received and considered by the Governor-General in Council.

Draft of proposed amendment.

For Rule 113 substitute the following:—

"The water for the emigrants and ship's crew shall be stored in independently constructed water tanks, or, with the approval of the Marine Surveyor, in after-compartments of the vessel. The capacity of each of such tanks or compartments shall not exceed 3,000 gallons.

"If water is stored in the after-compartments, transverse or longitudinal bulkheads must, from and after the first day of January 1895, be fitted to such compartments so as to divide them into not less than three separate divisions or tanks, the capacity of each not exceeding 3,000 gallons; and each such division or tank must be (a) so arranged that it can be properly examined by the Marine Surveyor, (b) certified to be watertight, and (c) provided not only with a separate communication either by cock, valve, or pipe, so as to connect it with the deck pump, but also with a separate air pipe so as to admit of the tank being pumped out, without its cover being opened, the air pipe being turned down at the top. No cocks, valves, or other connections having communication with the sea, holds, or decks, other than those above specified as necessary for emptying and airing these divisions or tanks, shall be fitted inside the said divisions or tanks."

PUBLIC DEBT.

Calcutta, the 6th February 1894.

No. 689-A.—In pursuance of Rule 22 of the Rules made by the Government of India under Section 14 of the Indian Securities Act XIII of 1886, and published in the Gazette of India of the 7th January 1888, page 6, the following list is hereby advertised of Securities lost or destroyed, in respect of which an order has been made for payment of interest pending the issue of a duplicate Security, or for the issue of such duplicate Security. All persons, other than the respective claimants named below, who have any claim upon these Securities, should communicate immediately with the Comptroller General, the Treasury, Calcutta.

The list is divided into two parts,—Part A being the list of Securities now advertised for the first time, and Part B the list of Securities previously advertised.

N.B.—Under Section 13 of the said Act, Government will be discharged from all liability in respect of these original Securities after the lapse of six years from (a) the several dates stated against them in the last column of the list, or (b) the last payment of interest on them, whichever date is the later.

2. The direct Capital outlay on the Orissa Canals was Rs. 3,63,215, the principal expenditure being on the extension and remodelling of the Taldanda Canal and on the construction of distributaries and embankments. There was no change in the length of canals during the year, but 50 miles of distributaries were completed.

On the Sone Canals, the direct Capital outlay was Rs. 56,252, principally on distributaries.

On the Hidgellee Tidal Canal, the direct Capital outlay was Rs. 38,319, principally on works connected with the remodelling scheme.

8. The length of Main and Branch Canals open at the end of the year was 916 miles, of which 673 miles are navigable, and of distributaries 2,431 miles.

4. The financial results of the year are shown in the following statement:—

5. There was a satisfactory increase of Rs. 2,37,281 in the net revenue realized from Major Works, but this result was due in a great measure to recovery of arrears effected by improved administration, and the increase cannot therefore be expected to be permanent.

The system of managing revenue collections by means of revenue divisions in charge of a Deputy Collector continues to work well, and this system, which during the year under review was in force on the Sone and Orissa Canals, has been extended to the Midnapore Canal from 1st April 1893. The work of the Deputy Collectors in charge of these Revenue divisions is favourably commented on by the Local Government in paragraph 6 of its Resolution.

The net revenue earned is the highest on record, and amounted to 0·63 per cent. of the Capital outlay as compared with 0·25 per cent. last year.

6. There was, especially on the Orissa Canals, a marked decrease in the demands remaining unrealized at the end of the year under review, as compared with 1891-92. The figures for the three Major Irrigation Works are given in the following statement:—

CANALS.	Balance unrealized at beginning of year.	Demands of year.	Total.	Less collections and remissions.	Balance unrealized at close of year.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Orissa	2,33,704	4,06,312	6,40,016	5,50,199	89,817
Midnapore	58,972	2,71,110	3,30,082	2,81,515	48,567
Sone	1,11,444	10,47,633	11,59,077	10,71,287	87,790
TOTAL	4,04,120	17,25,055	21,29,175	19,03,001	2,26,174

7. The following table exhibits the area irrigated and the Revenue assessed thereon for the three Major Irrigation Works:—

CANALS.	Area irrigated.		Assessed water-rates.		Per acre irrigated.
	1892-93.	1891-92.	1892-93.	1891-92.	1892-93.	1891-92.

TOTAL	662,930	736,381	11,95,358	13,77,864	1·80	1·87

The differences occur principally on the Sone Canals. As explained in paragraph 79 of the Chief Engineer's report, the new rules under the Irrigation Act, which were introduced in 1891-92, were fully in force during 1892-93. Under these rules the irrigation is assessed by seasons instead of by crops as formerly, and a comparison of the areas irrigated in the two years cannot therefore be made accurately.

The assessments for 1892-93 are lower than in 1891-92 on all three canals.

8. The irrigation during the kharif and rabi was as follows:—

CANALS.	Kharif.	Rabi.
	Acres.	Acres.
Orissa	158,358	2,594
Midnapore	91,217	...
Sone	311,168	99,593
TOTAL	560,743	102,187

The areas irrigated by flow and lift were 643,792 acres and 18,953 acres respectively, or about 97 per cent. flow to 3 per cent. lift.

9. The principal crops irrigated were :—

	Acres.
Rice	508,371
Wheat	36,756
Barley	17,445
Sugarcane	39,007

The estimated value of the crops irrigated was 223 lakhs of rupees.

10. The details of working expenses, omitting the Eden Canal, are as follows :—

Of the maintenance outlay on the Orissa Canals, Rs. 53,456 were spent on head works, Rs. 1,23,060 on main canals, and Rs. 30,033 on distributaries. The excess expenditure as compared with 1891-92 was principally caused by repairs and improvements rendered necessary by high floods.

On the Midnapore Canal, Rs. 9,965 were expended on head works, Rs. 59,802 on main and branch canals, and Rs. 12,612 on distributaries. The large decrease on the main and branch canals as compared with 1891-92 is attributed partly to the thorough repairs carried out during the long closure of last year and partly to the close supervision exercised.

On the Sone Canals, Rs. 22,374 were expended on head works, Rs. 2,00,130 on main and branch canals, and Rs. 55,918 on distributaries. The increase in the total expenditure on main canals and distributaries was principally caused by a long closure of the Arrah Canal, during which extensive repairs and silt clearances were carried out.

11. The charge for establishment in the table in para. 10 is made up as follows :—

	Revenue management.	Maintenance.	TOTAL.	Percentage.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Direction	22,367	22,367	44,734	5.30
Executive	2,12,101	2,12,400	4,24,501	50.38

GRAND TOTAL .	6,08,485	2,34,767	8,43,252	100.00

The total cost of maintaining the Irrigation Major Works amounted to 79.3 per cent. of the gross revenue, of which 26.3 per cent. represents the charge for Revenue management.

12. The following figures relate to the complaints received and disposed of during the year :—

Orissa	830	3,372	4,202	3,748	454
Midnapore	95	341	436	367	69
Sone	529	7,483	8,012	7,417	595

The total balance left pending is 1,118 as against 1,454 last year.

There was a great increase on the Sone Canals in the number of complaints filed during the year, and this occurred principally in the Buxar Division where the increase was from 737 to 3,944. The cause assigned is that, in the case of the large rabi area of 1891-92, there was no time to check the measurement statements before the demand statements were despatched, and that afterwards mistakes were found to have occurred, but the explanation does not appear satisfactory.

13. The navigation receipts and expenditure for all works are shown in the following statement :—

CANALS.	Length of navigable canal.	Receipts.	Expenditure.
	Miles.	Rs.	Rs.
Orissa Canal	205	1,19,394	20,758
Midnapore Canal	72	1,17,533	13,888

Total	1,150	10,34,124	5,72,759
Figures for 1891-92	1,150	11,42,587	6,88,537

There was a decrease in expenditure of Rs. 1,15,778, but receipts also fell off by Rs. 1,08,463.

14. The Navigation receipts are divided as follows:—

	Rs.
Tollage on private boats	9,64,786
„ Government boats	14,512
„ rafts	15,680
Transport service	27,984
Fines and sundries	11,162
Total	10,34,124

The aggregate ton-mileage amounted to 49½ millions, the estimated value of the cargoes to 1,363 lakhs of rupees, and 612,668 passengers were carried.

15. The agreement regarding the Sarun Canals mentioned in paragraph 15 of last year's review, which was continued with slight modifications during 1892-93, has not proved satisfactory, and the future of these canals is uncertain.

The landholders who have proprietary rights in the river channels connected with the Eden Canal have lately seemed disposed to come to terms with Government, and it is hoped that an arrangement may be effected by which water from this canal will become available for irrigation and afford some return on the money expended.

16. The following table contains figures relating to the duty of water used for irrigation purposes:—

rice crops on the Orissa and Sone Canals, which was noticed in last year's review, still continues, as will be seen from the figures on the margin, and no explanation has yet been given. No experiments were carried out on the Midnapore Canal during the year under review.

18. The Revenue Report was received by the Government of India on the 6th December 1893, or about a month earlier than last year.

19. The Government of India have much satisfaction in noting the rapid progress made in the recovery of arrears of collections, especially in the case of the Orissa Canals, and also the good work done during the year by Mr. Odling and the officers of the department generally.

ORDER.—Ordered, that copies of this Review and of the Report be forwarded to the Revenue and Agricultural Department for information.

Ordered also, that copies of this Review be forwarded to the Government of Bengal for information and guidance, and to the Local Governments and Administrations in the Public Works Department, noted in the margin, for information.

NOTICE No. 89.

Sealed tenders for the supply to the Madras Commissariat, of country-manufactured soap for one year, from the 1st April, 1894, to 31st March, 1895, will be received by the Commissariat Store-keeper General at Madras, up to 12 noon on the 28th February, 1894, and then and there opened in the presence of all parties who may choose to attend. Particulars of the quantities and the stations where required are given in the tender form.

2. No tenders will be received except on forms obtainable from the Commissariat Store-keeper General at Madras, which, as well as any information required regarding the contract, will be given on application to the Commissariat Store-keeper General at Madras, up to 4 o'clock P.M. on the 27th February, 1894. No addition or alteration must be made in the tender forms.

3. Seals of tenderers will not be accepted; they should have their marks verified by witnesses.

4. Covers to be superscribed "Tender for the supply of Country-manufactured Soap."

5. The tenders may be for the requirement of all the stations or of one or any number of them, but the term of contract must be as noted above and the rate an average for the whole period. The Commissary General shall have the power to accept a tender in whole or in part, or to reject a tender without assigning any cause for so doing; but, in the event of the tender being accepted in part only, and the tenderer failing to take up the contract, the whole earnest-money deposited will be confiscated.

6. Each tender must be accompanied with earnest-money in Government Promissory The receipt may notes or Bank of Bengal be for currency or Treasury receipt for an amount equal to 2 per cent. of the value at the tendered rate of one year's supply of the quantity tendered for, but the earnest-money of any one tender need not exceed Rs200. Tenders without earnest-money will not be attended to.

7. Earnest-money will be confiscated if the tenderer withdraws from his tender.

8. A sample of the soap to be supplied can be inspected at any Commissariat Office.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is Rs45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

No. II.

A Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and the Indian Penal Code.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and the Indian Penal Code; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

1. To section 44 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, the following shall be added, namely:—

"Any act committed, at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460, shall be deemed to be an offence for the purposes of this section."

2. In section 45 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, the following shall be added after clause (d) and substituted for the Explanation, namely:—

"(e) the commission of, or intention to commit, at any place out of British India near such village any act which, if committed in British India, would be an offence punishable under any of the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460."

"In this section—

Column 1.	Column 2.	Column 3.	Column 4.	Column 5.	Column 6.	Column 7.	Column 8.
216A	Harbouring robbers or dacoits.	Ditto ...	Ditto ...	Ditto	Ditto ...	Rigorous imprisonment for seven years and fine.	Court of Session, Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class.

Indian Penal Code.

5. To section 177 of the Indian Penal Code the following shall be added, namely:—

"Explanation.—In section 176 and in this section the word 'offence' includes any act committed at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460; and the word 'offender' includes any person who is alleged to have been guilty of any such act."

(i) 'village' includes village-lands; and

(ii) the expression 'proclaimed offender' includes any person proclaimed as an offender by any Court or authority established or continued by the Governor General in Council in any part of India in respect of any act which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460."

3. In section 54 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, the word "and" in clause fifthly is repealed, the word "and" shall be added to clause sixthly, and the following shall be inserted after clause sixthly, namely:—

"seventhly, any person who has been concerned in, or against whom a reasonable complaint has been made or credible information has been received or a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been concerned in, any act committed at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would have been punishable as an offence, and for which he is, under any law relating to extradition or under the Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, or otherwise, liable to be apprehended or detained in custody in British India."

4. In Schedule II of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, immediately after the entries relating to section 216 of the Indian Penal Code, the following shall be inserted, namely:—

6. To section 203 of the said Code the following shall be added, namely:—

"Explanation.—In sections 201 and 202 and in this section the word 'offence' includes any act committed at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460."

7. In section 212 of the Indian Penal Code, immediately before the Exception the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"'Offence' in this section includes any act committed at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460; and every such act shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be punishable as if the accused person had been guilty of it in British India."

8. After section 216 of the said Code the following shall be inserted,

Addition of new sections after section 216 of same Code. namely :—

"216A. Whoever, knowing or having reason to believe that any persons are about to commit or have recently committed robbery or dacoity, harbours them or any of them, with the intention of facilitating the commission of such robbery or dacoity or of screening them or any of them from punishment, shall be punished with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine.

"Explanation.—For the purposes of this section it is immaterial whether the robbery or dacoity is intended to be committed, or has been committed, within or without British India.

"Exception.—This provision does not extend to the case in which the harbour is by the husband or wife of the offender.

"216B. In sections 212, 216 and 216A the word 'harbour' includes the supplying a person with shelter, food, drink, money, clothes, arms, ammunition or means of conveyance, or the assisting a person in any way to evade apprehension."

Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 15th February, 1894 :—

NO. 3 OF 1894.

A Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

of 1882. WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. In section 44 of the said Code the figures "143, 144, 145, 147, 148," shall be inserted between the figure "130" and the figure "302".

2. For section 45 of the said Code the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"45. Every village-headman, village-accountant, village-watchman, village-police-officer, owner or occupier of land, and the agent of any such owner or occupier, and every officer employed in the collection of revenue or rent of land on the part of Government or the Court of Wards, shall forthwith communicate to the nearest Magistrate or to the officer in charge of the nearest police-station, whichever is the nearer, any information which he may obtain respecting—

(a) the permanent or temporary residence of any notorious receiver or vendor of stolen property in any village of which he is headman, accountant, watchman or police-officer, or in which he owns or occupies land, or is agent, or collects revenue or rent ;

(b) the resort to any place within, or the passage through, such village, of any person whom he knows, or reasonably suspects, to be a thug, robber, escaped convict or proclaimed offender ;

(c) the commission of, or intention to commit, in or near such village any non-bailable offence or any offence punishable under sections 143, 144, 145, 147 or 148 of the Indian Penal Code ;

(d) the occurrence in or near such village of any sudden or unnatural death or of any death under suspicious circumstances ;

(e) any matter likely to affect the maintenance of order or the prevention of crime or the safety of person or property respecting which the District Magistrate, by general or special order made with the previous sanction of the Local Government, has directed him to communicate information.

"EXPLANATION 1.—In this section village includes village-lands.

"EXPLANATION 2.—The District Magistrate may appoint one or more village-headmen for the purposes of this section in any village for which there is no such headman appointed under any other law."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to impose on the public generally the obligation to give notice of the commission of, or intention to commit, the crimes of unlawful assembly and rioting of which they may have knowledge ; to include village-accountants where they are established among the officers who, by section 45, Criminal Procedure Code, are bound to give information to the authorities ; and to include among the subjects of which information is to be given unlawful assemblies, rioting and generally matters touching the maintenance of the peace and the prevention of crime. It is considered that all persons having knowledge should help the authorities to prevent disturbances of the public peace. The village-accountants have special facilities for acquiring such knowledge, and should, it is thought, be bound to communicate it to the Magistrate or the Police.

Power is taken to enable the Magistrate to appoint a village-headman for the purposes of the Bill where none is appointed under any other law.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, February 3rd, 1894.

The unsettled conditions in the north-west with which the previous week closed continued during the first two days of the week under review, and rain and snow on the Hills and rain on the plains of the Punjab and west of the North-Western Provinces were reported on the 28th and 29th. On the latter date, however, the barometer rose rapidly in the North-West and the weather was fine over the whole Indian region during the 30th and 31st. On the 1st February light showers were reported at a few central stations. These showers extended during the 2nd and 3rd, and on the latter date rain was reported from the North-Western Provinces, Behar, North Bengal and Bundelkhand, light snow from the North-West Himalayas and heavyish snow from the Eastern Himalayas. The mean temperature of the whole country for the whole week was very nearly normal.

The chart of the 28th January showed that the barometer had fallen very rapidly in the extreme north-west, and that a deepish cyclonic storm overlaid the North-West Himalayas. Elsewhere the barometric changes were generally moderate or small and pressure decreased from a high pressure area overlying Sind, Rajputana and Guzerat to a low pressure area overlying Burma. The winds were irregularly cyclonic in the north-west, fairly normal in direction elsewhere. Snow or rain had fallen at all the North-Western Hill stations except Chaman, and rain had fallen over nearly the whole of the Punjab, as well as at Roorkee, Dehra Dun and Bikanir. The heaviest amount was 1·61 inch at Murree. By the morning of January 29th, pressure had risen very rapidly over North-West India and the depression over the Himalayas had disappeared. The ordinary cold-weather distribution of pressure had been established, and readings decreased from a high pressure area in the North-West to a low pressure area in Burma. The wind directions were normal. Snow and rain were again reported from all the North-West Hill stations except Quetta, Chaman, and Ranikhet, and a few scattered rain showers had fallen over the Punjab and the west of the North-Western Provinces. The heaviest fall reported was 1·15 inch at Srinagar. On the 30th the distribution of pressure remained about normal, readings being highest in the north-west and lowest in the south-east of the Indian region. The wind directions were also normal. Rain and snow had entirely ceased. On the 31st January the barometer showed no important change. Both the general distribution of pressure and the general circulation of the winds were fairly normal and there was again no rain. The chart of the 1st February still showed no considerable change in the general distribution of pressure, but the wind directions and the barometric changes indicated that a very shallow depression overlay the central parts of the country. This disturbance had been accompanied with light showers at Pachmarhi, Jubbulpore, Saugor and Sutna, but elsewhere the weather remained fine. On the 2nd the barometer was falling except in the north-east, and the disturbance over the central parts of the country was better defined. The disturbed weather had extended somewhat and showers were reported from Patna, Hazaribagh, Benares, Allahabad, Jubbulpore, Saugor, Nowgong and Sutna. About $\frac{1}{2}$ inch had fallen at Sutna and Allahabad. The chart of the 3rd showed that the depression had disappeared, the barometer risen almost everywhere, and the normal distribution of pressure been re-established. Showers of rain were, however, reported from a large part of the North-Western Provinces, from Behar, from North Bengal, and from Bundelkhand, light snow from several stations in the North-West Himalayas, and heavyish snow from the Eastern Himalayas. Unsettled weather had also appeared on the Madras Coast where rain had fallen.

Temperature.—The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the different provinces of India :—

MEAN FOR WHOLE OF INDIA	+1·6	+0·8	—0·4	—0·9	—0·4	+0·1	—0·1	+0·1

On all the days of the week the mean temperature was low over the Punjab ; and on most days of the week in Sind, Rajputana, Central India and Guzerat ; in the Peninsulá the variations were generally small and rather irregular, while elsewhere the mean was generally above the normal. The largest variations from the normal, on the mean of the week, were, an excess of 5° in the Central Provinces and a deficiency of $3\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$ in Sind and Rajputana. In the Punjab slight frost was reported on several nights.

Rain.—The concluding table shows that during the week under review rain, though not heavy, has been general throughout the Punjab, the North-Western Provinces and Bihar, and that light scattered showers have fallen in other parts of the country. Of the fifty-two rainfall divisions, twenty-nine reported absolutely no rain during the week ; ten more reported some rain, but with an average actual rainfall per division of less than one-tenth of an inch ; while the remaining thirteen divisions received an average rainfall varying in amount from about 0.90" in Oudh (North) and the North-Western Provinces (East) to 0.13" in the North-Western Provinces (Submontane, b). The regions which had absolutely no rain during the week included the following divisions :—all the Burma divisions, Assam (Surma), East, Deltaic, and Central Bengal, Orissa, all the peninsular divisions except Mysore and the East Coast (South), and all the more central divisions except the Central Provinces (central) and Central India (East). The divisions within which the actual average rainfall exceeded 0.50" for the week were the North-Western Provinces (East and Submontane, b), Oudh (North and South) and the Punjab (North-West.) This shows that the heaviest rainfall was received over the eastern half of the North-Western Provinces and adjoining districts, and the third column of the rainfall table shows that from Bihar westward to the central division of the North-Western Provinces the amount of rain received was in excess of the normal, while in nearly all other parts of the country it was in defect. The greatest absolute excess was in the North-Western Provinces (East), where the average normal rainfall of the week is 0.10" and where the actual average was 0.94".

The total rainfall since December 31st, 1893, to February 3rd, 1894, shows a considerable excess, as compared with the normal, over the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab, as well as over a few divisions in the east of the Peninsula, but a deficiency in all other parts of the country.

The more important heavy falls of rain are as follows :—Kurseong (Darjeeling), 1.02 inch ; Kurda (Pertabgarh), 3.11 inches ; Nighason (Lakhimpur), 2.76 inches ; and Murree 2.70 inches.

W. L. DALLAS,
Assistant Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

Simla, the 8th February 1894.

E. C. BUCK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 10th February.—Considerable showers in parts of Cuddapah and in the Carnatic, Southern, Central, and West Coast districts and Nilgiris. Sowings still in progress. Standing crops generally good. Harvest continues with average outturn generally. Pasture and fodder sufficient and condition of cattle good. Prices almost stationary, but the rates are easier in the Southern districts.

Bombay.—For week ending 14th February.—Rain in parts of Sind, the Deccan, and Konkan. Standing crops damaged by easterly winds, frost, blight, insects, or untimely rain in parts of seven districts; prospects otherwise good. Reaping of early or late crops progressing in six districts. Lands being prepared for next season in three districts. Cotton-picking continues in five districts. Fodder sufficient and agricultural stock good. Prices steady except in two districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 10th February.—There was general rain again in Bihar during the past week. The reports of the standing spring crops continue to be generally favourable except from parts of East Bengal and Chota Nagpur, where rain is required. The boro (spring rice) seedlings are being transplanted and doing well, but are in want of rain in parts. Poppy is flowering, and prospects are good except in certain unirrigated tracts of Hazaribagh. Sugarcane, potatoes, mustard, and tobacco are being harvested with good results. In North Bengal cultivation for the autumn crops is in progress. The price of common rice was steady during the week. Cattle are generally in good condition, and there is plenty of fodder and water in all districts. In FARIDPUR (MADARIPUR SUB-DIVISION) the numbers on relief works and in receipt of gratuitous relief during the week were:—Relief-works, 417 men against 708 in the previous week; Gratuitous relief, 8 men, 34 women, and 13 children, total 55 against 70 in the previous week.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 14th February.—Weather cold and cloudy. Rain has fallen in all but two of the reporting districts, and in some accompanied by hail. Slight damage has been caused to crops by rain and cloudy weather in a few places; spring crops otherwise doing well. Poppy promising except in Fyzabad and Sitapur where the crop has been slightly injured. Pressing of sugarcane continues. Prospects generally favourable. Supplies and fodder sufficient. Prices almost stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 14th February.—Rain has fallen in all but four districts. Irrigation of spring crops in progress. The standing crops have now had all the rain they require, and are flourishing, and prospects are said to be good. The flood from the Jamna has completely destroyed the melon fields and other cultivation in the bed of the river in Delhi. Condition of cattle is generally reported good. Fodder sufficient throughout the province. The poppy crop is in good condition. Prices falling in one district, rising in another, and stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 14th February.—Rainfall heavy in Damoh; slight rain in five other districts. Winter crops slightly damaged in places by rain and hail. Threshing of rice completed. Harvesting of linseed continues. Fodder insufficient in part of one district; elsewhere ample. Prices rising in Damoh.

Burma.—For week ending 10th February.—Harvesting of the main paddy crop completed in many districts, and the revised crop estimates give a 15-annas crop per acre in Lower Burma against 16 annas last year. In Upper Burma planting of dry-weather paddy and plucking of cotton and beans continues. Fodder and water-supply sufficient. The price of paddy is steady except in the Lower Chindwin and Magwe where there is a considerable fall.

Assam.—For week ending 13th February.—Weather seasonable. Ploughing for early rice continues. Sugarcane-pressing progressing. Mustard being harvested. Condition of cattle good, and fodder and water sufficient.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 14th February.—MYSORE: Crops and prospects good. Ragi (Elusine coracana) harvested in the Bangalore district. Rice harvested in the Mysore district, and sown in parts of the Bangalore district. Prices slightly risen in Bangalore.

COORG: Threshing of rice and picking of coffee continues. Water and fodder sufficient for cattle. Prices stationary.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 14th February.—BERAR: Rainfall moderate. Harvesting of winter crops commenced in two districts. Cotton-picking completed in Ellichpur. Wheat, gram, and linseed have suffered in parts of the Wun district from cloudy weather. Weeding operations in Akola not yet finished. Deficiency of fodder in the Akot taluka still exists. Cattle healthy. Prices steady.

HYDERABAD: No rain during the week. Harvesting of hot-weather crops continues. Standing spring crops in good condition. Prices stationary.

Central India.—For week ending 14th February.—Rainfall general, except in Bhopawar and Neemuch. Standing crops have been slightly damaged in many parts of Central India by excessive rain and by insects. Pasturage is, however, in fairly good condition. Prices of food-grains rising in parts of Gwalior and in Bhopal, Bundelkhand, and Goona, steady in other Agencies. Condition of opium crops generally good.

Rajputana.—For week ending 14th February.—Rainfall slight in Jhallawar, Kerowli, and Bikaner. Agricultural operations, standing crops, and cattle, generally satisfactory. Prospects generally good. Pasturage or fodder sufficient. Prices rising in three States, fluctuating in one, and steady elsewhere.

Kashmir.—For week ending 13th February.—Weather cloudy. Snowfall slight. Rain and snow reported in the Muzaffarabad district. Prices favourable, with a tendency to fall.

Nepal.—For week ending 10th February.—Weather cold and cloudy. Prospects favourable.

E. C. BUCK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

ERRATUM.—Read the following for the report published on the 10th February:—

Burma.—For week ending 3rd February.—Harvest of wet-weather paddy all but completed in Upper and Lower Burma. The outturn in Upper Burma is considerably above the average, but in Lower Burma the crop estimates just received show that the outturn is below the normal in most districts. The grain is threshing out light, and the provincial anna estimate will probably not be more than 15 annas.

4. The net revenue derived from Major Works was higher by Rs. 7,521 than that of 1891-92, the receipts being more by Rs. 44,138 and the working expenses more by Rs. 36,617. Out of nine works three were worked at a loss.

On Major Works the percentage of net revenue on Capital outlay was 1.22 as compared with 1.19 last year. The balance of interest charges on these works amounted to Rs. 4,69,239 during 1892-93 and to Rs. 93,08,066 up to the end of the year.

The Minor Works of which Capital and Revenue accounts are kept yielded, during the year under review, a net revenue of Rs. 18,632 against Rs. 14,568 during the previous year, the decrease under revenue collected being more than balanced by a decrease in working expenses. In the case of eleven works out of twenty-six, the gross revenue was insufficient to cover the working expenses. The Government of India are pleased to learn from paragraph 14 of the Resolution by the Bombay Government that the question of handing over some of these works to the Revenue Department is receiving attention.

The net revenue from Minor Works of which only Revenue accounts are kept amounted to Rs. 3,46,934 against Rs. 3,58,319 in the previous year, a moderate rise in gross receipts having been insufficient to cover a considerable rise in working expenses.

5. The details of Irrigation revenue for the Major and Minor Works for which Capital and Revenue accounts are kept, are as follows:—

	Rs.
Water-rates directly paid	3,84,777
Share of enhanced land-revenue	12,747
	3,97,524
Deduct—Refunds	1,243
	3,96,281

6. The miscellaneous receipts from the same works were:—	Rs.
Plantations	8,707
Water-power	10,920
Miscellaneous	1,34,634
	1,49,261

The miscellaneous receipts include a sum of Rs. 27,178, derived from water-supply of towns. Of this amount, Rs. 15,670 was charged for 304 million gallons of water from the Mutha Canals for the Poona City water-supply, the rates enforced being the same as those formerly charged. The average daily consumption of water in the Cantonment and Civil station of Poona was 799,701 gallons, being an average consumption of 24.3 gallons per head per diem for a population of 32,247.

7. The following table compares the areas irrigated by Major and Minor works during the year under review and the previous year with the assessments for those years:—

† Does not include 1,049 acres on which consolidated assessment was levied.

8. The area irrigated during the year under review shows a decrease of 29,948 acres as compared with last year; this is attributed to the favourable rainfall, which was more than double that of the previous year in many localities.

It is noticeable, however, that the falling off is confined to the Major Works and to the Minor Works of which Capital and Revenue accounts are kept, a slight increase being shown in the case of Minor Works of which only Revenue Accounts are kept; and the same remark applies regarding assessments.

The rate per acre for assessments has risen on all three classes of works: the considerable rise on Major Works is due to the commoner kinds of crops having been less freely irrigated during the year under review.

The report on the points mentioned in paragraph 9 of last year's review has not yet been received. The matter is said to be receiving the attention of the Bombay Government, and a communication is promised when all the reports of the local officers have been received.

9. The balance of unrealized demands, which amounted to Rs. 54,427 at the beginning of the year, had fallen to Rs. 31,456 at its close. The principal item outstanding was Rs. 15,708 on the Mutha Canals, and nearly two-thirds of this sum is stated to be on account of water supplied to towns.

10. The principal crops irrigated from Major Works and Minor Works of which Capital and Revenue accounts are kept were, as follows:—

	Acres.
Jowár	5,871
Ground-nut	11,242
Wheat	10,768
Sugarcane	8,851
Bajri	4,871

There was a large decrease, amounting to 23,224 acres, in the irrigated area under jowár, owing to more favourable rainfall.

The aggregate estimated value of the crops irrigated from the same works was 39½ lakhs of rupees.

No information regarding crops is supplied for Minor Works of which only Revenue accounts are kept.

11. The working expenses of the canals in operation are shown in the following table:—

Per acre irrigated	1.35	1.17

There is an increase of Rs. 21,885 in the total working expenses of Major Works and Minor Works for which Capital accounts are kept, and the reasons for this are explained at length in paragraph 13 of the General remarks in the Report. Paragraph 10 of the Resolution by the Bombay Government deals with the subject of the increase in Working expenses, and the Government of India concur in the remarks therein made concerning the absolute necessity for enforcing strict economy.

The rates per acre irrigated in the case of these works are very high as compared with the rate in the case of Minor Works for which only Revenue accounts are kept.

12. The Establishment charges on the works for which Capital and Revenue accounts are kept were made up as follows :—

	Revenue Management.	Maintenance.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Direction . . .	19,424	8,515	27,939
Executive . . .	68,552	27,743	91,295
Civil Officers . . .	22,026	...	22,026
TOTAL . . .	1,05,002	36,258	1,41,260

The rate per acre irrigated for revenue management alone works out to Rs. 1.6, and this would be a very full rate in other provinces for the whole cost of working expenses.

13. In the case of the old irrigation works of which only Revenue accounts are kept, the working expenses have risen by Rs. 28,328, and the charges for Establishment by Rs. 15,010. The Bombay Government, in paragraph 16 of their Resolution on the Revenue Report, have noticed the absence of explanation in respect of the charges against these works, and the required information will doubtless be supplied in next year's report. The Government of India are pleased to find that the maintenance of these useful works is receiving due attention.

14. The Revenue Report was received by the Government of India on 16th January. It has been well prepared and is well illustrated, as usual, by a series of maps.

CHIEF COMMISSIONER OF AJMERE-MERWARA.

NOTIFICATION.

Abu, the 14th February, 1894.

No. 125.—It is hereby notified, for general information, that the following Rules for the Registration of Vital Statistics, framed by the Municipal Committees of Ajmere, Beawar, and Kekri at special meetings, under Section 116(1) (c) of the Ajmere Municipalities Regulation, 1886, having been published as prescribed by Rule 56 of the Rules made by the Chief Commissioner under Section 145 of the said Regulation, and having been confirmed by the Chief Commissioner under Section 116(3) of the said Regulation, will come into force in the said Municipal areas from the 1st April, 1894:—

Registration.—When a birth, marriage, or death shall occur in any household, the head of the household or, in his absence, any adult member of the family, or any servant in the case of a birth or marriage, and the mohulla sweeper, in the case of a death, shall, within one week and between the hours of 9 A.M. and 5 P.M., report the occurrence, or cause a report of it to be made, at the nearest octroi post.

2. Penalty.—Whoever is guilty of a breach of the preceding rule shall, on conviction before a Magistrate having jurisdiction, be liable to a fine not exceeding five rupees.

3. Registration of births and deaths by Government and Railway servants in institutions under their control.—The Civil Surgeon, the District Superintendent of Police, and other Government and Railway Officers shall report to the Municipality within one month all births and deaths occurring within municipal limits in the institutions under their control.

4. Forms of registers and reports.—The reports and returns required in the preceding rules shall contain the following particulars which shall be entered in registers kept at each octroi post, viz.:—

(a) As to births—

- (I) Date of occurrence.
- (II) Sex of child.
- (III) Name of father.
- (IV) Residence of father.
- (V) Occupation, caste (if any), and religion of father.
- (VI) Name of person making the report and return.

Note.—If the person registering the occurrence desires it, he may, within a fortnight, apply to the Municipal Secretary to register the name of the child. Provided that in the case of illegitimate children, at the option of the person making the report or return, the name, residence (caste if any), and religion of the mother may be substituted for particulars (III), (IV), and (V).

(b) As to marriages—

- (I) Date of occurrence.
- (II) Name of bridegroom.
- (III) Ages of parties (if furnished).
- (IV) Caste of parties.
- (V) Name of person making the report.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The Indian Law Reports, published under the authority of the Governor-General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat, and the Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, respectively.

In supersession of the previous advertisements, on and from the 1st January, 1889, the terms of subscription and sale will be as follows for current issues, as well as for back numbers of the Reports from 1876:—

Terms of subscription payable annually in advance.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is Rs 45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 23rd February, 1894, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. III OF 1894.

An Act to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and the Indian Penal Code.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and the Indian Penal Code; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

I. To section 44 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, the following shall be added, namely :—

"Any act committed, at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460, shall be deemed to be an offence for the purposes of this section."

2. In section 45 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, the following shall be added after clause (d) and substituted for the Explanation, namely :—

"(e) the commission of, or intention to commit, at any place out of British India near such village any act which, if committed in British India, would be an offence punishable under any of the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460."

- (i) 'village' includes village-lands; and
- (ii) the expression 'proclaimed offender' includes any person proclaimed as an offender by any Court or authority established or continued by the Governor General in Council in any part of India in respect of any act which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections of the Indian Penal Code, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460."

3. In section 54 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, the word "and" in clause fifthly is repealed, the word "and" shall be added to clause sixthly, and the following shall be inserted after clause sixthly, namely:—

"seventhly, any person who has been concerned in, or against whom a reasonable complaint has been made or credible information has been received or a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been concerned in, any act committed at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would have been punishable as an offence, and for which he is, under any law relating to extradition or under the Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, or 44 & 45 Vict., otherwise, liable to be apprehended or detained in custody in British India."

4. In Schedule II of the Code of Criminal X of 1882. Addition to Schedule Procedure, 1882, immediately after the entries relating to section 216 of the Indian Penal Code, XLV of 1860, the following shall be inserted, namely:—

Column 1.	Column 2.	Column 3.	Column 4.	Column 5.	Column 6.	Column 7.	Column 8.
216A	Harbouring robbers or dacoits.	Ditto ...	Ditto ...	Ditto ..	Ditto ...	Rigorous imprisonment for seven years and fine.	Court of Session, Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class.

Indian Penal Code.

XLV of 1860. 5. To section 177 of the Indian Penal Code the following shall be added, namely:—
Addition to section 177 of Indian Penal Code.

"Explanation.—In section 176 and in this section the word 'offence' includes any act committed at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460; and the word 'offender' includes any person who is alleged to have been guilty of any such act."

6. To section 203 of the said Code the following shall be added, namely:—
Addition to section 203 of same Code.

"Explanation.—In sections 201 and 202 and in this section the word 'offence' includes any act committed at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460."

XLV of 1860. 7. In section 212 of the Indian Penal Code, immediately before the Exception the following shall be inserted, namely:—
Addition to section 212 of same Code.

"'Offence' in this section includes any act committed at any place out of British India, which, if committed in British India, would be punishable under any of the following sections, namely, 302, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 457, 458, 459 and 460; and every such act shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be punishable as if the accused person had been guilty of it in British India."

8. After section 216 of the said Code the following shall be inserted, namely:—
Addition of new sections after section 216 of same Code.

"216A. Whoever, knowing or having reason to believe that any person is about to commit or has recently committed robbery or dacoity, harbours them or any of them, with the intention of facilitating the commission of such robbery or dacoity or of screening them or any of them from punishment, shall be punished with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine.

"Explanation.—For the purposes of this section it is immaterial whether the robbery or dacoity is intended to be committed, or has been committed, within or without British India.

"Exception.—This provision does not extend to the case in which the harbour is by the husband or wife of the offender.

"216B. In sections 212, 216 and 216A the word 'harbour' includes the supplying a person with shelter, food, drink, money, clothes, arms, ammunition or means of conveyance, or the assisting a person in any way to evade apprehension."

S. HARVEY JAMES,

Secretary to the Government of India

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 23rd February, 1894, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. IV OF 1894.

An Act to repeal certain obsolete Enactments and to amend certain other Enactments.

WHEREAS it is expedient that certain enactments specified in the first schedule to this Act which are spent, or have ceased to be in force otherwise than by express specific repeal, or have by lapse of time or otherwise become unnecessary, should be expressly and specifically repealed ;

And whereas it is also expedient that certain formal amendments should be made in the enactments specified in the second schedule to this Act ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Repeal-Title, extent and ing and Amending Act, commencement. 1894.

(2) It extends to the whole of the territories administered by the Governor of Bombay in Council ; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

2. (1) The enactments specified in the first schedule are hereby repealed to the extent mentioned in the fourth column thereof.

(2) The enactments specified in the second schedule shall be modified to the extent and in the manner mentioned in the fourth column thereof.

3. The repeal by this Act of any enactment shall not affect any Statute, Savings. Act or Regulation in which such enactment has been applied, incorporated or referred to ;

and this Act shall not affect the validity, invalidity, effect or consequences of anything already done or suffered, or any right, title, obligation or liability already acquired, accrued or incurred, or any remedy or proceeding in respect thereof, or any release or discharge of or from any debt, penalty, obligation, liability, claim or demand, or any indemnity already granted, or the proof of any past act or thing ;

nor shall this Act affect any principle or rule of law, or established jurisdiction, form or course of pleading, practice or procedure, or existing usage, custom, privilege, restriction, exemption, office or appointment, notwithstanding that the same respectively may have been in any manner affirmed, recognized or derived by, in or from any enactment hereby repealed ;

nor shall the repeal by this Act of any enactment provide or restore any jurisdiction, office, custom, liability, right, title, privilege, restriction, exemption, usage, practice, procedure or other matter or thing not now existing or in force.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure and the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 22nd February, 1894:—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend

From Mr. Ganesh Krishna Deshmukh, High Court Pleader, Bombay, No. 1040, dated 16th March, 1893 [Paper No. 1].

From Chief Commissioner, Coorg, No. 457—44-93, dated 4th April, 1893 [Paper No. 2].

From Mr. P. R. Desai, Pleader, District Court, Ratnagiri, dated 2nd April, 1893 [Paper No. 3].

From Agent to Governor General in Baluchistan, No. 2060, dated 20th April, 1893 [Paper No. 4].

From Resident, Hyderabad, No. 125, dated 25th April, 1893 [Paper No. 5].

From Government, Madras, No. 804 Judicial, dated 20th April, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 6].

From Chief Commissioner, Assam, No. ^{61 L. & L.} 3893, dated 22nd April, 1893, and enclosure [Papers No. 7].

From Chief Commissioner, Ajmere-Merwara, No. 487, dated 5th May, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 8].

Opinion by the Hon'ble W. H. Rattigan, dated 5th May, 1893 [Paper No. 9].

From Chief Commissioner, Burma, No. 207-L.—9, dated 9th May, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 10].

From Government, Madras, No. 953 Judicial, dated 9th May, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 11].

From Government, Punjab, No. 590, dated 13th May, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 12].

From Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 4780, dated 27th June, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 14].

From Government, Bengal, No. 3804 J., dated 10th August, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 15].

From Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 676, dated 23rd August, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 16].

From Government, Bombay, No. 5476, dated 30th August, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 17].

From Government, Bengal, No. 659 J. D., dated 17th October, 1893, and enclosure [Papers No. 18].

the Code of Civil Procedure and the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

2. The Bill has been received with much favour, and we have suggested little alteration beyond making it as clear as possible what the amount of the deposit by the judgment-debtor must be to enable him to save his property, and that, on the deposit being duly made, the sale must be set aside. We have also abandoned the proposed amendment of the Limitation Act, having inserted, in the section as amended, the period within which applications must be made.

A Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure.

XIV of 1882. WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Civil Procedure; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Civil Procedure Code Amendment Act, 1894; and Title and commencement.

(2) It shall come into force at once.

XIV of 1882. 2. After section 310 of the Code of Civil Procedure the following shall be inserted, namely :—
Addition of new section after section 310 of Code.

"310A. Any person whose immoveable property has been sold under this Chapter may at any time within thirty days from the date of sale apply to have the sale set aside on his depositing in Court—
Application by judgment-debtor to set aside sale on deposit of debt.

(a) for payment to the purchaser, a sum equal to five per centum of the purchase-money, and ;

(b) for payment to the decree-holder, the amount set forth in the warrant of sale as that (including costs) for the recovery of which the sale was ordered.

"If such deposit is made within the thirty days, the Court shall pass an order setting aside the sale :

Provided that, if a person applies under the next following section to set aside the sale of his immoveable property, he shall not be entitled to make an application under this section.

"Nothing in this section shall be construed to relieve the judgment-debtor from any liability he may be under in respect of costs not covered by the warrant of sale."

3 In section 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure the figures and letter "310A" shall be inserted after the word "section" and before the figures "312".
Amendment of section 315 of Code. XIV of 1882.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble GANGADHAR RAO MADHAV CHITNAVIS asked :—

(a) Whether it is the fact that in the Central Provinces, under the rules in the old Settlement Code issued by Sir Richard Temple, the Government share was limited to half assets ?

(b) Whether or not it is the fact that malguzar's or proprietor's sir-land has been under the current settlement assessed for the first time according to the prevailing rates in the village, and the malguzar thus deprived of the advantage he derived from it under the old settlement?

(c) Whether the Government considers that the absorption of 60 or 65 per cent. of the assets as land-revenue, and $13\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on such land-revenue as cesses, leaves a sufficient margin for the landholding classes, after making due allowance for the cost of management, rise in the prices of necessities, the uncertainties of seasons and of prices, unrealized rents, and miscellaneous income, and other expenses incidental to the management of the village?

(d) Whether the Government will be pleased to limit its demand, as in the North-Western Provinces, to half assets, and,

(e) If not, will the Government be pleased, in the necessary interests of the landholding classes, to make some reasonable reduction in the high percentage that is now being absorbed as land-revenue and cesses?

The Hon'ble SIR ANTONY MACDONNELL replied:—

"(a) In replying to the Hon'ble Member's question, I have in the first place to say that in determining, for the guidance of its officers, the share of the assets to be taken as land-revenue in the Central Provinces, the Government is not bound by any statutory limits.

"It is not the fact that under the old Settlement Code for the Central Provinces the Government limited its revenue to one-half of the assets in the sense in which the term 'assets' appears to be used by the Hon'ble Member. He means, I understand, the actual assets at the time of settlement. In 1855 it was laid down by executive order for the North-Western Provinces 'that about one-half, and not two-thirds as heretofore, of the well-ascertained net assets should be the Government demand,' and this order was extended to eight districts of the Central Provinces formerly known as the Saugor and Nerbudda Territories.

"The meaning of the phrase 'well-ascertained net assets' was explained at some length in paragraphs 47 to 52 of Mr. Thomason's Directions to Settlement-officers in the North-Western Provinces, to which paragraphs the Central Provinces Code expressly referred for a definition of it. To use the words of the 'Directions,' net assets were 'what may be expected to be the net produce during the period of settlement.' It was explained that in calculating 'the net produce of years to come' the Settlement-officer should take into account the waste-land available for cultivation, improvement of cultivation, a rising demand for the products of the district, the opening of new communications, and so on. In brief, the 'assets' of the old Settlement Code were the prospective assets, not the actual assets at the time of settlement. Hence a so-called half assets assessment of a village at the last settlement of the Saugor and Nerbudda Territories meant very much more as a rule than 50 per cent. of the assets actually realized or realizable at the time. At the settlement now in progress, on the other hand, there is no assessment on prospective assets, but only on assets which are actually realizable when the settlement is made.

"To the remaining ten districts of the Central Provinces the rule of approximate half assets was never even nominally applied. The order in force at the last settlement in the Nagpur and Chhattisgarh country was expressed in the following terms by the Government of India in 1860:—'The true gross rental of each estate having been ascertained by careful enquiry, the Governor General in Council would be disposed to allow the malguzars, in all cases at least 40 per cent. for expenses of management and proprietary profits, and to extend the limit in certain cases to 50 per cent.' That is to say, the rule was approximately 60 per cent. and the exception 50 per cent., while the 'true gross rental' meant the prospective, not the actual, rental.

"(b) It is not the fact that the malguzar or proprietor has at the current settlement been assessed for the first time at the prevailing rates of the village. As a matter of fact, at the old settlement to which the Hon'ble Member refers, the assets on which the assessment was based included a rent for the malguzar's sir or home farm estimated on the basis of the competition rents paid in the village. This is practically the rule now.

"(c) Yes, because the application of the rule for assessing from 60 to 65 per cent. only concerns those exceptional cases in which the revenue taken at last settlement and hitherto paid punctually and without difficulty is found not to be below 65 per cent. of the assets. The application of the rule is permissive only and not obligatory. It is intended only to save the State from the undue surrender of revenue hitherto paid without difficulty. But enquiry will be made as to the operation of the rule; which it is believed has had little or no effect outside the Mahratta Districts, where under Native rule exceptionally high assessments had been imposed.

"With regard to that portion of the question which refers to cesses, I have to say that these cesses, which amount on the average to about 7 per cent. on the rental, are to some extent paid by the tenants. The larger portion, about 6 per cent., is contributed by the landlord, but more than half of this portion goes towards the pay of the village-accountant, and should, therefore, be regarded as costs of management, which in any case the malguzar would have to incur; while the balance is a contribution to those local objects of public utility, controlled by Local Boards, which are similarly supported in other Provinces. I cannot hold out any hope that these cesses, imposed partly in the interests of the malguzar, partly for objects of local utility, will be reduced.

"(d) No, because in comparison with the North-Western Provinces, the position in the Central Provinces at the present is very advantageous in respect to the extent of waste-land and the possibilities of further development.

"(e) The rule laid down for the guidance of the Chief Commissioner at the re-settlement now in progress is a material mitigation of that which I have quoted in my answer to question (a). The rule now is that the share of the assets to be taken by the Government shall ordinarily not fall below one-half or 50 per cent., nor ordinarily exceed three-fifths or 60 per cent., the average being about 55 per cent. Permission, however, is given to the Chief Commissioner to go below 50 per cent. when he thinks it desirable to do so, having regard to the circumstances of the village; and to go up to, but not beyond, 65 per cent. in those cases in which the revenue of last settlement is found to exceed 65 per cent. of the actual assets as now ascertained, and has been hitherto paid without difficulty. In other words, we take 50 to 60 per cent. (and in exceptional cases between 60 and 65 per cent.) of actual assets, according to the circumstances of the estate, allowing the proprietor to have the whole of the rental of waste-land brought under cultivation during settlement, all the profit of improvements executed by himself, and all the increase on his own lands, on the lands of the unprotected raiyats whose rents he may enhance, or on waste-lands due to the better prices caused by new railways, improved communications and the general progress of the country, etc. Having regard to the facts that under Mahratta rule the malguzars of the Central Provinces had no proprietary rights in their estates, their present beneficial position being the recent creation of the British Government; that the assessment is now fixed on the actual assets, including miscellaneous income; that the raiyats' rents in the Central Provinces, even after enhancement, still represent a very much smaller share of the produce than is usual in other Provinces; that owing to the favourable climatic conditions of the Province those rents are not subject to the same variations of seasons as in most other parts of India, and that they are collected without difficulty—the Government of India can hold out no hope that a smaller share of the assets than the existing orders allow will be taken as revenue at the current settlement. There will, in my opinion, be greater justification for the Hon'ble Member's suggestion of a rule for limiting the assessment to one-half of the actual assets when the margin of culturable waste-land has been reduced, and the Province has fully responded to the large outlay upon it in the construction of railways and other public works from which it is now very largely benefiting, but to which it has not hitherto made any appreciable contribution."

The Hon'ble GANGADHAR RAO MADHAV CHITNAVIS asked :—

Is the Government aware that grazing-dues and forest-rates in the Central Provinces, even after the reduction made by the Hon'ble Sir Antony MacDonnell, the late Chief Commissioner, press hard upon the agricultural and other classes who make their living by dealing in forest-produce generally? Will the Government be pleased to make a further reduction in this direction? If not, will the Government be pleased to ask the Local Administration to make an enquiry into the subject in consultation with the leading men of the Province, and report as to whether or not it is a fact that forest-charges are a general complaint with the people, and that a further reduction in the present dues and rates will afford a much-needed relief?

The Hon'ble SIR ANTONY MACDONNELL replied :—

"In replying to the Hon'ble Member's questions, it is necessary to distinguish between the great agricultural class and the limited class of people who deal in the forest-produce which the non-agricultural classes require. In connexion with the agricultural class generally, I have to state that during 1891 and 1892 a careful enquiry was instituted throughout the Central Provinces into the question of the rates charged for grazing and extraction of forest-produce from Government forests, the object being to reduce the rates charged for grazing and for the forest-produce required for agricultural and domestic uses. The results of that enquiry are embodied in a Resolution dated 5th January, 1893, which was published by the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, for general information. The Resolution effects substantial reductions in the rates previously paid, besides conferring on the people important privileges in connexion with the use of Government forests in the Central Provinces. The charge for grazing a buffalo now varies, according to the abundance or scarcity of fodder, from a quarter to half an anna per mensem, the charge for cows or oxen being one-half these rates. The charge for dead firewood, thorns for fencing fields, cut grass for fodder, and leaves for manure is for a head-load of sixty pounds weight only one pie, the smallest coin in the realm, or three annas per ton.

"These rates have been very favourably received by the people, and it is altogether premature to say that they press hard upon them, or that further reductions are at present called for. But the Government of India recognize the desirability of cheapening as much as possible the price of all descriptions of forest-produce necessary for the agricultural and domestic uses of the population, and will commend the subject to the continued attention of the Central Provinces Administration.

"As regards the more limited class of people who deal for profit in the forest-produce in question, I have to say that they mostly supply the wants of towns. It is believed that the rates in force allow these people to make a substantial profit on their transactions. This point, however, will also be commended to the Chief Commissioner's attention."

INDIAN PORTS ACT, 1889, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Ports Act, 1889, be taken into consideration. He said :—

"I ought to mention, in connection with the discussion of this Bill in Select Committee, that certain definite proposals were put before us on the part of the Agents of the Steamer Companies for making more economical arrangements for the work which at present falls upon the Port-officer of the Balasore ports. We are hardly in a position to examine these suggestions in detail; but, on the other hand, even if it were possible to reduce the expenditure of the ports by the whole amount of the Port-officer's salary, still the remaining expenditure would absorb more than the whole revenue which the passing of the present Bill will enable the Government to levy.

"The Committee on this ground agreed to recommend the passing of the Bill, but on the understanding that the suggestions of the Agents of the Steamer Companies shall be fully investigated by the Government of Bengal, and that, until they come to a conclusion upon them, the additional powers given by this Act will not be brought into operation. I have the authority of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor for expressing his concurrence in this understanding, and the fact that the Government of Bengal has for so long a time consented to bear the burden of the deficit of these ports is sufficient evidence of their reluctance to impose any avoidable burdens upon the trade."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said :—

"My Lord, I have listened with much interest to the remarks which have fallen from the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill.

"Looking to the character and condition of the trade of Orissa, it appears to me that the only reason for raising the duties of the Balasore ports must be a financial one, and this can only be justified if it is found that the present scale of expenditure is necessary, and cannot be reduced, or cannot be met from Provincial funds. The opinion expressed and adhered to by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce has been that the proper course to follow would be to reduce the expenditure of the Balasore ports so as to bring it within the receipts, abolishing the appointment of a special Port-officer, and constituting the Joint Magistrate of Balasore ex officio Shipping Master for that port and the Customs and Salt Officer at Chandballi ex officio Shipping Master there. The Steamer Companies trading between Calcutta and Balasore ports endorse this opinion, and offer their assistance in carrying out the recommendation. Considering how backward the trade of Orissa is, and that since 1871 it has only increased to about 200,000 passengers both ways, and $1\frac{1}{2}$ crores of rupees value of goods, for a population of about $5\frac{3}{4}$ millions, it seems clear that the true policy is, if at all possible, to make the ports of the province free, to encourage trade to the utmost. After all, if their support were made a charge upon Provincial revenues, the amount to be provided would be very trifling. In making this remark I admit that, on the other hand, it may be said the additional dues provided for by this Bill would not in themselves crush out the trade with Orissa, but, as forming an addition to charges on goods entering an already overtaxed port such as Calcutta now is, they become of more special importance. I have to observe that the construction of canals on the Orissa coast and the opening of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway have already interfered with the sea traffic, and that in all probability the East Coast Railway when completed will further divert traffic from the Orissa ports and may even turn away a portion of the present trade of Orissa from the port of Calcutta. It will be a satisfaction therefore if the Local Government will, before exercising the power conferred upon it by this Bill which is about to be passed into law, carefully consider the views and proposals expressed by the Chamber of Commerce and by the Steamer Companies engaged in this trade, and, endeavour to reduce the cost of expenditure rather than meet the present scale of expenditure by the increase of port-dues."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND also moved that the Bill be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE, 1882, AND INDIAN PENAL CODE AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble DR. LETHBRIDGE presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and the Indian Penal Code. He said that he would reserve the few remarks which he had to offer on the Bill till the time when the Report was taken into consideration.

CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE, 1882, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ANTONY MACDONNELL moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882. He said :—

"The Bill which I wish to bring under the notice of the Council is a very short one of two sections, one of which expands section 44 and the other section 45 of the existing law. I shall first offer a few observations, for the consideration of the Council, on the expansion of section 44. The amendment in this section which I have to propose is the addition of the offences of unlawful assembly and rioting to those crimes which must be reported to the Magistrate under the law as it at present stands. At present the only section of the public who are under an obligation to report the commission of, or intention to commit, the offence of unlawful assembly or rioting are the owner or occupier of the land or any person claiming an interest in the land on which such unlawful assembly is held, or such riot is committed. This obligation as imposed on the owner of land emerges from the terms of section 154 of the Indian Penal Code. But it is, I submit, highly desirable that the obligation should rest on the public generally having means of information. My Lord, it is the obvious duty of every citizen to contribute, so far as his knowledge and ability permit, towards the maintenance of law and order in his neighbourhood. But daily experience shews that people will not go out of their way to meddle in matters which do not concern them. If the Government wishes to enlist any particular class of the people in the active support of the law, it must prescribe for their guidance what they have to do. We know well—it is a matter of common experience—that riots involving loss of life and property frequently occur which are preventible, and could easily be prevented if the village-officers gave timely warning to the Magistrate or the police of the threatened disturbance. The Criminal Procedure Code as it now stands places them under no legal obligation to give the notice, and, consequently, very frequently no notice is given. The riot takes place, there is perhaps loss of life and property, bad blood is engendered, and the peace of the locality is disturbed. All this may often be avoided by a little timely warning to the authorities. There can, my Lord, be but little question of the propriety of taking precautions in matters like these, and of requiring from those having local knowledge such timely information as will enable the authorities to take precautions. The amendment which I propose adds a substantial and, as it seems to me, a reasonable re-enforcement of the inadequate means which we now possess of getting that information.

“I pass on to section 45. As this section at present stands, ‘every village-headman, village-watchman, village-police-officer, owner or occupier of land, and every officer employed in the collection of revenue or rent of land on the part of Government or the Court of Wards, shall forthwith communicate to the nearest Magistrate or officer in charge of the nearest police-station any information which he may obtain respecting * * * the commission of, or intention to commit, any non-bailable offence in or near such village.’ The obligation to report some other matters touching the maintenance of law and order in the village is also laid by the section on the persons I have enumerated: but for my present purpose I am only concerned with clause (c) of the section, which imposes, as I have said, the obligation to report the commission of, or intention to commit, any non-bailable offence to the nearest Magistrate or police-officer. The first amendment of this section which I have to propose is the addition of the village-accountant to the list of village-officers who are bound to report the commission of, or the intention to commit, a non-bailable offence. The official, or duly enrolled and registered village-accountant, with whom my amendment is concerned, my Lord, is a public servant, whose duties bring him into intimate relations with all parties and classes in the village, and whose means of knowing what is going on in the village are extensive and minute. It seems to me to be obviously desirable that the Government should have a right to require from him such information as he can furnish touching the maintenance of law and order in the village: and I do not anticipate that on this point there will be divergence of opinion.

“The next amendment to section 45 which I have to propose is the inclusion of the offences of unlawful assembly and rioting among those of which village-officers and landholders are specifically bound to give notice. This amendment is in a measure a repetition of that proposed to section 44: and it might perhaps be thought that the end in view is sufficiently secured by the latter amendment. But it has been thought well to define, with special exactitude, the duties of the village-officers in regard to breaches or threatened breaches of the peace ; and there is, so far as I can see, no objection to, but an advantage in, this being done. The arguments in support of both amendments are practically the same, though, in the case of section 45, they may be regarded as possessing a special cogency, inasmuch as the village-officers and landowners naturally know more of what goes on in their village than outsiders can.

" Another amendment of this section to which I desire to call the attention of the Council lays on the persons enumerated in the section the obligation of reporting to the Magistrate ' any matter touching the maintenance of the public peace or the prevention of crime or the safety of the property or persons of the inhabitants which the District Magistrate, by general or special order, made with the previous sanction of the Local Government, has directed him to communicate information.' Respecting this amendment I would first observe that it is concerned not with the general or even with the local public, but with village-officials and with the proprietors of the village-lands. From the very nature of the case we are entitled to demand from these strictly limited classes more extensive and minute information regarding the maintenance of order in the village than we should be justified in asking from the general public. My Lord, the first duty of an organized Government is to preserve the peace : but it is impossible to preserve the peace, amid jarring elements and conflicting interests, unless we have timely warning of impending danger. From what quarter or in what way difficulties may arise it is frequently impossible to foresee ; and in the interests of order it is imperative that the District Magistrate, the officer responsible for maintaining the public tranquillity, be authorized to require from the village-officials from time to time such information of the character I have stated as will enable him to discharge his duty in this connexion to the Government and to the public. As a matter of fact, the District Magistrate does now, in various parts of the country, require from the village-officials such information as my amendment contemplates : but he does so under inadequate legal sanctions. We require a stronger legal sanction for our orders than we now possess : and that it is hoped to obtain through this amendment. In regard to the owners or occupiers of the lands, the obligation to supply information touching the maintenance of the peace has existed from the earliest times, and lies indeed at the very root of the conception of the zamindari tenure of land in this country. No class of persons should be more interested in the maintenance of peaceful and orderly government than the proprietors of the soil, and I should desiderate from their good sense as well as from their self-interest a hearty concurrence in the amendment which I submit to the judgment of the Council in this matter.

" I may add that the Bill takes power to appoint a village-headman for the purposes of the section if a headman has not been appointed under any other law."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ANTONY MACDONNELL also introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble SIR ANTONY MACDONNELL also moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the local official Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 22nd February, 1894.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, February 10th, 1894.

The most important feature of the weather during the week under review was the large, shallow disturbance, which appeared over the western desert, Guzerat and the North Konkan, on the 6th. This depression occasioned feeble and irregular cyclonic winds over Central and North-Western India, and occasioned rain on its eastern and northern sides. On the 7th the rainfall extended from the Indus to the east of the North-Western Provinces, on the eastern side of the disturbance, and the rainfall amounts were generally small. On the 8th the distribution of rain was about the same as on the preceding day, but the amounts were somewhat heavier, Simla, Ahmednagar, Chakrata, Jhansi, and Allahabad having received about 1 inch. By the 9th the rainfall had extended into Behar, and the fall had become very heavy over the Kumaun Himalayas, Mussoorie having received 5.54 inches and Dehra Dun 3.42 inches. By the next morning the depression had disappeared and the rainfall practically ceased. Over Southern and North-Eastern India where the weather was outside the influence of the depressions, conditions were settled and the weather fairly quiet. The heat was greater than usual generally, and the mean temperature of the whole country for the week was nearly 2° above the normal average.

On the 4th the general distribution of pressure was such as is ordinarily experienced in fine weather during the cold season. A large high pressure area existed over North-West India, and extended eastward and southward over the Gangetic plain and the central parts of the country. At the same time readings were low over Malabar and the south of the Bay. The winds were north-westerly down the Gangetic plain, northerly and north-easterly over a large part of North-Western and Central India, northerly over the Bay, and easterly over the Peninsula. Light rain was falling in Baluchistan and at Dhubri, and moderate rain in the south of the Peninsula. On the 5th the barometer was falling except in the south of the Peninsula, but the general distribution of pressure and the general circulation of the winds were practically unchanged. Rain continued in Baluchistan, and light showers had extended to a few places in the Punjab, but over North-West India both on the hills and plains the rainfall received was generally less than one-tenth of an inch. Moderate to light rain continued to fall in the south of the Peninsula, and a local shower was reported from Ahmednagar. The chart of the 6th showed a considerable change. A large, though shallow, depression had appeared over the western desert, Guzerat, and the North Konkan, and the large high pressure area in the north-west had to a great extent given way. In consequence pressure had become generally uniform. With the greater uniformity of pressure the winds had become more variable and over North-West India showed slight cyclonic movements. A snow storm had given a fall of 1·26 inch to Quetta, and scattered showers were reported from different parts of India. Belgaum had received $\frac{1}{2}$ inch and Ahmednagar 0·65 inch, but elsewhere the amounts were small. The chart of the 7th showed that the shallow depression had drifted slowly eastward, and that the centre lay near Indore. The depression was better defined than on the preceding day, and its influence on the weather more marked. The winds over the Bay area and over the Peninsula were unaffected by the depression, but elsewhere the directions exhibited cyclonic movements around the low pressure. Rain was falling around the eastern and northern sides of the depression. The fall commenced at Poona, extended north-eastward across the Central Provinces, and then spread north-westward over the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab. Murree, Simla, and Chakrata reported over 1 inch, and Mussoorie, Cherat, and Rawalpindi over $\frac{1}{2}$ inch, but elsewhere the amounts were small. On the 8th the barometer was rising and the depression had largely disappeared, but the weather was still affected by it, and rain continued to be reported from parts of the Deccan, the Central Provinces, the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab. Simla and Ahmednagar had received about 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches, but at the other stations the amounts were less than 1 inch. On the 9th pressure was changing irregularly. Readings were high in the north and decreased fairly steadily southward, but the slight depression noticed on the two preceding days was shown over the south of the Gangetic plain. The winds were feebly cyclonic in this region, but elsewhere blew from about the normal directions. Rain had ceased in the Deccan, but was still falling in parts of the Central Provinces and of the Punjab and over most of the North-Western Provinces. It had also extended into Bihar. The fall had been very heavy over the Kumaun Himalayas; Mussoorie having received 5·54 inches and Dehra Dun 3·42 inches. By the morning of the 10th the depression, recently noticed, was disappearing over Bengal and Assam, and the distribution of pressure and the circulation of the winds were generally the same as those which had prevailed at the commencement of the week. Rain had ceased almost everywhere, though light showers were still reported from Baluchistan, the North-Western Himalayas, and a few places in the North-Western Provinces.

MEAN FOR WHOLE OF INDIA	+0'2	+1'3	+2'6	+3'0	+2'1	+1'6	+1'8	+1'8

The mean temperature of the whole of India exceeded the normal average on each day of the week, the abnormal excess ranging from only 0°·2 on the 4th to 3°·0 on the 7th. The provincial variations show an excess in all provinces except the Punjab and Madras, where there is a trifling deficiency. In Burma, Bengal, Assam, Bombay, and the Central Provinces the heat was steadily excessive throughout the week, but in the other provinces the variations from the normal were less regular.

Rain.—As mentioned above most of the rainfall recorded over India during the week under review, was attributable to the shallow depression which passed across the country between the 6th and 9th of February. This depression, though a very unimportant disturbance at the earth's surface, exercised considerable influence on the weather and gave rain to the nearly whole of Northern India from Bihar to the Indus as well as to the more central parts of the country and the head of the Peninsula. Before the appearance of this depression the weather had been somewhat showery over the south of the Peninsula. In consequence more or less rain was recorded during the week in nearly all parts of the country except the extreme north-east, part of the east of the Peninsula and in Guzerat and Rajputana. The rainfall table, at the close, shows that rain was received in thirty-one of the rainfall divisions while rain was absent in the case of twenty-one divisions. The heaviest average actual rainfall was 3'54 inches in the Punjab (Hill districts). This was followed by 1'21 inch in Oudh (South) and by 1'02 inches in the Submontane division of the North-Western Provinces. In all the remaining divisions the average actual fall per division was less than one inch and in the case of eight of the divisions was less than one-tenth of an inch. In Burma, Bengal (except Bihar), Coorg, the Central Provinces (East), Guzerat, Kathiawar, Rajputana, Central India (West), the East Coast (North), and Hyderabad there was absolutely no rain during the week. The third column of the table shows that the rainfall of the week was heavier than usual over Bihar, the whole of the North-Western Provinces, the Submontane, the Hill districts and the north-west of the Punjab, Malabar, Madras (South-central), Mysore, the Konkan, the Deccan, Khandesh, Berar, the Central Provinces (West and Central), Central India (East), Madras (Central), the East Coast (South), and Madras (South), while in the other provinces it was lighter than usual.

The information contained in the three last columns exhibits much the same general conditions as did the report of last week. There is a considerable excess of rain for the season over the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, and a large part of the Peninsula, and a general deficiency elsewhere.

The following are the more important total amounts recorded during the week :—At Kunda (Pertabgarh) 4·66 inches; at Kalsi (Dehra Dun) 5·42 inches; at Naraingarh (Umballa) 3·94 inches; at Kangra 4·10 inches; at Murree 4·60 inches; at Conoor (Nilgiris) 3·19 inches.

Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 17th February.—No rain. Agricultural operations of season proceeding. Standing crops generally fair. Harvest continues to yield average outturn. Pasturage growing scarcer, but fodder abundant. Condition of cattle good. Prices generally slightly easier, but still very high in the southern half of the Presidency.

Bombay.—For week ending 21st February.—Rain in parts of Sind beneficial to crops. Standing crops damaged by easterly winds, frost, rust, blight, insects, or untimely rain in parts of seven districts; prospects otherwise good. Reaping of early or late crops progressing in ten districts. Lands being prepared for next season in three districts. Cotton-picking continues in five districts. Fodder sufficient and agricultural stock good. Prices steady except in two districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 17th February.—There was no rain, and fine settled weather prevailed throughout the week. Prospects of the spring crops are good except in parts of Eastern and Central Bengal and of Chota Nagpur where they are suffering from want of rain. Spring rice is being transplanted, but for this crop also rain is required. In North Bengal lands are being ploughed for autumn rice and jute. The harvesting of sugarcane, mustard, potatoes, and other earlier spring crops is still proceeding. Poppy promises well in Bihar. In Hazaribagh it has been damaged to some extent by hail. In Rajshahi the manufacture of ganja has begun, but the outturn is likely to be below the average. The supply of fodder and water is generally sufficient. The price of common rice has slightly risen in some districts. In FARIDPUR (MADARIPUR SUB-DIVISION) the numbers on relief works and in receipt of gratuitous relief were:—Relief-works, 368 men against 417 in the previous week; gratuitous relief, 7 men, 18 women, and 6 children, total 31 against 55 in the preceding week.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 21st February.—Weather generally unsettled. Showers have fallen in most districts, in some accompanied by hail. In Partabgarh damage to the wheat and barley crops by rain is reported. In Jhansi the hail has injured the crops in seven villages. Prospects are, however, good. Markets are well-supplied, and prices fairly steady.

Punjab.—For week ending 21st February.—Rain has fallen in all districts, except Umballa. More rain is still wanted in the Daman tract of Dera Ismail Khan. Irrigation of spring crops in progress. Land is being prepared for the autumn crop. Condition of standing crops and prospects are generally reported good. The rape-seed crop is in flower. Crops have been injured by field rats in parts of Lahore. Cattle are generally in good condition, and fodder is sufficient throughout the province. The poppy crop is in good condition. Prices rising in one district, falling in three others, stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 21st February.—Weather clear, with passing clouds. Days abnormally warm. Reaping of wheat and other winter crops progressing. Fodder sufficient except in part of one district where it is reported to be insufficient owing to failure of the rice crops. Prices steady.

Burma.—For week ending 17th February.—Slight rain in one district only. Harvesting of the main paddy crop completed except in a few districts. In Upper Burma agricultural operations in connection with the dry-weather crops are progressing satisfactorily; wet-weather paddy, jowar (sorghum vulgare), and sesamum have been reaped, good crops being obtained. The cotton crop is not good in Sagaing, and wheat in Sagaing and Minbu is suffering severely from rust, and an insignificant crop of grain is expected. Island crops are fair. Fodder and water-supply sufficient. The price of paddy has fallen in Akyab and Tavoy and is below the normal, except in the Arakan division and Tavoy.

Assam.—For week ending 20th February.—Weather hot. Early rice-ploughing and sugarcane-pressing in progress. Mustard being harvested. Condition of cattle good. Fodder and water sufficient.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 21st February.—MYSORE: Standing crops in good condition. Ragi (Eleusine coracana) harvested in the Bangalore district. Rice sown in the Kolar, Tumkur, and parts of Chitaldroog districts; harvested in the Mysore district. No material change in prices.

COORG: Threshing of rice and coffee-picking nearly completed. Water and fodder for cattle sufficient. Prices stationary.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 21st February.—BERAR: Weather variable. Spring crops which are in fairly good condition have suffered in parts of the Wun taluka from cloudy weather, and in the Mehkar taluka from recent hail-storms. Preparation of land for ensuing autumn crop in progress in three districts only. Fodder and water-supply sufficient. Prices steady.

HYDERABAD: No rain during the week. Harvesting of hot-weather crops continues; cutting of spring crops commenced. Prices stationary.

Central India.—For week ending 21st February.—Slight rain during the week in Gwalior, Bhopal, Bundelkhand, and Bagelkhand. Condition of standing crops indifferent in Bagelkhand, but fair in other Agencies; probable outturn expected to be below average in Bundelkhand, Neemuch, and in parts of Gwalior. Agricultural stock in fairly good condition. Prices rising in Bhopal, Bundelkhand, Goona, and in parts of Gwalior; steady in other Agencies. Condition of opium generally good.

Rajputana.—For week ending 21st February.—Rainfall slight in Ulwar. Agricultural operations, standing crops, and cattle satisfactory. Prospects generally good. Pasturage or fodder sufficient. Prices fluctuating in one State, risen in two, fallen in two, and steady elsewhere.

Kashmir.—For week ending 20th February.—Snow and rain during the week. Prospects of the spring crops good. Prices favourable with tendency to fall.

Nepal.—For week ending 17th February.—Weather fine. Prospects good.

MUSEUMS and EXHIBITIONS.

READ—

Resolution of the Government of India, in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, No. 2634—51, dated 4th August 1893, intimating the extent to which the Government will take part in the Antwerp Exhibition of 1894.

RESOLUTION.

IN the Resolution read in the preamble the public were informed that persons intending to exhibit articles at the Antwerp Exhibition should apply to the Belgian Consular authorities in India. It is understood that the number of applications received from private exhibitors has been very small. Arrangements have meantime been made by the Government of India for the exhibition of Indian coffee and Indian cigars in conjunction with the collection of Indian artware supplied by a private firm and of a few selected timbers contributed by the Forest Department, regarding which information was given in the Resolution above referred to.

The Consul-General for Belgium has been asked to provide a limited amount of space for the above objects; and if this is obtained, the Government of India will be prepared to accord free space for the exhibition of coffee and cigars by private individuals or firms.

Persons intending to exhibit either of the above commodities are, therefore, requested to communicate as soon as possible with the Reporter on Economic Products to the Government of India, Calcutta, instead of communicating with the Belgian Consular authorities.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India for general information, and that copies be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations, with the request that it be republished in the local Gazettes.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The Indian Law Reports, published under the authority of the Governor-General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat, and the Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, respectively.

In supersession of the previous advertisements, on and from the 1st January, 1889, the terms of subscription and sale will be as follows for current issues, as well as for back numbers of the Reports from 1876:—

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Report on Economic Products.Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is Rs 45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 2nd March, 1894, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. V OF 1894.

An Act to amend the Code of Civil Procedure.

XIV of 1882. WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Civil Procedure; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

I. (1) This Act may be called the Civil Procedure Code Amendment Act, 1894; and XIV of 1882. (2) It shall come into force at once.

2. After section 310 of the Code of Civil Procedure the following shall be inserted, namely :—

" 310A. Any person whose immoveable property has been sold under this Chapter may at any time within thirty days from the date of sale apply to have the sale set aside on his depositing in Court—

(a) for payment to the purchaser, a sum equal to five per centum of the purchase-money, and

(b) for payment to the decree-holder, the amount specified in the proclamation of sale as that for the recovery of which the sale was ordered, less any amount which may, since the date of such proclamation of sale, have been received by the decree-holder.

"If such deposit is made within the thirty days, the Court shall pass an order setting aside the sale :

Provided that, if a person applies under the next following section to set aside the sale of his immoveable property, he shall not be entitled to make an application under this section.

"Nothing in this section shall be construed to relieve the judgment-debtor from any liability he may be under in respect of costs and interest not covered by the proclamation of sale."

3. In section 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure the figures and letter "310A" shall be inserted after the word "section" and before the figures "312".

XIV of 1882. Amendment of section 315 of Code.

SCHEDULE V.—EXPORT TARIFF.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Customs-duties, and for other purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the duties of Preamble. customs on goods imported and exported by sea, and to provide for the levy of duties on goods crossing the frontier of certain Foreign European Settlements in India and of the territories of certain Native Chiefs ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called the Indian Tariff Act, 1894.

It extends to the whole of British India except Aden and Perim ; and it shall come into force on the Local extent. Com- passing thereof.
mencement.

2. The Acts mentioned in the first schedule are repealed to the extent specified therein.
Repeal of Act.

But all notifications published, and rules and orders made, under any of such Acts, and now in force, shall, so far as they are consistent herewith, be deemed to have been respectively published and made hereunder :

XVI of 1875. All references made to the Indian Tariff Act, 1875, and the Indian Tariff Act, 1882, in Acts or Regulations passed before this Act comes into force, shall be deemed to be made to this Act :

And nothing herein contained authorizes the levy of duties of customs on any article carried from one port in British India to another, except salt, opium and spirit.

3. There shall be levied and collected, in every port to which this Act applies, the duties specified in the second, third, fourth and fifth schedules hereto annexed.

4. On all pepper exported by sea from the port of Cochin there shall be levied such duty not exceeding nine rupees per khandi as the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council from time to time determines; and at the close of each year, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Customs-Collector at the said port shall, after deducting the expenses of collection, pay the duty collected under this section to the Governments of Travancore and Cochin in such proportion and in such manner as the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council from time to time directs.

5. Duties of customs shall be levied at the rates respectively prescribed in the second, third, fourth and fifth schedules hereto annexed on goods passing by land out of or into—

(a) Foreign European Settlements bordering on any part of the territories administered by the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council or by the Governor of Bombay in Council ;

(b) any territory declared, under the power next hereinafter conferred, to be foreign territory.

Subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council and the Governor of Bombay in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, respectively declare that the territory of any Native Chief situate within, or bordering on, the territories respectively administered by such Governors, but not subject to the jurisdiction of the Courts and Civil authorities of such territories, shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to be foreign territory.

The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare that the territory of any other Native Chief shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to be foreign territory.

6. In Act No. XVI of 1863, section 1, for the words "calculated at ten" the words "not exceeding five" shall be substituted.

7. Spirit, opium and salt imported from any port in British India, and protected by the certificate of an officer empowered in that behalf by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, are chargeable with only the amount, if any, by which the duty leviable thereon under the second schedule hereto annexed exceeds the duty shown by such certificate to have been already paid in respect thereof.

The amount, if any, paid to the Government as the price of such opium or salt is not duty within the meaning of this section.

Nothing in this section applies to spirit which is exported under bond for excise-duty from one customs-port to another customs-port under the provisions of Chapter XIV of the Sea Customs Act, 1878.

8. So far as regards the Presidency of Fort Saint George the unrepealed provisions of Act No. VI of 1844, and, so far as regards the Presidency of Bombay, the unrepealed provisions of Act No. XXIX of 1857, relating to the levy of duties and to dutiable goods, shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to duties levied and goods liable to duty under or by virtue of section 5, clause (b).

9. All notifications published hereunder may be cancelled by the authority publishing the same.

10. In the event of any duty of customs or excise on any article being imposed, increased, decreased or remitted after the making of any contract for the sale of such article without stipulation as to the payment of duty where duty was not chargeable at the time of the making of the contract, or for the sale of such article duty-paid where duty was chargeable at that time,—

(a) if such imposition or increase so takes effect that the duty, or increased duty, as the case may be, is paid, the seller may add so much to the contract price as will be equivalent to the duty or increase of duty, and he shall be entitled to be paid and to sue for and recover such addition, and

(b) if such decrease or remission so takes effect that the decreased duty only or no duty, as the case may be, is paid, the purchaser may deduct so much from the contract-price as will be equivalent to the decrease of duty or remitted duty, and he shall not be liable to pay or be sued for or in respect of such deduction.

11. In the first line of the 2nd paragraph of section 23 of the Sea Customs Act, VIII of 1878, the words "with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council" shall be inserted after the word "may."

SCHEDULE V.—(EXPORT TARIFF.)

Name of Article.	Rate of duty.
RICE, WHETHER HUSKED OR UNHUSKED, INCLUDING RICE-FLOUR.	Three annas per Indian maund of 82½ lb avoirdupois weight.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE embarrassed condition of the finances, and the certainty that the accounts of the present year and the estimates of the year 1894-95 show a heavy deficit, have placed the Government under the necessity of reducing expenditure so far as reduction is possible and of raising a larger revenue to meet the cost of administration.

It has accordingly been decided to increase the revenue by the imposition of indirect taxation in the form of import duties, and the present Bill practically reimposes the Tariff Schedule of 1875, with some exceptions, of which the most important is the omission of duties on Cotton Yarn and Goods.

The 28th February 1894.

the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, with respect to Policies of Sea-insurance and Sale-certificates was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as revised by us annexed thereto.

2. We consider that there should be a definition of "policy of sea-insurance" as in section 92 of the Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict., c. 39), and that the substance of the notifications of the Department Finance and Commerce, Nos. 1044 and 513, dated respectively, the 5th March, 1886, and 1st February, 1887, regarding re-insurances in the case of fire as well as sea-insurances, should be incorporated in the Bill.

3. We have varied the Bill accordingly.

No. II.

A Bill to amend the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, with respect to Policies of Sea and Fire Insurance and Sale-Certificates.

1 of 1879.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, with respect to policies of sea and fire insurance and sale-certificates; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Policies of Sea and Fire Insurance.

1. To clause (15) of section 3 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, as amended by section 1 of Act I of 1888, the following shall be added, namely:—

"It includes also a policy of sea-insurance, such a policy (a) meaning any insurance made upon any ship or vessel, or upon the machinery, tackle or furniture of any ship or vessel, or upon any goods, merchandise or property of any description whatever on board of any ship or vessel, or upon the freight of, or any other interest which may be lawfully insured in or relating to, any ship or vessel, and (b) including any insurance of goods, merchandise or property for any transit which includes not only a sea risk but also any other risk incidental to the transit insured from the commencement of the transit to the ultimate destination covered by the insurance:

"and where any person, in consideration of any sum of money paid or to be paid for additional freight or otherwise, agrees to take upon himself any risk attending goods merchandise or property of any description whatever while on board of any ship or vessel, or engages to indemnify the owner of any such goods, merchandise or property from any risk, loss or damage, such agreement or engagement shall be deemed to be a contract for sea-insurance."

2. Between section 7 and section 8 of the said Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"7A. (1) No contract for sea-insurance (other than such insurance as is referred to in section 55 of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862,) shall be valid unless the same is expressed in a policy of sea-insurance.

"(2) No policy of sea-insurance made for time shall be made for any time exceeding twelve months.

"(3) No policy of sea-insurance shall be valid unless it specifies the particular risk or adventure, or the time for which it is made, the names of the subscribers or underwriters, and the amount or amounts insured.

"(4) Where any sea-insurance is made for or upon a voyage and also for time, or to extend to or cover any time beyond thirty days after the ship shall have arrived at her destination and been there moored at anchor, the policy shall be charged with duty as a policy for or upon a voyage, and also with duty as a policy for time."

3. For division (a) of article 49 of Schedule I of the said Act, as amended by section 2 of Act I of 1888, relating to sea-insurance, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

DESCRIPTION OF INSTRUMENT.	PROPER STAMP DUTY.
	Rs. A. P.
(a) In the case of sea-insurance—
(1) for or upon any voyage—
(i) where the premium or consideration does not exceed the rate of two annas or one-eighth per centum of the amount insured by the policy	0 1 0
(ii) in any other case, in respect of every full sum of one thousand rupees and also any fractional part of one thousand rupees insured by the policy	0 2 0
(2) for time—
(iii) in respect of every full sum of one thousand rupees and also any fractional part of one thousand rupees insured by the policy—
where the insurance shall be made for any time not exceeding six months	0 3 0
where the insurance shall be made for any time exceeding six months and not exceeding twelve months	0 6 0

4. (1) In division (c) of article 49 of Schedule I of the said Act, as amended by section 2 of Act I of 1888, the following shall be added after the words "In the case of any other insurance," namely, "except such a re-assurance as is described in division (d) of this article—"

(2) After division (c) of article 49 of Schedule I of the said Act, amended as aforesaid, the following division shall be added, namely:—

Description of Instrument.	Proper Stamp duty.
	Rs. A. P.
(d) In the case of a re-insurance, by an Insurance Company which has granted a policy of sea-insurance or a policy of insurance against loss by fire, with another Company by way of indemnity or guarantee against the payment on the original insurance of a certain part of the sum insured thereby	1 0 0

Sale-Certificates.

5. Section 24 of the said Act shall be held not to apply and never to have applied to any such certificate of sale as is mentioned in article 16 of Schedule I of that Act:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any decree or order made by any Court or Revenue-officer before the commencement of this Act.

6. In the third column of Schedule I of the said Act, after the words "the purchase-money" against article 16, the word "only" shall be added.

Policies of Sea and Fire Insurance

1 of 1879. 1. To clause (15) of section 3 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, as amended by section 1 of Act I of 1888, the following shall be added, namely:—

"It includes also a policy of sea-insurance, such a policy (a) meaning any insurance made upon any ship or vessel, or upon the machinery, tackle or furniture of any ship or vessel, or upon any goods, merchandise or property of any description whatever on board of any ship or vessel, or upon the freight of, or any other interest which may be lawfully insured in or relating to, any ship or vessel, and (b) including any insurance of goods, merchandise or property for any transit which includes not only a sea risk but also any other risk incidental to the transit insured from the commencement of the transit to the ultimate destination covered by the insurance:

"and where any person, in consideration of any sum of money paid or to be paid for additional freight or otherwise, agrees to take upon himself any risk attending goods, merchandise or property of any description whatever while on board of any ship or vessel, or engages to indemnify the owner of any such goods, merchandise or property from any risk, loss or damage, such agreement or engagement shall be deemed to be a contract for sea-insurance."

2. Between section 7 and section 8 of the said Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"7A. (1) No contract for sea-insurance (other than such insurance as is referred to in section 55 of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862,) shall be valid unless the same is expressed in a policy of sea-insurance.

"(2) No policy of sea-insurance made for time shall be made for any time exceeding twelve months.

"(3) No policy of sea-insurance shall be valid unless it specifies the particular risk or adventure, or the time for which it is made, the names of the subscribers or underwriters, and the amount or amounts insured.

"(4) Where any sea-insurance is made for or upon a voyage and also for time, or to extend to or cover any time beyond thirty days after the ship shall have arrived at her destination and been there moored at anchor, the policy shall be charged with duty as a policy for or upon a voyage, and also with duty as a policy for time."

3. For division (a) of article 49 of Schedule I of the said Act, as amended by section 2 of Act I of 1888, relating to sea-insurance, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

DESCRIPTION OF INSTRUMENT.	PROPER STAMP-DUTY.
	Rs.	A. P.
(a) In the case of sea-insurance—
(1) for or upon any voyage—
(i) where the premium or consideration does not exceed the rate of two annas or one-eighth per centum of the amount insured by the policy	0	1 0
(ii) in any other case, in respect of every full sum of one thousand rupees and also any fractional part of one thousand rupees insured by the policy	0	2 0
(2) for time—
(iii) in respect of every full sum of one thousand rupees and also any fractional part of one thousand rupees insured by the policy—
where the insurance shall be made for any time not exceeding six months	0	2 0
where the insurance shall be made for any time exceeding six months and not exceeding twelve months	0	4 0

4. (1) In division (c) of article 49 of Schedule I of the said Act, as amended by section 2 of Act I of 1888, the following shall be added after the words "In the case of any other insurance," namely, "except such a re-assurance as is described in division (d) of this article—"

(2) After division (c) of article 49 of Schedule I of the said Act, amended as aforesaid, the following division shall be added, namely:—

Description of Instruments.	Proper Stamp-duty.
	Rs.	A. P.
(d) In the case of a re-insurance, by an Insurance Company which has granted a policy of sea-insurance or a policy of insurance against loss by fire, with another Company by way of indemnity or guarantee against the payment on the original insurance of a certain part of the sum insured thereby	1	0 0

Sale-Certificates.

5. Section 24 of the said Act shall be held not to apply and never to have applied to any such certificate of sale as is mentioned in article 16 of Schedule I of that Act:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any decree or order made by any Court or Revenue-officer before the commencement of this Act.

6. In the third column of Schedule I of the said Act, after the words "the purchase-money" against article 16, the word "only" shall be added.

3. Sections 4 and 5 of Bill as revised.—For the words “in alliance with”, where they occur in the proposed addition to section 16 and in section 19 of the Act, we have, after consultation with the Foreign Department of the Government of India, substituted the words “under the suzerainty of”. Some of the petty Feudatory States in Orissa, the Central Provinces and elsewhere, to which the sections will apply, have such limited authority that it will be more convenient to refer to them in the language used in clause (5) of section 18, 52 & 53 Vict., c. 63, and the corresponding clause of section 9, 53 Vict., c. 4.

4. Sections 6 and 7 of Bill as revised.—We have substituted new sections for sections 30 and 32 of the Act, with the object of making those sections apply as well to prisoners sentenced to transportation as to prisoners sentenced to imprisonment.

5. It has been suggested to us that the Prisoners Act, as it may be amended by this Bill, might be amalgamated with the Prisons Bill which is now under consideration. But we prefer to adhere to the arrangement come to nearly a quarter of a century ago, under which the internal management and economy of prisons were left to be regulated by Prisons Acts, and the rest of the law regarding prisoners by the Prisoners Act (Proceedings of Legislative Council, 1870, pages 404 and 418). This arrangement is well known, and no good reason has been urged for departing from it.

1. To section 1 of the said Act the following Addition to section 1, ing shall be added, namely:—
Act V, 1871.

"Any reference in Part III or Part V of this Act to a prison or jail, or to imprisonment or confinement, may be read as referring to a reformatory or reformatory school or to confinement therein."

Repeal of section 9, 2. Section 9 of the said Act is hereby repealed.
Act V, 1871.

3. In section 14 of the said Act, for the Amendment of section 14, Act V, 1871. words "or in pursuance of a warrant of any Court established in Calcutta, Madras or Bombay under the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882," the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"or in pursuance of a warrant of any Civil Court established in Calcutta, Madras or Bombay under any law for the time being in force."

4. (1) In section 16 of the said Act, for the Amendment of, and words "acting under the addition, to section 16, authority" the words "acting, whether within or without British India, under the general or special authority" shall be substituted.

(2) To the same section the following shall be added, namely:—

"or, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council in each case, to any sentence or order or warrant for the detention of any person passed or issued by any Court or tribunal of any Native Prince or State under the suzerainty of Her Majesty:

"Where a Court or tribunal of such a Native Prince or State has passed a sentence which cannot be executed without the concurrence of an officer of the British Government, and such sentence has been judicially considered on the merits and confirmed by any such officer specially authorised by name or by office in that behalf, such sentence, and any order or warrant issued in pursuance thereof, shall be deemed to be the sentence, order or warrant of a Court or tribunal acting under the authority of the Governor General in Council."

5. (1) For the first fifty-one words of section 19 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—
Amendment of, and addition to, section 19, Act V, 1871.

"The Governor General in Council or the Local Government may authorise the reception, detention or imprisonment in any place in British India, or in any place under such Government, as the case may be, for the period specified in their respective sentences, of persons sentenced within the territories of any Native Prince or State under the suzerainty of Her Majesty to imprisonment or transportation for any of the following offences:—

(2) In the same section, after the words "theft of cattle" the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"or for any other act (referred to in this section as an offence) which would, if done in British India, have constituted an offence against any of the sections of the Indian Penal Code mentioned in the schedule to the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879."

(3) For the proviso to the same section the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"Provided that such sentences have been pronounced after trial before a tribunal of which the presiding Judge, or, if the Court consisted of more than one Judge, at least one of such Judges, was an officer of the British Government authorised to act as such Judge by the Native Prince or State or by the Governor General in Council."

6. For section 30 of the said Act the following Substitution of new ing shall be substituted, section for section 30, namely:—
Act V, 1871.

"30. When any person is, or has been, sentenced to imprisonment or Removal from one jail to another in territories under same Local Government. transportation by any Court, or, in default of giving security for keeping the peace or maintaining good behaviour, has been committed to, or is detained in, prison under section 123 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, the Local Government, or (subject to its orders and under its control) the Inspector General of Prisons, may order his removal during the period for which he has been sentenced to imprisonment or transportation or the security has been ordered to be given, as the case may be, from the jail or place in which he is confined to any other jail or place of confinement within the territories subject to the same Local Government."

Substitution of new 7. For section 32 of the section for section 32, said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—
Act V, 1871.

"32. When any person is, or has been, sentenced to imprisonment or Removal of prisoners from territories under one Local Government to territories under another. transportation by any Court, or, in default of giving security for maintaining good behaviour, has been committed to, or is detained in, prison under section 123 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, the Governor General in Council may order his removal during the period for which he has been sentenced to imprisonment or transportation or the security has been ordered to be given, as the case may be, from the jail or place in which he is confined to any other jail or place of confinement in British India."

QUESTION AND ANSWER.

The Hon'ble MAHÁRAJÁ PARTAB NARAYAN SINGH OF AJUDHIA asked :—

Whether the Government will allow grade promotions in the subordinate judicial and executive branches of the Provincial Service in the event of temporary vacancies, as is done in the case of certain services enumerated in Part II, Chapter VI, section 1, of the Civil Service Regulations.

The Hon'ble SIR ANTONY MACDONNELL replied :—

"The various services under the Government have different rates of pay and different rules as to grade promotions. The rates of pay in the services to which the Hon'ble Member refers are affected by limitations as to grade promotions; and the Government of India cannot consider the question of removing the limitations without reopening the whole question of rates of pay. This the Government, as at present advised, see no reason to do.

"I may mention, with reference to the Provincial Executive Service of the Province from which the Hon'ble Member comes, that there has been within the last few months a revision of grading to the advantage of the members of that service."

CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE AND INDIAN LIMITATION ACT, 1877, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble DR. RASHBEHARY GHOSE presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Code of Civil Procedure and the Indian Limitation Act, 1877. He said :—"No substantial alterations have been made by the members of the Select Committee in the Bill as it was originally introduced. The nature of the comparatively slight amendments which have been made is explained in the Report of the Committee, and I have nothing to add to it. I will only mention that the Hon'ble Mr. Lee-Warner, one of the members of the Select Committee, has appended to the Report a note, which I may venture to call a note of discord, but happily not of a very harsh or dissonant nature. It would be premature to discuss that note at the present stage. Any recommendations which the Hon'ble Member may think it proper to make will doubtless be discussed in due course when he brings them forward in Council."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE-WARNER said :—"With reference to the remark made by the Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose as to the 'note of discord' which I have felt it my duty to strike in connexion with this Bill, I would ask permission to offer a few observations, and to put a question to the Hon'ble Mover before he proceeds to ask this Council to consider this Bill. That question is, whether it is not wiser to consult the Local Governments on the question whether this Bill will best meet the great evil which it is intended to cure. On the 8th of March last the Hon'ble Member with his usual fairness and fullness described the position thus: 'It is a well-known fact that immoveable property put up for sale in execution of a decree seldom fetches an adequate price.' To cure that great evil we have this Bill, and the Select Committee refer to the opinions of the Local Governments upon it in these terms."

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said :—"I beg to call the Hon'ble Member's attention to the fact that the Rules for the Conduct of Business lay down that the consideration of the Report of the Bill should be taken after it is in the hands of the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE-WARNER said :—"I would ask then, my Lord, whether I may put the question under Chapter II, rule 10, of the Council Rules."

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said :—"I do not think that it would be in order to discuss that question at the present stage. If necessary, it could be put forward as an amendment and discussed when the Report is taken into consideration by the Council."

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER said :—"The most convenient way, as His Excellency suggests, would probably be that when the Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose proposes to take the Bill into consideration the Hon'ble Mr. Lee-

Warner should move, by way of amendment to that motion, that the Bill should be referred back to Local Governments."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE-WARNER said:—"I shall readily adopt the course indicated by Your Lordship. My only fear was that I might at that stage be obliged, as the Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose hinted, to move a specific amendment to the Bill itself, which without the opinions of the several Local Governments I am unable to do."

CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE, 1882, AND INDIAN PENAL CODE AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble DR. LETHBRIDGE moved that the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and the Indian Penal Code be taken into consideration. He said:—

"My hon'ble friend Sir Philip Hutchins, in asking for leave to introduce this Bill, pointed out that it was necessary to strengthen the hands of the British authorities in dealing with dacoits who, having committed dacoity in Native States, were sheltered in British territory with the connivance of British subjects.

"It was proposed to effect this object by extending the meaning of the word 'offence' in certain sections of the Penal and Procedure Codes, so as to include certain acts committed outside British India, and to declare that they shall be deemed to be offences equally with similar acts committed in British India for the purpose of bringing to justice persons who are guilty of criminal acts or omissions in relation to them. It was further proposed to explain more exactly what is meant by the term 'harbouring,' and to provide, by the addition of a new section to the Indian Penal Code, for the punishment of any British subject who, knowing or having reason to believe that certain persons are about to commit dacoity or have recently committed dacoity, harbours them. The new section further provides that it is immaterial whether the dacoity is intended to be committed or has been committed within or without British India.

"The Bill prepared on these lines and introduced in August last has been carefully examined by Local Governments and by a large number of selected officers to whom it has been referred for opinion. Ample time has also been given for its full consideration by the public. I am glad to find from the replies and opinions which have been received that it has met with a favourable reception, and that the Select Committee has had placed before it many important and valuable suggestions for improving the drafting of the Bill and increasing its usefulness.

"At the last meeting of this Council I had the honour to present the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill and to lay on the table the draft Bill which the Committee now submits for the acceptance of Your Lordship's Council. It only remains for me to explain as briefly as I can the leading features of the measure as amended in Select Committee. The Bill, as it was originally drafted, was framed so as to deal only with the offences of murder and dacoity, the latter including such acts as making preparation for or attempting to commit dacoity. But the Hon'ble Member who introduced it explained that, if after consideration it was decided to retain the clause added in 1886 to section 216, it would be necessary to extend the meaning of the term 'offence' in the other sections so as to make it cover some of the more heinous offences. When the opinions of the Local Governments were received, it was found that many of the officers consulted were in favour of extending the provisions of the Bill to a larger number of the more serious offences, including such crimes as poisoning for the sake of gain, kidnapping, cattle-lifting and counterfeiting coin, etc. The Select Committee, after considering these opinions, accepted the suggestion that the provisions of the Bill should be enlarged, but, on examining the enlarged list of crimes that it was proposed to include in the Bill, it was found impossible to add to the existing list of offences already enumerated in section 44 of the Code of Criminal Procedure without amending the substantive section itself; and this the Committee considered was outside the scope of the present measure. Let me explain this point more clearly: under section 44 of the Code of Criminal Procedure as it stands at present, every person in British India is bound to give information of the commission of, or of the intention to commit, by other persons in British India certain offences which are specified in that section. If we extend this obligation to offences committed or about to be committed out of British India, it is hardly reasonable to require that British subjects shall give information in regard to a number of offences in Native States which, if they had been committed in British India, they would not be bound to report. Although, therefore, there are many serious offences which we should have liked to have included in this measure, our power to extend the provisions of the Bill is limited to the crimes already specified in section 44 of the Procedure Code. In making our selection from the offences there enumerated, we have for obvious reasons omitted to include all the offences against the State provided for in sections 121 to 130, Indian Penal Code, and section 303, which relates to murder committed by a life-convict, and section 456, Indian Penal Code, which refers to the simplest form of lurking house-trespass and house-breaking by night committed by the ordinary thief. With these exceptions, we have incorporated in sections 1 and 2 of the present Bill, which are intended to amend sections 44 and 45 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, all the offences already enumerated in the former section. Correlative to these sections of the Procedure Code, which it is intended to amend, are sections 176, 177, 201, 202 and 203 of the Penal Code, which provide for the punishment of persons who in breach of this obligation to report either omit to give information or substitute false or misleading information, or cause evidence to disappear in order to screen the offender. In amending these sections by sections 5 and 6 of this Bill, the offences enumerated in sections 1 and 2 are, as a matter of course, repeated.

" There are two sections, 212 and 216, of the Indian Penal Code which are aimed at harbourers. In regard to section 216, which relates to the harbouring of escaped prisoners and offenders ordered to be arrested, it was found necessary in 1886 to make it penal to harbour persons who had been convicted of, or ordered to be arrested for, offences in Foreign States. Act X of 1886, by which this important clause was added to section 216, gave the word 'offence' a very wide signification, and provided for the punishment of persons who harboured those convicted of or charged with crimes which were covered by the list of offences mentioned in the law relating to extradition and the Fugitive Offenders Act. When this amendment to section 216 was made it would appear to have been overlooked that some amendment to section 212 was also necessary. In this present Bill, as originally drafted, it was proposed to cut down the clause framed in 1886 so as to include only murder and dacoities, and to have an amendment making this restricted application of the term 'offence' applicable also to section 212. This proposal has not been generally accepted, and it has been pointed out by Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick and others that there was no object to be gained by the restriction proposed in section 5 of the original Bill, nor was it necessary to make the term 'offence' here used correspond with its meaning as used in the other sections of the Bill. It has been represented that the list of crimes in respect of which it is made a penal offence to harbour a person who is known to be an offender who has escaped from custody either before or after conviction may well be a longer list than that of crimes which all classes of the community are bound under the law to report. The Select Committee accepted this view of the subject and decided to omit all reference to section 216 of the Code of Criminal Procedure in the Bill now before the Council. In respect to the further suggestion made by many of the officers consulted, that a clause similar to that passed in Act X of 1886 amending section 216 should be added to section 212, the Select Committee was asked to consider whether there was not a substantial difference between section 212, which refers to harbourers of offenders not yet arrested or ordered to be arrested, and section 216, which refers to harbourers of escaped prisoners or offenders specifically ordered to be arrested, and, if there was a substantial difference, whether it would not be well to limit the term

'offence' in the amending clause of section 212 to the more heinous offences. The Committee considered that there was a difference, and we have endeavoured to give effect to this suggestion and to the desire for uniformity by enumerating in the amending section 7 of this Bill which is to be added to section 212 only those offences which have been entered in all the other sections. In my opinion all the power that it was necessary for us to obtain to provide for the peace and welfare of the Native States on the borders of British districts has been obtained by this amendment, and we have avoided the danger of including a long list of offences which, to say the least of it, might have given rise to differences of opinion between the officers of British districts and the Durbars of Native States.

"It has been pointed out by the Punjab Government, and some of the officers consulted by it, that if it is intended to make prosecutions for harbouring more effective and to bring home the offence to the person charged with harbouring, the power now possessed by the British police under section 54 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of arresting a criminal without a warrant in certain cases should be extended to persons who are charged with the commission in Native States of cognizable and extraditable offences. This suggestion has been adopted and embodied in section 3 of the present Bill.

"In section 8 will be found redrafted the section (216A) which it is proposed to add to the Indian Penal Code for the punishment of persons harbouring dacoits and robbers who have assembled together to commit dacoity or robbery but have not yet carried out their purpose. It has been found necessary to add the crime of robbery to this section to bring it more into accordance with the rest of the provisions of this Bill.

"To make this new section correspond with existing sections 212 and 216 and to comply with what is a fixed principle of English law that the wife who harbours her husband is not in these cases a free agent, exceptions have been made in favour of the husband or wife of the offender.

"Since section 216A is a new section of the Indian Penal Code, the law requires that it shall be inserted in Schedule II of the Code of Criminal Procedure. This has been provided for in section 4 of the Bill.

"It has frequently been represented by officers who have had to administer the law that the word 'harbouring' should be more clearly defined. This the Select Committee has endeavoured to do in the proposed clause 216B."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble DR. LETHBRIDGE also moved that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

REPEALING AND AMENDING BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that the Bill to repeal certain obsolete enactments and to amend certain other enactments be taken into consideration. He said:—"This is, practically, a purely formal Bill, and it has not therefore been thought necessary to send it to a Select Committee.

"The Bill has been settled with the consent of the Bombay Government, and its only object is to clear the way for publishing a new edition of the Bombay Code, in order that these enactments may not have to be reproduced in that Code and re-published."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved that in Part I of the first schedule annexed to the Bill the entry relating to Bombay Regulation II of 1827 be omitted. He said:—"Practically the Regulation is obsolete, but it has been pointed out by the Bombay Government that it has been incorporated in the clause—section 56—of a later Regulation, and that therefore it would be inconvenient that it should be repealed—because it would be necessary by other legislation to provide for the matters for which section 56 now provides. For this reason I now ask, at the request of the Bombay Government, that the entry in question should be omitted."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved that the Bill, as amended, be passed. He said:—"I may call the attention of Hon'ble Members to the fact that in the schedule of the Bill there is a column—No. 5—explaining the various proposals and the reasons why certain provisions are included in the Bill; but that is no part of the Bill itself, and therefore in passing the Bill all these remarks will disappear."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

CODE OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE, 1882, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ANTONY MACDONNELL moved that the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Miller, the Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose, the Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans, the Hon'ble Mr. Stevens and the Mover, with instructions to report within one month.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 1st March, 1894.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, February 17th, 1894.

During the week under review, although pressure has at times changed by considerable amounts, yet the general distribution has not varied very largely from the normal, except on the 14th and 15th, when readings were more uniform than is ordinarily the case. On the other days of the week pressure has decreased very steadily, from a high pressure area in the north to a low pressure area in the south. Accompanying this distribution of pressure there has occurred a fairly steady flow of air from the north towards the south, while the weather has been generally fine. Very slight disturbances have, however, been slowly translated from the west towards the east and have occasioned rain and somewhat unsettled weather in different parts of Northern and Central India. In consequence rain occurred over Baluchistan, the Punjab and the North-Western Provinces, at different times, and snow fell on the North-West Himalayas early on the morning of the 17th.

The chart of the 11th showed the normal distribution of pressure. Readings were highest in the north-west, and from this region gradually decreased to the south of the Bay where they were lowest. The winds showed anti-cyclonic motions, blowing from north-west in the Gangetic plain, from north over Bengal and the Bay and from north-east and east over the central parts of the country and the Peninsula. In Baluchistan a strongish south-easterly wind was blowing and rain was falling. Showers were also reported from Colombo and Sibsagar, but with these exceptions there was no rain over the Indian region.

On the 12th pressure was decreasing in the north-west and increasing elsewhere. Hence, although the general distribution was unchanged, the high pressure area in the north-west was less strongly marked and the distribution was to this extent abnormal. Calms prevailed in the north-west and the wind circulation was less regular. Rain was still reported from Baluchistan and had extended to the north of the Punjab, while light rain had again fallen at Sibsagar. On the 13th the barometer had recovered in the north-west, the high pressure area had been re-established, and the distribution had become normal again, except that one slight depression had appeared over Guzerat and a second over Bengal. The winds were variable over those portions of Northern India affected by the depressions. Rain continued at Quetta and in the north of the Punjab and a light shower was reported from Colombo. The chart of the 14th showed that the barometer had fallen almost everywhere. The fall had been brisk in the north and moderate in the south, hence pressure had become more uniform. The winds were variable and light. Rain had extended in the North-West and had fallen generally over Baluchistan and a large part of the Punjab; the amounts were, however, small or very small. On the morning of the 15th pressure was rising quickly in the north-west and moderate gradients were reported there, though in other parts of the country pressure remained very uniform. The winds were again rather variable in direction. Rain had fallen at Karachi as well as at the stations in the west and north of the Punjab close to the Hills. Rain had also fallen all over the North-West Himalayas. By the morning of the 16th the small depression from Guzerat had reached the Central Provinces, while that over Bengal had disappeared. The distribution was irregular, but readings were generally high in the north-west and north-east and low in the south. The winds were very variable in direction. Rain was falling over Baluchistan and at several stations in North-West India. By the morning of the 17th the depression noticed above had reached Bengal where, as well as over the Peninsula and Burma, the barometer had fallen. The barometer had on the contrary risen briskly in the north-west, where the high pressure area was again well defined. The winds blew from the normal cold weather directions. Rain was reported from the north of the Punjab and west of the North-Western Provinces, while snow and hail had fallen over the North-West Himalayas.

Temperature.—The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the different provinces of India :—

PROVINCE.	FEBRUARY 1894.							Mean variation of week.
	11th.	12th.	13th.	14th.	15th.	16th.	17th.
Burma	+2'1	+3'4	+3'5	+1'9	+1'0	—0'1	+1'3	+1'9
Bengal and Assam	+5'0	+1'7	+2'2	+3'1	+4'4	+6'1	+7'4	+4'3
North-Western Provinces and Oudh	—0'6	+0'2	+2'1	+4'1	+8'1	+8'8	+8'0	+4'4
Punjab	+1'6	+4'4	+4'0	+5'7	+3'1	+5'3	+0'3	+3'5
Bombay	+3'6	+4'3	+4'8	+5'1	+3'2	+2'5	+1'9	+3'6
Central Provinces and Berar	+2'8	+2'5	+3'9	+4'8	+4'9	+6'8	+6'0	+4'5
Central India and Guzerat	+1'2	+4'5	+6'5	+6'5	+7'6	+6'4	+3'6	+5'2
Sind and Rajputana	+0'5	+3'2	+6'1	+5'9	+6'4	+0'9	—1'3	+3'2
Madrás	+0'6	+0'3	+0'6	—0'7	—1'4	—1'7	—2'6	—0'7
MEAN FOR WHOLE OF INDIA .	+1'9	+2'7	+3'7	+4'0	+4'1	+3'9	+2'7	+3'3

The above shows that the past week has been one of generally excessive heat. On each day of the week the mean temperature of the whole of India was above the normal, the abnormal excess ranging from $1^{\circ}9$ on the 11th to $4^{\circ}1$ on the 15th. All the provincial divisions except Madras showed an excess of temperature, the greatest variation from the normal being $+5^{\circ}2$ in Central India and Guzerat. In Burma, Sind and Rajputana and the North-Western Provinces on one day of the week, and in Madras on four days of the week, the mean temperature was below the normal, but with these few exceptions the above table shows that excessive heat prevailed uninterruptedly.

Rain.—The concluding table shows that during the week rain has been practically confined to the Punjab, Sind, the North-Western Provinces and Central India, though light local showers have fallen also in Central Burma, Assam (Bhramaputra) and Bihar. In all other parts of India there has been no rain during the week. Of the eighteen divisions which received rain there are eight in which the average actual rainfall of the division amounted to less than one-tenth of an inch, six more in which the fall was less than half an inch, while in the remaining four the rainfall was over half an inch. The heaviest average falls reported were 2.01 inches in the Hill districts of the Punjab, 0.94 inch in the north-west of the Punjab, and 0.63 inch in the submontane division of the Punjab.

The third column of the table shows a trifling excess of rain in Central Burma, Central India (West) and in the west of the North-Western Provinces and a moderate excess over the Punjab and Sind.

The concluding columns of the table show that from the 31st of December 1893 to the 17th February 1894 the total rainfall of the period has been excessive over the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, Rajputana, Sind and several divisions of the Peninsula, while it has been defective in all other parts of India. The greatest absolute excess is shown over the Hill districts of the Punjab where the average normal rainfall for the period is 5.28 inches and the average actual rainfall has been 13.80 inches, but compared with the normal the greatest rainfall has been in parts of the Peninsula.

The only heavy amounts reported fell in North-West India. The sudder station of Bulandshahr received 3.39 inches in one fall on the 17th; Sharakpur (Lahore) received a total of 1.64 inch, the fall apparently occurring, on the last two days of the week; the sudder station of Kangra received 3.49 inches, of which 3.15 inches fell on the 17th; Murree received 2.25 inches and Abbottabad 1.91 inch.

W. L. DALLAS,

Assistant Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

Simla, the 22nd February 1894.

E. C. BUCK,

Secretary to the Government of India.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 24th February.—Showers in parts of Ganjam and at Trivendrum; no rain elsewhere. Sowings of summer crops being made but agricultural operations limited generally to harvesting and watering. Standing crops generally good. Harvest still yields average outturn. Fodder sufficient, and condition of cattle generally good. Prices generally easier except in parts of the Deccan and Circars, where they are slightly dearer.

Bombay.—For week ending 28th February.—Rain in parts of Sind, damaging crops in one district. Standing crops damaged by frost, rust or blight in parts of five districts; prospects otherwise good. Reaping of early or late crops progressing in fourteen districts. Lands being prepared for next season in four districts. Cotton-picking continues in five districts. Fodder sufficient except in one district, and agricultural stock good. Prices steady except in two districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 24th February.—There has been during the week fairly general rain over the greater part of the Province, except Orissa. The rain has benefited the spring crops which are maturing, and has facilitated the transplanting of the spring rice seedlings. The ploughing of land for autumn rice and jute in North Bengal is well forward. The collection of opium has begun with promising results. The manufacture of molasses from sugarcane is in progress. Mustard, peas, potatoes, and tobacco are being harvested. The price of common rice is steady. Cattle are generally in good condition, and there is plenty of fodder and water in all districts except in part of Jessore and Mymensingh. The number of persons in receipt of gratuitous relief in the MADARIPUR SUB-DIVISION of FARIDPUR were:—10 men, 41 women, and 19 children, total 70 against 31 in the previous week.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 28th February.—Weather occasionally cloudy with light rain in some places. Damage to crops by rust is reported from Banda and Jhansi, and slight damage by hail from Sitapur and Bareilly. Prospects are favourable. Harvesting has commenced in places, and opium cultivation is in progress. Sugarcane-pressing continues. Markets are well-supplied. Prices stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 28th February.—Rain has fallen in six districts. Irrigation of spring crops and cultivation of extra spring crops in progress. Land is being prepared for autumn crops in some districts. Condition and prospects of standing crops are generally reported good, but fine weather is now required. The spring crop is said to have been damaged by field rats in parts of Lahore. Condition of cattle is generally reported good, and fodder is sufficient throughout the Province. The poppy crop is said to be in good condition. Prices falling in three districts; stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 28th February.—Storms have occurred in the Southern and Eastern districts with hail in places. Wheat-harvesting begun in the Northern and progressing rapidly in the Southern districts. Prospects bad in Saugor and Damoh where prices are rising, fair in Hoshangabad, Betul, and Chhattisgarh; indifferent elsewhere.

Burma.—For week ending 24th February.—Slight showers of rain have fallen in Amherst, Shwegyin, and Ye-u. In Lower Burma harvesting of the main paddy crop continues in a few districts, and is completed elsewhere. In Upper Burma the monsoon crops have been harvested, and dry-weather operations are progressing satisfactorily. Standing crops with few exceptions look well. The price of paddy has fallen in Myaungmya and risen in Magwe. Fodder and water-supply sufficient. Prices are below normal except in Arakan and Tavoy.

Assam.—For week ending 27th February.—Weather rainy. Early rice-ploughing and sugarcane-pressing progressing. Mustard-gathering continues. Condition of cattle good. Fodder and water sufficient.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 28th February.—MYSORE : Crops and prospects good. Ragi (Eleusine coracana) harvested in the Bangalore district. Rice sown in parts of the Bangalore, Tumkur, and Hassan districts, and harvested in parts of the Mysore and Tumkur districts. Prices slightly fallen in two districts.

COORG : Threshing of rice and coffee-picking almost completed. Forage deficient in some-places, but water sufficient. Slight rise in prices in parts.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 28th February.—BERAR : Weather getting warm. Crops generally in favourable condition. Cutting of gram and linseed in progress in the Basim and Pusad talukas. Cotton-picking and harvesting of jowari (Sorghum vulgare) completed in the Amraoti district. Preparation of land for ensuing crops commenced in Buldana. Weeding operations concluded in Akola. Fodder and water sufficient. Cattle healthy. No material change in prices.

HYDERABAD : No rain during the week. Harvesting of hot-weather crops continues. Cutting of spring crops commenced. Prices steady.

Central India.—For week ending 28th February.—No rain during the week. Agricultural operations completed in Goona, and in progress in other Agencies. Condition of standing crops indifferent in Bundelkhand and parts of Gwalior, but fairly good in other Agencies. The outturn will probably be below average in Bundelkhand and parts of Gwalior. Pasturage good except in parts of Gwalior. Opium in fairly good condition. Prices of food-grains rising in parts of Gwalior and Bundelkhand ; steady elsewhere.

Rajputana.—For week ending 28th February.—Slight rain in Bikanir. Agricultural operations, standing crops, and cattle generally satisfactory. Prospects generally good. Two-thirds of the wheat crop has been lost in Karawli, and a fourth of the crop has been damaged by insects in Dholepore. Pasturage or fodder sufficient. Prices falling in three States, rising in two others, and steady elsewhere.

Kashmir.—For week ending 27th February.—Weather fine. Spring crops flourishing. Oil-seeds sowings re-commenced. Prices falling.

Jammu.—For week ending 22nd February.—No rain. Crops in fair condition. Prices stationary.

Nepal.—For week ending 24th February.—Weather unsettled and cloudy with occasional showers. Prospects good.

† Sir D. Brandis is not on the staff of the College.

[The arrangements hereinafter described are subject to revision under the orders of the Secretary of State for India.]

1. The Royal Indian Engineering College is primarily maintained, under the orders of the Secretary of State for India in Council, for the education of candidates for the service of Government in the India Public Works, Telegraph, and Forest Departments; but it is open, to the extent of the accommodation available, to all persons desirous of following the course of study pursued in it.

India Forest Department Appointments.

2. The Examination usually takes place in June of each year.

3. The number of candidates to be selected annually varies according to the requirements of the Forest Service in India; the figures as regards each particular year will be advertised from time to time. In 1894 there will be six appointments offered for competition.*

4. Candidates for the Indian Forest Department are selected under the following arrangements:—

(a) An applicant must be a natural-born British subject, and must be above 17 and under 20 years of age on the 1st June of the year in which he competes for an appointment. He must be unmarried, and if he marries before reaching India he will forfeit his appointment.

(b) An applicant must send † to the Revenue Department of the India Office, on or before the 1st day of May of the year in which he proposes to compete,—

(1) His name and parentage, a certificate or other satisfactory evidence of the date of his birth, and the written consent of parent or guardian that his name should be recorded as a candidate.

(2) A statement of the places of education at which he may have been, accompanied by testimonials of good conduct, during the last four years.

(c) Applicants will have to appear before a Medical Board ‡ at the India Office, particular stress being laid upon good vision and hearing. A physical test will also be imposed, so as to ensure the selection of persons of active habits and powers of endurance.

(d) The applicants who have successfully passed the medical examination and the physical test will be required to undergo an examination before the Civil Service Commissioners § in the following subjects || (Classes I to III), marks being assigned as follows:—

Marks.

CLASS I.—OBLIGATORY SUBJECTS.¶

1. Mathematics (lower), vis. , Algebra up to and including the Binomial Theorem; the theory and the use of logarithms; Euclid, Books I to IV and VI.; Plane Trigonometry up to and including the solution of Triangles and Mensuration	2,500	} In each of these subjects a candidate must obtain not less than one-third of full marks in order to qualify.
2. English composition	1,000
3. German (400 for colloquial)	2,000

* Probably the number of appointments will not exceed six annually, for some years to come.

† There is no form of application; the documents specified in clauses (1) and (2) should be enclosed in a covering letter addressed to the Secretary, Revenue Department, India Office, London.

‡ With a view to prevent parents and guardians from incurring the inconvenience and expense of preparing candidates who may be physically unfit for the Forest Service, it is suggested that, before any such preparation is begun, candidates be submitted to examination by the medical adviser of the family, or any other qualified medical practitioner, with regard to the following points:—

1. A weak constitution.
2. Defective vision.

3. Impaired hearing.
4. The existence of any congenital defect.

It is to be understood that this private examination is merely suggested to lessen the chances of disappointment, and that it is by no means intended to take the place of, or to influence in any way, the official examination.

On the subject of the standard of eyesight required for the Indian services, a pamphlet has been published, under the authority of the Secretary of State in Council, by Messrs. Churchill and Sons, 11, New Burlington Street.

§ A fee of 4*l.* is required, which can be paid by means of a stamp of that amount. Instructions on this point will be issued to candidates the day before the examination.

|| Reprints of the papers set at previous examinations, together with tables of the marks assigned to the candidates, are published by the Civil Service Commissioners, and can be obtained through any bookseller. The price of each reprint is one shilling.

¶ Attention is invited to the appended Syllabus, giving further details regarding the extent and character of the examination.

CLASS II.—OPTIONAL SUBJECTS.*

	Marks.
4. Mathematics (higher), including Analytical Geometry, Conic Sections, Statics, and Dynamics	2,000	} A candidate may take any two, but not more than two, of the optional subjects. Under "Optional Subjects" Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12, the examination will be partly practical.

CLASS III.—ADDITIONAL SUBJECTS.

13. Freehand Drawing	500	} Either or both of these subjects may be taken in addition to the obligatory and the two optional subjects.
14. Geometrical Drawing	300

(e) From the competitors who attain the above-mentioned minima of marks in obligatory subjects, and satisfy the requisite conditions in other respects, the Secretary of State will select candidates, in order of merit, as probationers to enter the College, where they will be further trained for the Forest Service of India.

(f) If the full number of competent probationers required in any year cannot be obtained from the persons so examined, the Secretary of State reserves a discretion to fill up the deficiency by selecting any other person or persons who may satisfy the authorities of the College that he or they are properly qualified to become probationers for the Forest Service.

5. The course of study for candidates for the India Forest Service extends over about three years, divided into nine terms. During eight terms the candidates will prosecute their studies mainly at the College, and during one term (the sixth), which may last for four or five months, they will visit, under suitable supervision, such Continental forests as may be selected for the purpose. Excursions will also be made for purposes of instruction, both during term time and during part of the vacations. The cost of all such tours or excursions is borne by the Secretary of State (see paragraph 9).

6. Each annual session begins in September, and is divided into three terms, with vacations of about four weeks at Christmas, two weeks at Easter, and eight weeks in the summer, except at the end of the visit to the Continent when the vacation will be shorter.

7. A charge of 61*l.* is made for each term except the sixth ; for that term the charge is 90*l.* for each student, the duration of the term being longer and the cost of students in the Continental forests being higher than for any other term : the amounts must be paid terminally in advance to the Bank of England. Receivable orders, with full directions as to the mode of payment, will be forwarded from the India Office to the parents or guardians shortly before the fees fall due. A student will not be allowed to come into residence until his fee has been paid.

8. A deposit of 5*l.* is required to be paid by each student on admission to the College, as caution money, to cover charges incurred by him for damage to books, instruments, etc., or any College bills outstanding on leaving the College. Any balance over and above such charges will be repaid. This deposit is to be paid with the fee for the first term, making the total payment on that occasion 66*l.*

9. The foregoing payments cover all charges for tuition, board according to the College tariff, lodging, with washing up to a cost of 2*s.* a week, and ordinary medical attendance while in residence at the College. When students are on tour and during the course of practical instruction, whether in Great Britain or on the Continent, the Secretary of State will defray the expenses of (1) board, lodging, and washing (the maximum expenditure on such account being 10*s.* per diem), (2) travelling expenses, and (3) fees to local Forest officers, etc.

Students are required to provide their own class books and drawing instruments. Drawing paper, drawing boards, and surveying instruments are provided by the College.

* Attention is invited to the appended Syllabus, giving further details regarding the extent and character of the examination.

10. The prescribed course of study at present comprises the following subjects: —

I.—Auxiliary Subjects..

II.—Forestry, Theoretical and practical, in all its branches.

11. Every student is required to conform to the College rules, to exhibit due diligence in his studies throughout the course, and to give evidence of satisfactory progress in such manner as may be required, failing which, or in the event of serious misconduct, he will be liable to be removed from the College, or to be sent back from the forest tour, which may entail the loss of his appointment.

12. During the course of study, the proficiency of the students will be tested by periodical examinations, and on the termination of their studies there will be a final examination. Each student may also, at the discretion of the Secretary of State for India, be required to appear before the Medical Board at the expiration of the first year of residence at the College, and should the result be unsatisfactory he cannot claim to be allowed to complete the course.

13. The subjects enumerated in paragraph 10 are grouped in certain main branches of study,* and a fixed minimum of qualification is required in each branch and in the subjects taught during the forest tours, as well as a certain minimum for all branches taken together. Students who obtain these minima will receive the College diploma in forestry.

14. Candidates who have obtained this diploma and are found to be of sound constitution, and free from physical defects which would render them unsuitable for employment in the Forest Department (the final decision on which points will rest with the Secretary of State for India), will be appointed Assistant Conservators in the Forest Department of India in the order of their standing at the end of the final examination. They will be allowed before leaving the College to state their preference in respect to the Provinces to which they desire to be allotted; but the distribution will be made at the discretion of the Secretary of State for India, after consulting the President of the College and the Principal Professor of Forestry, to the several Provinces according to the needs of the public service. The distribution will be made on the understanding that officers are at all times liable to be transferred from one province to another at the pleasure of the Government of India.

15. Within a month of his nomination as Assistant Conservator, each nominee must sign articles of agreement describing the terms and conditions of his appointment; he must embark for India when required to do so by the Secretary of State, and will be provided with a free passage. Failure to embark at the stated time will, in the absence of satisfactory explanation, lead to forfeiture of appointment.

16. The pay of an Assistant Conservator of Forests will begin from the date of arrival in India. Probationers who acquit themselves creditably during their course at Cooper's Hill College will begin on a salary of Rs 350 a month. It will, however, rest with the President of the College, in consultation with the Principal Professor of Forestry, to decide whether any of the probationers, though they have obtained the College diploma in Forestry, have failed to deserve that rate of initial salary. Such probationers, if any, will begin on a salary of Rs 250 a month; and this difference of salary will continue until the first departmental examination is passed in India.

17. Promotion, leave, and pension will be regulated by the rules of the service for the time being. The more favourable pension rules have recently been extended to Forest officers appointed from England, who are thus placed on an equality with Public Works officers appointed from Cooper's Hill College. Any Forest officer, who has rendered not less than three years' approved service at head of his department, has also been made eligible for an extra pension of Rs 1,000 per annum. A copy of the Regulations relative to these matters can be seen on application either at the Library or the Record Department of the India Office; the principal rules, however, are contained in the Abstract of the Civil Service Regulations, as given in the "India Office List," or the "India List," published respectively by Messrs. Harrison and Sons, 59, Pall Mall, and Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co., 13, Waterloo Place, S. W., either of which can be procured through any bookseller.

* For details see Royal Indian Engineering College Calendar.

18. Every candidate, before proceeding to India, will be required to furnish to the President of the College satisfactory evidence of his competency in riding.

GENERAL RULES.

19. Chemical, physical, and botanical laboratories, a forestry museum, a forest nursery, a library, and gymnasium are attached to the College. Means are also provided for the practice of photography. Students making use of the laboratories are supplied with the needful apparatus.

20. The responsibility for the discipline and management of the College and for the superintendence of the studies is vested in the President, under the control of the Secretary of State for India.

21. The students are distributed in divisions, under personal charge of one of the Professors or Instructors selected by the President; such tutor being responsible for exercising the proper degree of personal supervision over each student in his division, and for conducting necessary correspondence with the student's parents or guardians.

22. Each student residing in the College is provided with a separate room, and with fuel and light, also with the necessary attendance. Furniture and bedding are supplied by the College, but students are required to provide their own towels and bed linen. Meals are taken in hall. Wine and beer are not included in the ordinary fare, but can be obtained from the College cellar at fixed prices.

23. A chapel is attached to the College, which the students residing in the College are expected to attend, unless specially exempted.

24. Every student will be required to go through a course of gymnastics and also of military exercises, including the use of the rifle.

25. Students are required to wear academical dress, under such regulations as may be prescribed from time to time.

Students not nominated for the Indian Forest Service, but desirous of obtaining a Diploma in Forestry from Cooper's Hill College.

26. Students not nominated for the Indian Forest Service may be received into the College, as far as the available accommodation permits. Such students may pass through the course of instruction prescribed for the nominees of the Indian Forest Service, as detailed above, or they may be permitted to participate in the instruction given in certain subjects only. On attaining the prescribed minima of marks in the several branches of study and in totals as laid down above, they will receive, as the case may require, either the College diploma in Forestry or special certificates showing in what subjects they have followed the instruction, and with what result.

27. Candidates who desire to be admitted under paragraph 26 may submit the necessary application at any time, but not later than the 15th day of June of the year named for admission, except with the special permission of the President. The application must be made on the prescribed forms, which can be obtained from the Secretary of the College.

28. Candidates whose applications are found satisfactory as to character and in other respects will be required to undergo an examination, to be held at the College, about the last week in June of the year for admission. The object of the examination will be to ascertain whether the candidate is qualified to follow the course of instruction with advantage (or certain parts of it, as the case may be). Candidates who do not come up to the required standard will not be admitted to the College.

The President may dispense with the whole or any portion of this examination in the case of a candidate who produces an University diploma, or other similar certificate granted by a recognized examining body.

29. Candidates admitted to the College under paragraph 26, who propose to pass through the full prescribed course of study, will be required to pay the same fees in every respect as those paid by the nominees for the Indian Forest Service. Candidates who do not become resident, and are admitted only to certain subjects of study, will be required to pay the fees which may be fixed in each special case in consideration of the extent of their studies. The candidates of both classes will be required to abide by the general rules of the College.

FOREST EXAMINATION.

SYLLABUS

Showing the extent and character of the Forest Examination.

In a letter addressed to the Civil Service Commissioners on the subject of the examinations for admission into the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, and the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, the Director General of Military Education observes :—" The main object to be borne in mind with reference to the Entrance Examination is to secure a youth who has had a thoroughly well-grounded liberal education as an English gentleman. Any curriculum which renders those who are unsuccessful unfit for other professions is greatly to be deprecated." The Regulations for the Forest Examination, which follow the lines of the Sandhurst Examination, are intended to provide a test that the candidates have received such an education as is indicated in these words. By these Regulations certain of the subjects specified are prescribed as obligatory for all competitors, while, in the choice of the subjects described as optional, allowance is made for varieties of taste and inclination in each candidate. In view of the influence which the Regulations must necessarily exercise on the education of candidates for admission to the public service, the Civil Service Commissioners deem it expedient to specify, with more fulness than in the Regulations themselves, the character of the examination which the candidates will be called upon to undergo.

CLASS I.

(OBLIGATORY SUBJECTS.)

Mathematics.—The extent of the examination will be as defined in the Regulations.

English Composition.—An Essay to be written on one of several subjects specified by the Civil Service Commissioners on their Examination Paper.

German.—There will be translations of unseen passages from German into English, and from English into German; the knowledge of pronunciation will be tested by dictation and the vivâ voce examination. The passages for translation will be taken mainly from standard authors (Schiller, Lessing, Alexander v. Humboldt, Ranke, etc.); and a few simple questions may be asked on the passages set, as to the structure and character of the language, and allusions of obvious and general interest.

CLASS II.

(OPTIONAL SUBJECTS.)

Higher Mathematics.—The extent of the examination will be as defined in the Regulations.

Latin.—Passages will be set for translation into English selected from the authors usually read in schools. Passages from English authors will be given for translation into Latin prose and verse, but candidates will be allowed, in the place of verse composition, to answer questions of a simple character, which will test whether they possess a fundamental knowledge of the grammar of the language, and such an elementary acquaintance with Roman History as is required for the intelligent study of the books they have read.

Greek.—Passages will be set for translation into English from the authors usually read in schools, and in other respects the examination will proceed on the same lines as in Latin.

French.—The passages for translation will be taken from standard authors (Corneille, Madame de Sévigné, Guizot, Taine, etc.), and in other respects the examination will proceed on the same lines as in German.

English History.—The General Paper in this subject will test whether the candidates are accurately acquainted with the facts of English History, and also possess an intelligent knowledge of the meaning of the facts. The paper on the fixed period will, of course, require from the candidates more minute knowledge than the General Paper.

Botany, Chemistry, Physics, Physical Geography, and Geology.—The standard of examination in these subjects will be such as may be reasonably expected from the education given at schools possessing appliances for practical instruction, such as a laboratory, etc. A considerable portion of the marks will be allotted for the proficiency shown in the practical part of the examination.

GENERAL.

Handwriting.—In estimating the papers of candidates, a limited number of marks, namely, 100 out of the maximum allotted to each subject, is assigned for handwriting.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy be forwarded, for information, to the Governments of Madras and Bombay, the Local Governments and Administrations noted in the margin, the Inspector-General of Forests, and the Comptroller and Auditor General.

Ordered, also, that a copy be forwarded to the Foreign Department for communication to the Agent to the Governor General in Baluchistan; and that these papers be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

SCHEDULE I.—ACTS REPEALED.

SCHEDULES II, III AND IV.—IMPORT TARIFF.

SCHEDULE V.—EXPORT TARIFF.

An Act to amend the law relating to Customs-duties, and for other purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the duties of customs on goods imported and exported by sea, and to provide for the levy of duties on goods crossing the frontier of certain Foreign European Settlements in India and of the territories of certain Native Chiefs ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Title, extent and Tariff Act, 1894.
commencement.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India except Aden and Perim ; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

2. (1) The Acts mentioned in the first schedule are repealed to the extent specified therein :

(2) But all notifications published, and rules and orders made, under any of those Acts, and in force immediately before the commencement of this Act, shall, so far as they are consistent herewith, be deemed to have been respectively published and made under this Act : and

(3) All references made to the Indian Tariff Act, 1875, and the Indian Tariff Act, 1882, in Acts or Regulations passed before the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to be made to this Act. XVI of 1875.
XI of 1882.

(4) Nothing in this Act shall authorize the levy of duties of customs on any article carried from one customs-port in British India to another such port, except salt, opium and spirit.

3. There shall be levied and collected, in every port to which this Act applies, the duties specified in the second, third, fourth and fifth schedules.

4. On all pepper exported by sea from the port of Cochin there shall be levied such duty not exceeding nine rupees per khandi as the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council may determine; and at the close of each year, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Customs-Collector at the said port shall, after deducting the expenses of collection, pay the duty collected under this section to the Governments of Travancore and Cochin in such proportion and in such manner as the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council may direct.

5. (1) Duties of customs shall be levied at the rates respectively prescribed in the second, third and fourth schedules on goods passing by land out of, and in the fifth schedule on goods passing by land into,—

(a) Foreign European Settlements in India;

(b) any territory declared, under the power hereinafter in this section conferred, to be foreign territory.

(2) Subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council and the Governor of Bombay in Council may, by notification in the local official Gazette, respectively, declare that the territory of any Native Chief situate within, or bordering on, the territories respectively administered by such Governors, but not subject to the jurisdiction of the Courts and Civil authorities of such territories, shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to be foreign territory.

(3) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare that the territory of any other Native Chief shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to be foreign territory.

6. In Act No. XVI of 1863, section 1, for the words "calculated at ten" the words "not exceeding five" shall be substituted.

7. (1) Salt, opium and spirit imported from any port in British India, and protected by the certificate of an officer empowered in that behalf by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, are chargeable with only the amount, if any, by which the duty leviable thereon under the third schedule exceeds the duty shown by such certificate to have been already paid in respect thereof.

(2) The amount, if any, paid to the Government as the price of such salt or opium is not duty within the meaning of this section.

(3) Nothing in this section applies to spirit which is exported under bond for excise-duty from one customs-port to another customs-port under the provisions of Chapter XIV of the Sea Customs Act, 1878.

VIII of 1878.

8. So far as regards the Presidency of Fort Saint George, the unrepealed provisions of Act No. VI of 1844, and, so far as regards the Presidency of Bombay, the unrepealed provisions of Act No. XXIX of 1857, relating to the levy of duties and to dutiable goods, shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to duties levied and goods liable to duty under or by virtue of section 5, sub-section (1), clause (b).

9. All notifications published under this Act may be cancelled by the authority publishing the same.

10. In the event of any duty of customs or excise on any article being imposed, increased, decreased or remitted after the making of any contract for the sale of such article without stipulation as to the payment of duty where duty was not chargeable at the time of the making of the contract, or for the sale of such article duty-paid where duty was chargeable at that time,—

(a) if such imposition or increase so takes effect that the duty or increased duty, as the case may be, is paid, the seller may add so much to the contract price as will be equivalent to the duty or increase of duty, and he shall be entitled to be paid and to sue for and recover such addition, and

(b) if such decrease or remission so takes effect that the decreased duty only or no duty, as the case may be, is paid, the purchaser may deduct so much from the contract-price as will be equivalent to the decrease of duty or remitted duty, and he shall not be liable to pay or be sued for or in respect of such deduction.

11. In the second paragraph of section 23 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, the words "with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council" shall be inserted after the word "may."

generally and from the Governments of Madras and Bombay particularly. These amendments are indicated in italics in the Bill annexed to this Report. We have also considered suggestions made by independent bodies interested in the Bill.

3. Section 3.—In several sections of the Bill we have found it desirable to assign certain functions to Medical Subordinates as well as to Medical Officers. We have therefore added a definition of "Medical Subordinate," whom we propose to describe as an Assistant Surgeon, Apothecary or qualified Hospital Assistant. Such Medical Subordinate need not be exclusively a prison-officer, but may be a qualified Assistant attached to a dispensary in or near the place where the prison is situated. We have made it clear that the Medical Officer is, even in respect of sanitary administration, to be subject to the control of the Superintendent.

4. Section 15.—We have required detailed particulars respecting deaths of prisoners to be recorded in a register by the Medical Officer.

5. Section 23.—In order to remove a difficulty which has arisen in the construction of existing law, we have expressly provided that prisoners who have been appointed as officers of prisons shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

6. Section 28.—We have made provision for the confinement of prisoners in cells as an ordinary mode of detention in prison. The circumstances of Indian jails may not, at the present time, allow of this being done, but we have thought it right to recognize separation of prisoners, especially at night time, as a desirable object to be worked up to.

7. Section 40.—We have added to this section a provision suggested by No. 54 of the Regulations for Government of Prisons in Schedule I to the Prison Act, 1865 (28 & 29 Vict., c. 126), with respect to interviews between prisoners and their legal advisers.

8. Section 42.—We have now provided for the punishment of persons improperly removing prohibited articles (such as unauthorised letters) from a prison as well as of persons improperly introducing such articles into a prison.

9. Section 50.—We have provided that change of labour as a punishment shall not be enforced without medical advice.

10. Section 55.—We have introduced this section to cover the case of prisoners who are being transferred from one prison to another or are engaged on extra-mural duty. Such prisoners are to be deemed to be in prison and are to be subject to all the same incidents as if they were actually in prison. This provision follows the law as already expressed in Bombay and other enactments, and is obviously necessary.

11. Section 57, sub-section (1).—We have not preserved in the Bill the obligation imposed by the present law to keep in fetters for the first three months prisoners sentenced to transportation, but have left to be determined by rules the circumstances in which such prisoners may be confined in fetters.

12. Section 59.—We have added to section 59 a clause enabling the Governor General in Council to define the circumstances, and regulate the conditions, under which prisoners in danger of death may be released.

13. Sections 59 and 60.—We have provided in these sections for the recognition of the practice which now obtains of making rules for the transfer of prisoners whose terms of sentence are about to expire, from distant prisons in which they are confined to prisons near to their homes, so that their release, when their terms expire, may be made from the latter prisons.

We have also, following English law in this respect, made provision for rules being made for regulating periods of rest from labour.

14. The other alterations in the Bill appear to require no notice. Such as they are they will be found in italics in the revised Bill annexed to this Report.

THE SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

No. II.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Prisons.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to prisons in British India, and to provide rules for the regulation of such prisons; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Prisons Title, extent and commencement. Act, 1894.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, inclusive of Upper Burma, British Baluchistan, the Santal Parganas, and the Pargana of Spiti; and

(3) It shall come into force on the first day of July, 1894.

(4) Nothing in this Act shall apply to civil jails in the Presidency of Bombay outside the city of Bombay, and those jails shall continue to be administered under the provisions of sections 9 to 16 (both inclusive) of Bombay Act 11 of 1874, as those sections heretofore have been, or hereafter may be, amended by any Act passed, and for the time being in force, under the Indian Councils Acts, 1861 and 1892.

24 & 24 Vict.,
c. 67, and 33
& 56 Vict., c.

2. (1) On and after that day the enactments mentioned in the schedule shall be repealed to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof.

(2) But all rules and appointments made, directions given and orders issued under any of those enactments shall, so far as they are consistent with this Act, be deemed to have been respectively made, given and issued under this Act.

(3) Any enactment or document referring to any of those enactments shall, so far as may be, be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding portion thereof.

Definitions. 3. In this Act—

(1) "prison" means any jail or place used permanently or temporarily under the general or special orders of a Local Government for the detention of prisoners, and includes all lands and buildings appurtenant thereto, but does not include—

(a) any place for the confinement of prisoners who are exclusively in the custody of the police;

(b) any place specially appointed by the Local Government under section 541 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882; or

(c) any place which has been declared by the Local Government, by general or special order, to be a subsidiary jail:

(2) "criminal prisoner" means any prisoner

duly committed to custody under the writ, warrant or order of any Court or authority exercising criminal jurisdiction, or by order of a Court-martial:

(3) "convicted criminal prisoner" means any criminal prisoner under sentence of a Court or Court-martial, and includes a person detained in prison under the provisions of Chapter VIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, or under the Prisoners Act, 1871:

X of 1882.

(4) "civil prisoner" means any prisoner who is not a criminal prisoner: V of 1871.

(5) "remission system" means the rules for the time being in force regulating the award of marks to, and the consequent shortening of sentences of, prisoners in jails:

(6) "history-ticket" means the ticket exhibiting such information as is required in respect of each prisoner by this Act or the rules thereunder:

(7) "Inspector General" means the Inspector General of Prisons:

(8) "Medical Subordinate" means an Assistant Surgeon, Apothecary or qualified Hospital Assistant: and

(9) "prohibited article" means an article the introduction or removal of which into or out of a prison is prohibited by any rule under this Act.

CHAPTER II.

MAINTENANCE AND OFFICERS OF PRISONS.

4. The Local Government shall provide, for Accommodation for the prisoners in the territories under such Government, accommodation in prisons constructed and regulated in such manner as to comply with the requisitions of this Act in respect of the separation of prisoners.

5. An Inspector General shall be appointed for the territories subject to each Local Government, and shall exercise, subject to the orders of the Local Government, the general control and superintendence of all prisons situated in the territories under such Government.

6. For every prison there shall be a Superintendent, a Medical Officer (who may also be the Superintendent), a Medical Subordinate, a Jailor and such other officers as the Local Government thinks necessary:

Provided that the Governor of Bombay in Council may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, declare by order in writing that in any prison specified in the order the office of Jailor shall be held by the person appointed to be Superintendent.

7. Whenever it appears to the Inspector General that the number of prisoners in any prison is greater than can conveniently or safely be kept therein, and it is not convenient to transfer the excess number to some other prison, or whenever from the outbreak of epidemic disease within any prison, or for any other reason, it is desirable to provide for the temporary shelter and safe custody of any prisoners, provision shall be made, by such officer and in such manner as the Local Government may direct, for the shelter and safe custody in temporary prisons of so many of the prisoners as cannot be conveniently or safely kept in the prison.

X of 1882.

The Prisons Bill.(Chapter III.—Duties of Officers.—Sections 8-16.)

CHAPTER III.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

Generally.

8. All officers of a prison shall obey the Control, and duties of directions of the Superintendent; all officers subordinate to the Jailor shall perform such duties as may be imposed on them by the Jailor with the sanction of the Superintendent or be prescribed by rules under section 60.

9. No officer of a prison shall sell or let, nor shall any person in trust for or employed by him sell or let, or derive any benefit from selling or letting, any article to any prisoner or have any money or other business dealings directly or indirectly with any prisoner.

10. No officer of a prison shall, nor shall any person in trust for or employed by him, have any interest, direct or indirect, in any contract for the supply of the prison: nor shall he derive any benefit, directly or indirectly, from the sale or purchase of any article on behalf of the prison or belonging to a prisoner.

Superintendent.

11. (1) Subject to the orders of the Inspector General, the Superintendent shall manage the prison in all matters relating to discipline, labour, expenditure, punishment and control.

(2) Subject to such general or special directions as may be given by the Local Government, the Superintendent of a prison other than a central prison or a prison situated in a Presidency-town shall obey all orders not inconsistent with this Act or any rule thereunder which may be given respecting the prison by the District Magistrate, and shall report to the Inspector General all such orders and the action taken thereon.

12. The Superintendent shall keep, or cause to be kept, the following records:—

(1) a register of prisoners admitted;

(2) a book showing when each prisoner is to be released;

(3) a punishment-book for the entry of the punishments inflicted on prisoners for prison-offences;

(4) a visitors' book for the entry of any observations made by the visitors touching any matters connected with the administration of the prison;

(5) a record of the money and other articles taken from prisoners;

and all such other records as may be prescribed by rules under section 59 or section 60.

Medical Officer.

13. Subject to the control of the Superintendent, the Medical Officer shall have charge of the sanitary administration of the prison, and shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by rules made by the Local Government under section 60.

14. Whenever the Medical Officer has reason to believe that the mind of a prisoner is, or is likely to be, injuriously affected by the discipline or treatment to which he is subjected, the Medical Officer shall report the case in writing to the Superintendent, together with such observations as he may think proper.

This report, with the orders of the Superintendent thereon, shall forthwith be sent to the Inspector General for information.

15. On the death of any prisoner, the Medical Officer shall forthwith report on death of prisoner. record in a register the following particulars, so far as they can be ascertained, namely:—

(1) the day on which the deceased first complained of illness or was observed to be ill,

(2) the labour, if any, on which he was engaged on that day,

(3) the scale of his diet on that day,

(4) the day on which he was admitted to hospital,

(5) the day on which the Medical Officer was first informed of the illness,

(6) the nature of the disease,

(7) when the deceased was last seen before his death by the Medical Officer or Medical Subordinate,

(8) when the prisoner died, and

(9) (in cases where a post-mortem examination is made) an account of the appearances after death, together with any special remarks that appear to the Medical Officer to be required.

Jailor.

16. (1) The Jailor shall reside in the prison, unless the Superintendent permits him in writing to reside elsewhere.

The Prisons Bill.

(Chapter III.—Duties of Officers.—Sections 17-23. Chapter IV.—Admission, Removal and Discharge of Prisoners.—Sections 24-26.) Chapter V.—Discipline of Prisoners.—Section 27.)

(2) The Jailer shall not, without the Inspector General's sanction in writing, be concerned in any other employment.

17. Upon the death of a prisoner, the Jailer shall give immediate notice thereof to the Superintendent and the Medical Subordinate.
Jailer to give notice of death of prisoner.

18. The Jailer shall be responsible for the safe custody of the records to be kept under section 12, for the commitment warrants and all other documents confided to his care, and for the money and other articles taken from prisoners.
Responsibility of Jailer.

19. The Jailer shall not be absent from the prison for a night without permission in writing from the Superintendent; but, if absent without leave for a night from unavoidable necessity, he shall immediately report the fact and the cause of it to the Superintendent.
Jailer to be present at night.

20. Where a Deputy Jailer or Assistant Jailer is appointed to a prison, he shall, subject to the orders of the Superintendent, be competent to perform any of the duties, and be subject to all the responsibilities, of a Jailer under this Act or any rule thereunder.
Powers of Deputy and Assistant Jailers.

Subordinate Officers.

21. The officer acting as gate-keeper, or any other officer of the prison, may examine anything carried in or out of the prison, and may stop and search or cause to be searched any person suspected of bringing any prohibited article into or out of the prison, or of carrying out any property belonging to the prison, and, if any such article or property be found, shall give immediate notice thereof to the Jailer.
Duties of gate-keeper.

22. Officers subordinate to the Jailer shall not be absent from the prison without leave from the Superintendent or from the Jailer.
Subordinate officers not to be absent without leave.

23. Prisoners who have been appointed as officers of prisons shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.
Convict officers.

XLV of 1860.

CHAPTER IV.

ADMISSION, REMOVAL AND DISCHARGE OF PRISONERS.

24. (1) Whenever a prisoner is admitted into a prison, he shall be searched, and all weapons and prohibited articles shall be taken from him.
Prisoners to be examined on admission.

(2) Every criminal prisoner shall also, as soon as possible after admission, be examined under the general or special orders of the Medical Officer, who shall enter or cause to be entered in a book, to be kept by the Jailer, a record of the state of the prisoner's health, and of any wounds or marks on his person, the class of labour he is fit for if sentenced to rigorous imprisonment, and any observations which the Medical Officer thinks fit to add.

(3) In the case of female prisoners the search and examination shall be carried out by the matron under the general or special orders of the Medical Officer.

25. All money or other articles in respect whereof no order of a competent Court has been made, and which may with proper authority be brought into the prison by any criminal prisoner or sent to the prison for his use, shall be placed in the custody of the Jailer.
Effects of prisoners.

26. (1) All prisoners, previously to being removed to any other prison, shall be examined by the Medical Officer.
Removal and discharge of prisoners.

(2) No prisoner shall be removed from one prison to another unless the Medical Officer certifies that the prisoner is free from any illness rendering him unfit for removal.

(3) No prisoner shall be discharged against his will from prison, if labouring under any acute or dangerous distemper, nor until, in the opinion of the Medical Officer, such discharge is safe.

CHAPTER V.

DISCIPLINE OF PRISONERS.

27. The requisitions of this Act with respect to the separation of prisoners are as follows:—
Separation of prisoners.

(1) in a prison containing female as well as male prisoners the females shall be imprisoned in separate buildings, or separate parts of the same building, in such manner as to prevent their seeing, or conversing or holding any intercourse with, the male prisoners;

(2) in a prison where male prisoners under the age of eighteen are confined, means shall be provided for separating them altogether from the other prisoners and for separating those of them who have arrived at the age of puberty from those who have not;

(3) unconvicted criminal prisoners shall be kept apart from convicted criminal prisoners; and

(4) civil prisoners shall be kept apart from criminal prisoners.

The Prisons Bill.

(Chapter V.—Discipline of Prisoners—Sections 28-30. Chapter VI.—Food, Clothing and Bedding of Civil and Unconvicted Criminal Prisoners.—Sections 31-33.) (Chapter VII.—Employment of Prisoners.—Sections 34-36.)

28. Subject to the requirements of the last Association and foregoing section, convicted segregation of pri- ed criminal prisoners may soners. be confined either in association or individually in cells or partly in one way and partly in the other.

29. No cell shall be used for solitary confinement unless it is furnished with the means of enabling the prisoner to communicate at any time with an officer of the prison, and every prisoner so confined in a cell for more than twenty-four hours, whether as a punishment or otherwise, shall be visited at least once a day by the Medical Officer or Medical Subordinate.

30. (1) Every prisoner under sentence of death shall, immediately on his arrival in the prison after sentence, be searched by, or by order of, the Jailer, and all articles shall be taken from him which the Jailer deems it dangerous or inexpedient to leave in his possession.

(2) Every such prisoner shall be confined in a cell apart from all other prisoners, and shall be placed by day and by night under the charge of a guard.

CHAPTER VI.

FOOD, CLOTHING AND BEDDING OF CIVIL AND UNCONVICTED CRIMINAL PRISONERS.

31. A civil prisoner or an unconvicted criminal prisoner shall be permitted to maintain himself, and to purchase, or receive from private sources at proper hours, food, clothing, bedding or other necessities, but subject to examination and to such rules as may be approved by the Inspector General.

32. No part of any food, clothing, bedding or other necessities belonging to any civil or unconvicted criminal prisoner shall be given, hired or sold to any other prisoner; and any prisoner transgressing the provisions of this section shall lose the privilege of purchasing food or receiving it from private sources, for such time as the Superintendent thinks proper.

33. (1) Every civil prisoner and unconvicted criminal prisoner unable to provide himself with sufficient clothing and bedding shall be supplied by the Superintendent with such clothing and bedding as may be necessary.

(2) When any civil prisoner has been committed to prison in execution of a decree in favour of a private person, such person, or his representative, shall, within forty-eight hours after the receipt by him of a demand in writing, pay to the Superintendent the cost of the clothing and bedding so supplied to the prisoner; and in default of such payment the prisoner may be released.

CHAPTER VII.

EMPLOYMENT OF PRISONERS.

34. (1) Civil prisoners may, with the Superintendent's permission, work and follow any trade or profession.

(2) Civil prisoners finding their own implements, and not maintained at the expense of the prison, shall be allowed to receive the whole of their earnings; but the earnings of such as are furnished with implements or are maintained at the expense of the prison shall be subject to a deduction, to be determined by the Superintendent, for the use of implements and the cost of maintenance.

35. (1) No criminal prisoner sentenced to labour or employed on labour at his own desire shall, except on an emergency with the sanction in writing of the Superintendent, be kept to labour for more than nine hours in any one day.

(2) The Medical Officer shall from time to time examine the labouring prisoners while they are employed, and shall at least once in every fortnight cause to be recorded upon the history-ticket of each prisoner employed on labour the weight of such prisoner at the time.

(3) When the Medical Officer is of opinion that the health of any prisoner suffers from employment on any kind or class of labour, such prisoner shall not be employed on that labour but shall be placed on such other kind or class of labour as the Medical Officer may consider suited for him.

36. Provision shall be made by the Superintendent for the employment (as long as they so desire) of all criminal prisoners sentenced to simple imprisonment; but no prisoner not sentenced to rigorous imprisonment shall be punished for neglect of work excepting by such alteration in the scale of diet as may be established by the rules of the prison in the case of neglect of work by such a prisoner.

- (16) conspiring to escape, or to assist in escaping, or to commit any other of the offences aforesaid.

46. The Superintendent may examine any Punishment of such person touching any such offences. offence, and determine thereupon, and punish such offence by—

- (1) a formal warning:

EXPLANATION.—A formal warning shall mean a warning personally addressed to a prisoner by the Superintendent and recorded in the punishment-book and on the prisoner's history-ticket;

- (2) change of labour to some more irksome or severe form;
- (3) hard labour for a period not exceeding seven days in the case of convicted criminal prisoners not sentenced to rigorous imprisonment;
- (4) such loss of privileges admissible under the remission system for the time being in force as may be prescribed by rules made by the Governor General in Council;
- (5) the substitution of gunny or other coarse fabric for clothing of other material, not being woollen, for a period which shall not exceed three months;
- (6) imposition of handcuffs of such pattern and weight, in such manner and for such period, as may be prescribed by rules made by the Governor General in Council;
- (7) imposition of fetters of such pattern and weight, in such manner and for such period, as may be prescribed by rules made by the Governor General in Council;
- (8) separate confinement for any period not exceeding six months:

EXPLANATION.—Separate confinement means such confinement with or without labour as secludes a prisoner from communication with, but not from sight of, other prisoners, and allows him not less than one hour's exercise per diem and to have his meals in association with one or more other prisoners;

- (9) penal diet, that is, restriction of diet in such manner and subject to such conditions regarding labour as may be prescribed by the Local Government:

Provided that such restriction of diet shall in no case be applied to a prisoner for more than ninety-six consecutive hours, and shall not be repeated except for a fresh offence nor until after an interval of one week;

- (10) cellular confinement for any period not exceeding fourteen days:

Provided that after each period of cellular confinement an interval of not less duration than such period must elapse before the prisoner is again sentenced to cellular or solitary confinement:

EXPLANATION.—Cellular confinement means such confinement with or without labour as entirely secludes a prisoner from communication with, but not from sight of, other prisoners :

- (11) solitary confinement for any period not exceeding seven days :

Provided that after each period of solitary confinement an interval of not less duration than such period must elapse before the prisoner is again sentenced to solitary or cellular confinement :

EXPLANATION.—Solitary confinement means such confinement with or without labour as entirely secludes the prisoner both from sight of, and communication with, other prisoners ;

- (12) penal diet as defined in clause (5) combined with solitary confinement as defined in clause (11) ;

- (13) whipping, provided that the number of stripes shall not exceed thirty :

Provided that nothing in this section shall render any female or civil prisoner liable to the imposition of any form of handcuffs or fetters, or to whipping.

47. (1) The Superintendent shall have power to award any of the punishments enumerated in the last foregoing section, subject, in the case of separate confinement for a period exceeding one month, to the previous confirmation of the Inspector General.

(2) No officer subordinate to the Superintendent shall have power to award any punishment whatever.

48. Any two of the punishments enumerated in section 46 may be awarded for any such offence in combination, subject to the following exceptions, namely :—

- (1) formal warning shall not be combined with any other punishment except loss of privileges under section 46, clause (4) ;

- (2) penal diet shall not be combined with change of labour, under section 46 clause (2), nor shall any additional period of penal diet awarded singly be combined with any period of penal diet awarded in combination with solitary confinement ;

- (3) solitary confinement shall not be combined with cellular confinement or with separate confinement, nor cellular confinement with separate confinement, so as to prolong the total period of seclusion to which the prisoner shall be liable ;

- (4) whipping shall not be combined with any other form of punishment except cellular or separate confinement and loss of privileges under the remission system.

49. Except by order of a Court of Justice, no

Punishments to be in accordance with foregoing sections. punishment other than the punishments specified in the foregoing sections shall be inflicted on any prisoner, and no punishment shall be inflicted on any prisoner otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of those sections.

50. (1) No punishment of penal diet, either singly or in combination, or of whipping, or of change of labour under section 46, clause (2), shall be executed until the prisoner to whom such punishment has been awarded has been examined by the Medical Officer, who, if he considers the prisoner fit to undergo the punishment, shall certify accordingly in the appropriate column of the punishment-book prescribed in section 12.

(2) If he considers the prisoner unfit to undergo the punishment, he shall in like manner record his opinion in writing and shall state whether the prisoner is absolutely unfit for punishment of the kind awarded, or whether he considers any modification necessary.

(3) In the latter case he shall state what extent of punishment he thinks the prisoner can undergo without injury to his health.

51. (1) In the punishment-book prescribed in section 12 there shall be recorded, in respect of every punishment inflicted, the prisoner's name, register number and the class (whether habitual or not) to which he belongs, the prison-offence of which he was guilty, the date on which such prison-offence was committed, the number of previous prison-offences recorded against the prisoner, and the date of his last prison-offence, the punishment awarded, and the date of infliction.

(2) In the case of every serious prison-offence, the names of the witnesses proving the offence shall be recorded, and, in the case of offences for which whipping is awarded, the Superintendent shall record the substance of the evidence of the witnesses, the defence of the prisoner, and the finding with the reasons therefor.

(3) Against the entries relating to each punishment the Jailer and Superintendent shall affix their initials as evidence of the correctness of the entries.

52. If any prisoner is guilty of any offence against prison-discipline which, by reason of his having frequently committed such offences of otherwise, in the opinion of the Superintendent, is not adequately punishable by the infliction of any punishment which he has power under this Act to award, the Superintendent may forward such prisoner to the Court of the District Magistrate or of any Magistrate of the first class having jurisdiction, together with a statement of the circumstances, and such Magistrate shall thereupon inquire into and try the charge so brought against the prisoner, and, upon conviction, may sentence him to imprisonment which may extend to one year, such term to be in addition to any term for which such prisoner was undergoing imprisonment when he committed such offence, or may sentence him to any of the punishments enumerated in section 46 :

Provided that the District Magistrate may transfer the case for inquiry and trial to any Magistrate of the first class; and Provided also that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

53. (1) No punishment of whipping shall be inflicted in instalments, or except in the presence of the Superintendent and Medical Officer or Medical Subordinate.

(2) Whipping shall be inflicted with a light ratan not less than half an inch in diameter on the buttocks, and in case of prisoners under the age of sixteen it shall be inflicted, in the way of school discipline, with a lighter ratan.

54. (1) Every Failer or officer of a prison subordinate to him who shall be guilty of any violation of duty or wilful breach or neglect of any rule or regulation or lawful order made by competent authority, or who shall withdraw from the duties of his office without permission, or without having given previous notice in writing of his intention for the period of two months, or who shall overstay any leave granted to him, or who shall engage without authority in any employment other than his prison duty, or who shall be guilty of cowardice, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months, or to both.

(2) No person shall under this section be punished twice for the same offence.

CHAPTER XII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

55. A prisoner, when being taken to or from any prison in which he may be lawfully confined, or whenever he is working outside or is otherwise beyond the limits of any such prison in or under the lawful custody or control of a prison-officer belonging to such prison, shall be deemed to be in prison and shall be subject to all the same incidents as if he were actually in prison.

56. Whenever the Superintendent considers it necessary (with reference either to the state of the prison or the character of the prisoners) for the safe custody of any prisoners that they should be confined in irons, he may, subject to such rules and instructions as may be laid down by the Inspector General with the sanction of the Local Government, so confine them.

57. (1) Prisoners under sentence of transportation may, subject to any rules made under section 60, be confined in fetters for the first three months after admission to prison.

(2) Should the Superintendent consider it necessary, either for the safe custody of the prisoner himself or for any other reason, that fetters should be retained on any such prisoner for more than three months, he shall apply to the Inspector General for sanction to their retention for the period for which he considers their retention necessary, and the Inspector General may sanction such retention accordingly.

58. No prisoner shall be put in irons or under mechanical restraint by the Failer of his own authority, except in case of urgent necessity, in which case notice thereof shall be forthwith given to the Superintendent.

59. The Governor General in Council may for any part of British India, and each Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council may for the territories under its administration, make rules consistent with this Act—

(1) defining the acts which shall constitute prison-offences;

(2) determining the classification of prison-offences into serious and minor offences;

(3) fixing the punishments admissible under this Act which shall be awardable for commission of prison-offences or classes thereof;

The Prisons Bill.(Chapter XII.—Miscellaneous.—Sections 60-62.)

XLV of 1860.

- (4) declaring the circumstances in which acts constituting both a prison-offence and an offence under the Indian Penal Code may or may not be dealt with as a prison-offence ;
- (5) for the award of marks and the shortening of sentences ;
- (6) regulating the use of arms against any prisoner or body of prisoners in the case of an outbreak or attempt to escape ;
- (7) defining the circumstances, and regulating the conditions, under which prisoners in danger of death may be released ;
- (8) regulating the transfer from one part of British India to another of prisoners whose term of transportation or imprisonment is about to expire ; and,
- (9) generally, for carrying into effect the purposes of this Act.

60. The Local Government may, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules consistent with this Act—

Power of Local Government to make rules.

- (a) for the classification of prisons, and description and construction of wards, cells and other places of detention ;
- (b) for the regulation by numbers, length or character of sentences, or otherwise, of the prisoners to be confined in each class of prisons ;
- (c) for the government of prisons and for the appointment, guidance, control, punishment and dismissal of all officers appointed under this Act ;
- (d) as to the food, bedding and clothing of criminal prisoners, and of civil prisoners maintained otherwise than at their own cost ;
- (e) for the employment, instruction and control of convicts within or without prisons ;
- (f) for defining articles the introduction or removal of which into or out of prisons without due authority is prohibited ;
- (g) for classifying and prescribing the forms of labour and regulating the periods of rest from labour ;
- (h) for regulating the disposal of the proceeds of the employment of prisoners ;

- (i) for regulating the confinement in fetters of prisoners sentenced to transportation ;
- (j) for the classification and the separation of prisoners ;
- (k) for regulating the confinement of convicted criminal prisoners under section 28 ;
- (l) for the preparation and maintenance of history-tickets ;
- (m) for the selection and appointment of prisoners as officers of prisons ;
- (n) for rewards for good conduct ;
- (o) for regulating the transfer of prisoners whose term of transportation or imprisonment is about to expire ;
- (p) for the treatment, transfer and disposal of criminal lunatics or recovered criminal lunatics confined in prisons ;
- (q) for regulating the transmission of appeals and petitions from prisoners and their communications with their friends ;
- (r) for the appointment and guidance of visitors of prisons ;
- (s) for extending any or all of the provisions of this Act and of the rules thereunder to subsidiary jails or special places of confinement appointed under section 541 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and to the officers employed, and the prisoners confined, therein ; and
- (t) generally, in regard to the admission, custody, employment, dieting, treatment and release of prisoners, and for other purposes consistent with this Act.

X of 1862.

61. Copies of rules, under sections 59 and 60, so far as they affect the government of prisons, shall be exhibited, both in English and in the Vernacular, in some place to which all persons employed within a prison have access.

62. All or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed by this Act on a Superintendent or Medical Officer may in his absence be exercised and performed by such other officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, either by name or by his official designation.

No. 131.—The following is published for general information:—

No. 80 I.

GOVT. OF INDIA, PUBLIC WORKS DEPT.—CIVIL WORKS, IRRIGATION.

Calcutta, the 13th March 1894.

Review of the Revenue Report of Irrigation Works in the North-Western Provinces for the year 1892-93.

Read—

Letter No. 152 I., dated the 15th January 1894, from the Government of the North-Western Provinces, forwarding the Revenue Report of Irrigation Works in the North-Western Provinces for 1892-93, and the Resolution of that Government reviewing the Report.

OBSERVATIONS.—The Irrigation Works in operation for which Capital and Revenue Accounts are kept are, as in the preceding year, nine in number. Four are classed as Productive, one, the Betwa Canal, as Protective, and four as Minor Works. The Capital outlay on these works during and up to the end of the year under review is shown in the following statement:—

	Number of works.	DURING THE YEAR 1892-93.							Total direct and indirect to end of 1892-93.

2. The total Capital outlay during the year is Rs. 1,27,028 less than during 1891-92. Under Suspense Account there is a decrease in expenditure of Rs. 88,262 owing to a large quantity of stock having been utilized, and under indirect charges there is a decrease of Rs. 50,706, the capitalized value of land revenue re-assessed on all land relinquished by the Irrigation Department up to the end of 1891-92 having been deducted from the indirect Capital charges of the canals concerned.

On the Betwa Canal, there was a Capital outlay of Rs. 9,666 incurred principally on drainage cuts of which 12 miles were opened during the year.

On the Ganges Canal, there was a Capital outlay of Rs. 86,217. The raising of the Puth Bridge was completed; masonry outlets and discharge flumes were constructed on certain distributaries; two miles of new distributary channel and 72 miles of new drainage cuts were completed.

On the Lower Ganges Canal, the Capital outlay was Rs. 2,08,815. The chief item of expenditure was for river training works at Narora; a second fall was constructed in the Malhausi Escape; 56 miles of new distributary and 69 miles of new drainage cuts were opened.

On the Agra Canal, the Capital outlay was Rs. 24,639 incurred principally on distributaries. Four miles of new drainage cuts were completed during the year.

On the Eastern Jumna Canal, the Capital outlay was Rs. 28,813 incurred on distributaries and drainage cuts. Eight miles of new drainage cuts were completed during the year.

The Capital outlay on Minor Works in operation amounted to Rs. 49,926 incurred on the Rohilkhand Canals and on the Bijnor Canals. There was also an expenditure of Rs. 206 on surveys for the Bundelkhand Irrigation Works.

3. The following table shows, for Major Works, the mileages of main canal and distributary sanctioned and in operation at the close of the year:—

* Refunds deducted from Revenue.

5. The gross revenue derived from the Major Works is less by Rs. 1,91,244 than in 1891-92, and the working expenses are more by Rs. 27,474, so that the net revenue is less by Rs. 2,21,718 than in the previous year.

The net revenue realized from the Major Works is equivalent to 5·2 per cent. on the Capital outlay, as compared with 5·5 per cent. in the previous year.

6. The net revenue derived from the Minor Works is Rs. 9,469 more than in the previous year.

7. The following table gives the result of the first year's working of the new Provincial Contract which takes the place of the Contract which expired on the 31st March 1892 :—

		Rs.
Revenue—
Productive Works, gross earnings	.	55,99,355
Minor Works	.	1,86,634

Under the new contract the Provincial Government retains, as before, the direct revenue from Productive Works and Minor Irrigation Works, but has now to pay interest to the Imperial Government on the total Capital outlay from all sources on Major Irrigation Works and on the Capital outlay from Imperial Funds on Minor Works and Navigation.

8. The statement in para. 4 gives the actual collections for the year, and the following table gives details of the irrigation revenue assessed, the total for each canal being compared with the area irrigated :—

9. The area irrigated is 1,799,846 acres, or 245,184 acres less than in 1891-92, the decrease being most marked on the Agra, Betwa, and Dun Canals. On the two latter the deficiency is in the rabi area alone, and is attributed to the plentiful winter rains. On the Agra Canal, there is a deficiency in kharif area also, which is said to be due to the supply of water in the Jumna River having fallen lower, during May and June 1892, than had ever occurred before.

The irrigated area under kharif crop was 706,221 acres, or 39·24 per cent. of the total irrigation, and that under rabi crop was 1,093,625 acres, or 60·76 per cent.

The assessments are lower than in 1891-92 by nearly 6 lakhs of rupees.

The total water-rate per acre irrigated averages Rs. 3·5 against Rs. 3·4 in the previous year.

The occupier's rate averages Rs. 2·66 per acre.

10. The areas under the principal crops were as follows :—

Crops.	1892-93.	1891-92.
	Acres.	Acres.
Sugarcane	216,362	245,667
Rice	174,843	149,015
Indigo	138,521	174,516
Cotton	68,690	88,617
Wheat	655,116	755,786
Barley	68,963	108,821
Gram	34,510	55,557
Poppy	9,816	11,290

The area under rice is the largest yet recorded.

There is a marked decrease under indigo, the explanation given being that the crop has suffered severely from excessive rain for some years past, while prices have also ruled low.

The decrease under barley is attributed to favourable winter rains, and that under wheat partly to the same cause and partly to the adoption of a more correct crop classification, wheat mixed with other crops being included under "Other Cereals" instead of under "Wheat" as formerly.

The estimated value of the irrigated crops is 671½ lakhs of rupees, which is equivalent to Rs. 37·3 per acre and to 81·9 per cent. of the total Capital outlay on open canals.

11. The balance of demands remaining unrealized was Rs. 1,83,106 at the beginning and Rs. 1,21,979 at the end of the financial year. The remissions amounted to Rs. 41,198.

12. The following statement gives the details of the working expenses for 1892-93, and the totals compared with the previous year:—

CANALS.	1892-93.					1891-92.

Per acre irrigated	1.60	1.40

Under extensions and improvements the expenditure amounted to Rs. 2,95,149 as compared with Rs. 2,33,326 in the previous year. It was incurred principally on river training works at the heads of the Ganges and Lower Ganges Canals and on numerous miscellaneous works for the improvement of distributaries and drainage works.

The outlay on repairs amounted to Rs. 9,21,991 as against Rs. 10,01,751 in 1891-92, in which year the repairs to river training works were exceptionally heavy. The cost of working expenses per acre irrigated is high, and the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh have already been addressed on the subject of reducing the outlay under this head.

13. The details of the Establishment Charges shown in the last statement are as follows:—

	Revenue management.	Maintenance.	Total.	Percentage.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Direction	1,65,937	60,701	2,26,638	16.29

Plantation	13,234	13,234	0.95
GRAND TOTAL	10,12,658	3,78,286	13,90,944	100.00

14. The working expenses amounted to 40·4 per cent. of the gross revenue realized, and the cost of Revenue Management amounted to 35·1 per cent. of the working expenses.

15. The length of navigable channel open at the end of the year was 535 miles as in the previous year.

The ton-mileage amounted to about $5\frac{3}{4}$ millions: the estimated value of the cargoes was over 25 lakhs and that of rafts, $2\frac{3}{4}$ lakhs.

The number of passengers carried was only 636.

16. The receipts and charges on account of navigation operations were as follows:—

Canal.	RECEIPTS.		CHARGES.
	1891-92.	1892-93.	1891-92.	1892-93.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Upper and Lower Ganges	16,630	11,763	19,654	14,027
Agra	7,679	6,512	9,993	8,463
TOTAL	24,309	18,275	29,647	22,490

The deficit on navigation operations is smaller than last year by Rs. 3,275 on the Ganges Canals and by Rs. 363 on the Agra Canal, the improvement being in both cases due to reduction of Maintenance charges.

17. The revenue realised on account of water power amounted to Rs. 71,793, principally on the Ganges and Dun Canals. The total mean discharge available at the heads of canals was 10,202 cubic feet per second, and the revenue is equivalent to Rs. 7·04 per cubic foot.

18. The following hydraulic details are given in the report:—

Canal.	Number of irrigating days.	Mean discharge at head, cubic feet per second.	Discharge utilised, cubic feet per second.	PERCENTAGES.
				Discharge utilized.	Discharge escaped.
Ganges	287	3,862*	3,299	85·4	14·6
Lower Ganges	287	3,814	2,194	57·5	42·5
Agra	209	1,024	710	69·3	30·7
Eastern Jumna	303	982	893	91·5	8·5

* Exclusive of the volume passed on to the Lower Ganges Canal.

The high percentage utilized on the Ganges Canal is due to the surplus water, which is run to keep up navigation, being passed on to, and escaped by, the Lower Ganges Canal.

The low percentage utilized on the Agra Canal is said to be due to this canal having been run during the latter half of the rabi season for navigation only, rain having stopped the demand for water for irrigation.

19. The following figures relate to the water duty obtained and the occupier's rate per cubic foot of discharge:—

Canal.	AREA IRRIGATED PER CUBIC FOOT.		Total water-rate per cubic foot of discharge utilised.	Occupier's rate per acre.	Total water-rate per acre.
	Of discharge at head.	Of discharge utilised.
	Acres.	Acres.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Ganges	187	219	872	2.88	3.98
Lower Ganges	153	266	809	2.42	3.04
Agra	104	151	508	2.88	3.38
Eastern Jumna	231	253	1,150	3.41	4.54

The area irrigated per cubic foot of discharge utilized and the occupier's rate assessed are higher than in the previous year except on the Agra Canal.

20. The following particulars relate to the distributaries:—

Canal.	Area irrigated per mile of distributary.	Number of outlets per mile.	Area irrigated per outlet.
	Acres.		Acres.
Ganges	276	7.2	38
Lower Ganges	266	5.4	50
Agra	189	7.2	26
Eastern Jumna	343	5.6	61

Judging from these figures, the number of outlets on the Ganges and Agra Canals appears to be excessive.

21. The measurements of the level of water in wells were carried out as usual. On the Ganges Canal, the levels show generally a distinct fall, while the opposite is the case on the Lower Ganges Canal, particularly in the lower part of the Doab where the rainfall was above the average.

22. The Capital outlay during the year on drainage works amounted to Rs. 1,06,864, and 172 miles of new drainage cuts were opened. The Maintenance charges for drainage cuts in connection with works for which Capital and Revenue Accounts are kept was Rs. 62,900 and the expenditure under Agricultural Works was Rs. 63,954.

23. The following figures relate to the Tarai and Bhabar Canals which are in charge of an officer of the Irrigation Branch. No separate water-rent is assessed on these canals, the amount entered under water-rate being an arbitrary portion of the land revenue which is credited to the canals:—

Canals.	Irrigated area.	REVENUE RECEIPTS.				REVENUE EXPENDITURE.
		Water-rate.	Plantations.	Water power.	Total.	Original works.	Repairs.	Establishment.	Tools and Plant.	Total.
	Acres.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Tarai	25,586	27,152	27,152	20,970*
Bhabar	52,237	1,34,151	...	36,500	1,70,651	30,978	58,223	16,432	1,417	1,07,050

* Details not given in the Revenue Report.

24. The Revenue Report was received by the Government of India on January 17th 1894, or four months earlier than was the case last year; but judging from the dates of the Chief Engineer's report (17th October 1893) and of the Resolution by the Local Government (19th October 1893), it might have reached the Government of India a good deal earlier. It has as usual been well prepared, and the results which it records can only have been attained through good and careful work on the part of the staff of the Department.

ORDER.—Ordered, that copy of this Review and of the Report be forwarded to the Revenue and Agricultural Department for information.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEORGE WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III & IV of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 550 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 680 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which will consist of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI) during the current year, but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

SCHEDULE I.—ACTS REPEALED.

SCHEDULES II, III AND IV.—IMPORT TARIFF.

SCHEDULE V.—EXPORT TARIFF.

An Act to amend the law relating to Customs-duties, and for other purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the duties of customs on goods imported and exported by sea, and to provide for the levy of duties on goods crossing the frontier of certain Foreign European Settlements in India and of the territories of certain Native Chiefs; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Title, extent and Tariff Act, 1894.
commencement.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India except Aden and Perim; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

2. (1) The Acts mentioned in the first schedule are repealed to the extent specified therein :
Repeal.

(2) But all notifications published, and rules and orders made, under any of those Acts, and in force immediately before the commencement of this Act, shall, so far as they are consistent herewith, be deemed to have been respectively published and made under this Act : and

(3) All references made to the Indian Tariff XVI of 1875, Act, 1875, and the Indian Tariff Act, 1882, in XI of 1882, Acts or Regulations passed before the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to be made to this Act.

(4) Nothing in this Act shall authorize the levy of duties of customs on any article carried from one customs-port in British India to another such port, except salt, opium and spirit.

3. There shall be levied and collected, in every port to which this Act applies, the duties specified in the second, third, fourth and fifth schedules.

4. On all pepper exported by sea from the port of Cochin there shall be levied such duty not exceeding nine rupees per khandi as the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council may determine; and at the close of each year, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Customs-Collector at the said port shall, after deducting the expenses of collection, pay the duty collected under this section to the Governments of Travancore and Cochin in such proportion and in such manner as the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council may direct.

5. (1) Duties of customs shall be levied at the rates respectively prescribed in the second, third and fourth schedules on goods passing by land out of, and in the fifth schedule on goods passing by land into,—

- (a) Foreign European Settlements in India;
- (b) any territory declared, under the power hereinafter in this section conferred, to be foreign territory.

(2) Subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, the Governor of Fort Saint George in Council and the Governor of Bombay in Council may, by notification in the local official Gazette, respectively, declare that the territory of any Native Chief situate within, or bordering on, the territories respectively administered by such Governors, but not subject to the jurisdiction of the Courts and Civil authorities of such territories, shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to be foreign territory.

(3) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare that the territory of any other Native Chief shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to be foreign territory.

6. In Act No. XVI of 1863, section 1, for the words "calculated at ten" the words "not exceeding five" shall be substituted.

7. (1) Salt, opium and spirit imported from any port in British India, and protected by the certificate of an officer empowered in that behalf by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, are chargeable with only the amount, if any, by which the duty leviable thereon under the third schedule exceeds the duty shown by such certificate to have been already paid in respect thereof.

(2) The amount, if any, paid to the Government as the price of such salt or opium is not duty within the meaning of this section.

(3) Nothing in this section applies to spirit which is exported under bond for excise-duty from one customs-port to another customs-port under the provisions of Chapter XIV of the Sea Customs Act, 1878.

VIII of 1878

8. So far as regards the Presidency of Fort Saint George, the unrepealed provisions of Act No. VI of 1844, and, so far as regards the Presidency of Bombay, the unrepealed provisions of Act No. XXIX of 1857, relating to the levy of duties and to dutiable goods, shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to duties levied and goods liable to duty under or by virtue of section 5, sub-section (1), clause (b).

9. All notifications published under this Act may be cancelled by the authority publishing the same.

10. In the event of any duty of customs or excise on any article being imposed, increased, decreased or remitted after the making of any contract for the sale of such article without stipulation as to the payment of duty where duty was not chargeable at the time of the making of the contract, or for the sale of such article duty-paid where duty was chargeable at that time,—

(a) if such imposition or increase so takes effect that the duty or increased duty, as the case may be, is paid, the seller may add so much to the contract price as will be equivalent to the duty or increase of duty, and he shall be entitled to be paid and to sue for and recover such addition, and

(b) if such decrease or remission so takes effect that the decreased duty only or no duty, as the case may be, is paid, the purchaser may deduct so much from the contract-price as will be equivalent to the decrease of duty or remitted duty, and he shall not be liable to pay or be sued for or in respect of such deduction.

11. In the second paragraph of section 23 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, the words "with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council" shall be inserted after the word "may."

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to Customs duties, and for other purposes, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th March, 1894:—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend

From Honorary Secretaries, Bombay Presidency Association, dated 3rd March, 1894, and enclosure [Papers No. 1].

From Messrs. Birkmyre Brothers, dated 6th March, 1894 [Paper No. 2].

Telegrams from Chamber of Commerce, Madras, dated 6th March, 1894; from Bombay Trades Association, dated 6th March, 1894; from Millowners' Association, Bombay, dated 6th March, 1894; from Madras Trades Association, dated 6th March, 1894; from Chamber of Commerce, Bombay, dated 6th March, 1894; from Chamber of Commerce, Karachi, dated 6th March, 1894; from Chamber of Commerce, Rangoon, dated 6th March, 1894; from Poona Sarvajanic Sabha, dated 7th March, 1894 [Papers No. 3].

From Messrs. W. H. Harton & Co., dated 7th March, 1894 [Paper No. 4].

From Secretary, Calcutta Trades Association, dated 7th March, 1894, and enclosure [Papers No. 5].

From the Manager, New Egerton Woollen Mills Company, Ltd., dated 6th March, 1894 [Paper No. 6].

Telegram from Messrs. Best & Co., Madras, dated 7th March, 1894 [Paper No. 7].

the law relating to Customs-duties, and for other purposes, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill, as amended by us, annexed thereto.

2. In the eleven sections of the Bill we have proposed no substantive alteration except in section 5, sub-section (r), clause (a), which we have made applicable to Foreign European Settlements in India generally.

3. Schedules.—We have proposed several alterations in the schedules. Those in Schedule I call for no remark.

4. Schedule II—Arms, Ammunition and Military Stores.—We have varied Exception II with reference to exemptions now in force in pursuance of remissive orders of the Governor General in Council.

5. Schedule III, Article 1, Wine.—Following English laws, we have reduced from forty-five to forty-two per cent. the percentage of proof spirit in wines which is to regulate the rate of duty to be levied on them.

6. Schedule III, Article 4, Salted Fish.—We have removed the word “ngapi” as superfluous.

7. Schedule IV, Article 5, Sugar.—We have re-classified “sugar,” leaving duty to be levied ad valorem on all kinds which are not China candy, loaf or crystallised beet. We have added crystallised beet with a tariff valuation of Rs. 14 per cwt.

8. Schedule IV, Article 10, Agricultural Implements.—We have removed this article from separate enumeration in the schedule.

9. Schedule IV, Article 12 (now 11), Metals.—We have proposed to reduce from five to one per cent. the duty on iron and steel of all kinds.

We have also proposed to make the duty on “lametta, single reels,” payable ad valorem; and have added words expressly excluding gold bullion and coin from the list of dutiable metals.

10. Schedule IV, Article 13 (now 12), Oils.—We have added benzoline to the articles enumerated in the definition of petroleum, and have proposed to make the duty on batching and lubricating petroleum five per cent. ad valorem instead of half an anna a gallon.

11. Schedule IV, Articles 30 (now 29) and (new) 38, Flax and Lac.—We have proposed that there shall be an uniform duty of five per cent. ad valorem on all flax and articles made of flax (including linen-thread). We have also separately enumerated lac of all sorts.

12. Schedule IV, Article 38 (now 37), Jute.—We have proposed to remove the exception in favour of gunny-bags.

13. Schedule IV, Article 45, Paper.—We propose that a duty of five per centum ad valorem be levied on paper of all kinds.

14. Schedule IV, Article 61, Wood and Timber.—We have proposed to except railway sleepers and firewood and leave them free.

15. The publication ordered by the Council has been made as follows :—

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to Prisons was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 15th March, 1894:—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the law relating to Prisons was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

From Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 671, dated 30th January, 1894 [Paper No. 1].

From Chief Commissioner, Coorg, No. ²¹⁸180-93, dated 30th January, 1894 [Paper No. 2].

From Mr. P. R. Desai, Pleader, District Court, Ratnagiri, dated 31st January, 1894 [Paper No. 3].

From Chief Commissioner, Assam, No. ^{14 L. L.}791 J., dated 8th February, 1894 [Paper No. 4].

From Resident, Hyderabad, No. 47, dated 10th February, 1894, and enclosures [Papers No. 5].

From Chief Commissioner, Burma, No. 238 L.—4, dated 10th February, 1894, and enclosures [Papers No. 6].

From Agent to Governor General in Baluchistan, No. 877, dated 10th February, 1894 [Paper No. 7].

From High Court, Calcutta, No. 514, dated 15th February, 1894 [Paper No. 8].

From Government, Bombay, No. 1091, dated 15th February, 1894, and enclosure [Papers No. 9].

Endorsement by Officiating Deputy Secretary to Government of India, Home Department, No. 125, dated 21st February, 1894, and enclosures (letter from Government of Madras, No. 346, dated 14th February, 1894) [Papers No. 10].

From Government, Punjab, No. 241, dated February, 1894, and enclosures [Papers No. 11].

Endorsement by Officiating Deputy Secretary to Government of India, Home Department, No. 126, dated 21st February, 1894, and enclosure (letter from Indian Relief Society, dated 16th February, 1894) [Papers No. 12].

From High Court, Calcutta, No. 410, dated 26th February, 1894, and enclosures [Papers No. 13].

From Government, Bengal, No. 781 P., dated 26th February, 1894, and enclosure [Papers No. 14].

From Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 525, dated 23rd February, 1894, and enclosures [Papers No. 15].

From Secretary, Kashi Sujan Samaj, Benares, No. 11 S.S., dated 5th March, 1894 [Papers No. 16].

2. The amendments which we have made in the Bill, though numerous, do not in any material respect affect its scheme, but only give effect to the valuable suggestions on minor matters which have been received from Local Governments generally and from the Governments of Madras and Bombay particularly. These amendments are indicated in italics in the Bill annexed to this Report. We have also considered suggestions made by independent bodies interested in the Bill.

3. Section 3.—In several sections of the Bill we have found it desirable to assign certain functions to Medical Subordinates as well as to Medical Officers. We have therefore added a definition of "Medical Subordinate," whom we propose to describe as an Assistant Surgeon, Apothecary or qualified Hospital Assistant. Such Medical Subordinate need not be exclusively a prison-officer, but may be a qualified Assistant attached to a dispensary in or near the place where the prison is situated. We have made it clear that the Medical Officer is, even in respect of sanitary administration, to be subject to the control of the Superintendent.

4. Section 15.—We have required detailed particulars respecting deaths of prisoners to be recorded in a register by the Medical Officer.

5. Section 23.—In order to remove a difficulty which has arisen in the construction of existing law, we have expressly provided that prisoners who have been appointed as officers of prisons shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

6. Section 28.—We have made provision for the confinement of prisoners in cells as an ordinary mode of detention in prison. The circumstances of Indian jails may not, at the present time, allow of this being done, but we have thought it right to recognize separation of prisoners, especially at night time, as a desirable object to be worked up to.

7. Section 40.—We have added to this section a provision suggested by No. 54 of the Regulations for Government of Prisons in Schedule I to the Prison Act, 1865 (28 & 29 Vict., c. 126), with respect to interviews between prisoners and their legal advisers.

8. Section 42.—We have now provided for the punishment of persons improperly removing prohibited articles (such as unauthorised letters) from a prison as well as of persons improperly introducing such articles into a prison.

9. Section 50.—We have provided that change of labour as a punishment shall not be enforced without medical advice.

10. Section 55.—We have introduced this section to cover the case of prisoners who are being transferred from one prison to another or are engaged on extra-mural duty. Such prisoners are to be deemed to be in prison and are to be subject to all the same incidents as if they were actually in prison. This provision follows the law as already expressed in Bombay and other enactments, and is obviously necessary.

11. Section 57, sub-section (1).—We have not preserved in the Bill the obligation imposed by the present law to keep in fetters for the first three months prisoners sentenced to transportation, but have left to be determined by rules the circumstances in which such prisoners may be confined in fetters.

12. Section 59.—We have added to section 59 a clause enabling the Governor General in Council to define the circumstances, and regulate the conditions, under which prisoners in danger of death may be released.

13. Sections 59 and 60.—We have provided in these sections for the recognition of the practice which now obtains of making rules for the transfer of prisoners whose terms of sentence are about to expire, from distant prisons in which they are confined to prisons near to their homes, so that their release, when their terms expire, may be made from the latter prisons.

We have also, following English law in this respect, made provision for rules being made for regulating periods of rest from labour.

14. The other alterations in the Bill appear to require no notice. Such as they are they will be found in italics in the revised Bill annexed to this Report.

THE SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

The Prisons Bill.

(Chapter I.—Preliminary.—Sections 1-3. Chapter II.—Maintenance and Officers of Prisons.—Sections 4-7.)

No. II.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Prisons.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to prisons in British India, and to provide rules for the regulation of such prisons; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.PRELIMINARY.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Prisons Act, 1894.

Title, extent and commencement.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, inclusive of Upper Burma, British Baluchistan, the Santal Parganas, and the Pargana of Spiti; and

(3) It shall come into force on the first day of July, 1894.

(4) Nothing in this Act shall apply to civil jails in the Presidency of Bombay outside the city of Bombay, and those jails shall continue to be administered under the provisions of sections 9 to 16 (both inclusive) of Bombay Act II of 1874, as those sections heretofore have been, or hereafter may be, amended by any Act passed, and for the time being in force, under the Indian Councils Acts, 1861 and 1892.

2. (1) On and after that day the enactments mentioned in the schedule shall be repealed to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof.

Repeal.

(2) But all rules and appointments made, directions given and orders issued under any of those enactments shall, so far as they are consistent with this Act, be deemed to have been respectively made, given and issued under this Act.

(3) Any enactment or document referring to any of those enactments shall, so far as may be, be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding portion thereof.

Definitions.

3. In this Act—

(1) "prison" means any jail or place used permanently or temporarily under the general or special orders of a Local Government for the detention of prisoners, and includes all lands and buildings appurtenant thereto, but does not include—

(a) any place for the confinement of prisoners who are exclusively in the custody of the police;

(b) any place specially appointed by the Local Government under section 541 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882; or

(c) any place which has been declared by the Local Government, by general or special order, to be a subsidiary jail:

(2) "criminal prisoner" means any prisoner

duly committed to custody under the writ, warrant or order of any Court or authority exercising criminal jurisdiction, or by order of a Court-martial:

(3) "convicted criminal prisoner" means any criminal prisoner under sentence of a Court or Court-martial, and includes a person detained in prison under the provisions of Chapter VIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, or under the Prisoners Act, 1871:

X of 1882.
V of 1871.

(4) "civil prisoner" means any prisoner who is not a criminal prisoner:

(5) "remission system" means the rules for the time being in force regulating the award of marks to, and the consequent shortening of sentences of, prisoners in jails:

(6) "history-ticket" means the ticket exhibiting such information as is required in respect of each prisoner by this Act or the rules thereunder:

(7) "Inspector General" means the Inspector General of Prisons:

(8) "Medical Subordinate" means an Assistant Surgeon, Apothecary or qualified Hospital Assistant: and

(9) "prohibited article" means an article the introduction or removal of which into or out of a prison is prohibited by any rule under this Act.

CHAPTER II.MAINTENANCE AND OFFICERS OF PRISONS.

4. The Local Government shall provide, for Accommodation for the prisoners in the territories under such Government, accommodation in prisons constructed and regulated in such manner as to comply with the requisitions of this Act in respect of the separation of prisoners.

5. An Inspector General shall be appointed for the territories subject to each Local Government, and shall exercise, subject to the orders of the Local Government, the general control and superintendence of all prisons situated in the territories under such Government.

6. For every prison there shall be a Superintendent, a Medical Officer (who may also be the Superintendent), a Medical Subordinate, a Jailor and such other officers as the Local Government thinks necessary:

Provided that the Governor of Bombay in Council may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, declare by order in writing that in any prison specified in the order the office of Jailor shall be held by the person appointed to be Superintendent.

7. Whenever it appears to the Inspector General that the number of prisoners in any prison is greater than can conveniently or safely be kept therein, and it is not convenient to transfer the excess number to some other prison, or whenever from the outbreak of epidemic disease within any prison, or for any other reason, it is desirable to provide for the temporary shelter and safe custody of any prisoners, provision shall be made, by such officer and in such manner as the Local Government may direct, for the shelter and safe custody in temporary prisons of so many of the prisoners as cannot be conveniently or safely kept in the prison.

CHAPTER III.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

Generally.

8. All officers of a prison shall obey the Control, and duties of directions of the Superintendent; all officers subordinate to the Failer shall perform such duties as may be imposed on them by the Failer with the sanction of the Superintendent or be prescribed by rules under section 60.

9. No officer of a prison shall sell or let, nor shall any person in trust for or employed by him sell or let, or derive any benefit from selling or letting, any article to any prisoner or have any money or other business dealings directly or indirectly with any prisoner.

10. No officer of a prison shall, nor shall any person in trust for or employed by him, have any interest, direct or indirect, in any contract for the supply of the prison: nor shall he derive any benefit, directly or indirectly, from the sale or purchase of any article on behalf of the prison or belonging to a prisoner.

Superintendent.

11. (1) Subject to the orders of the Inspector General, the Superintendent shall manage the prison in all matters relating to discipline, labour, expenditure, punishment and control.

(2) Subject to such general or special directions as may be given by the Local Government, the Superintendent of a prison other than a central prison or a prison situated in a Presidency-town shall obey all orders not inconsistent with this Act or any rule thereunder which may be given respecting the prison by the District Magistrate, and shall report to the Inspector General all such orders and the action taken thereon.

12. The Superintendent shall keep, or cause to be kept, the following records:—

- (1) a register of prisoners admitted;
- (2) a book showing when each prisoner is to be released;

(3) a punishment-book for the entry of the punishments inflicted on prisoners for prison-offences;

(4) a visitors' book for the entry of any observations made by the visitors touching any matters connected with the administration of the prison;

(5) a record of the money and other articles taken from prisoners;

and all such other records as may be prescribed by rules under section 59 or section 60.

Medical Officer

13. Subject to the control of the Superintendent, the Medical Officer shall have charge of the sanitary administration of the prison, and shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by rules made by the Local Government under section 60.

14. Whenever the Medical Officer has reason to believe that the mind of a prisoner is, or is likely to be, injuriously affected by the discipline or treatment to which he is subjected, the Medical Officer shall report the case in writing to the Superintendent, together with such observations as he may think proper.

This report, with the orders of the Superintendent thereon, shall forthwith be sent to the Inspector General for information.

15. On the death of any prisoner, the Medical Officer shall forthwith record in a register the following particulars, so far as they can be ascertained, namely:—

- (1) the day on which the deceased first complained of illness or was observed to be ill,
- (2) the labour, if any, on which he was engaged on that day,
- (3) the scale of his diet on that day,
- (4) the day on which he was admitted to hospital,
- (5) the day on which the Medical Officer was first informed of the illness,
- (6) the nature of the disease,
- (7) when the deceased was last seen before his death by the Medical Officer or Medical Subordinate,
- (8) when the prisoner died, and
- (9) (in cases where a post-mortem examination is made) an account of the appearances after death, together with any special remarks that appear to the Medical Officer to be required.

Failer.

16. (1) The Failer shall reside in the prison, unless the Superintendent permits him in writing to reside elsewhere.

The Prisons Bill.

(Chapter III.—Duties of Officers.—Sections 17-23. Chapter IV.—Admission, Removal and Discharge of Prisoners.—Sections 24-26. Chapter V.—Discipline of Prisoners.—Section 27.)

(2) The Failer shall not, without the Inspector or General's sanction in writing, be concerned in any other employment.

17. Upon the death of a prisoner, the Failer shall give immediate notice thereof to the Superintendent and the Medical Subordinate.

Failer to give notice of death of prisoner.

18. The Failer shall be responsible for the safe custody of the records to be kept under section 12, for the commitment warrants and all other documents confided to his care, and for the money and other articles taken from prisoners.

Responsibility of Failer.

19. The Failer shall not be absent from the prison for a night without permission in writing from the Superintendent; but, if absent without leave for a night from unavoidable necessity, he shall immediately report the fact and the cause of it to the Superintendent.

Failer to be present at night.

20. Where a Deputy Failer or Assistant Failer is appointed to a prison, he shall, subject to the orders of the Superintendent, be competent to perform any of the duties, and be subject to all the responsibilities, of a Failer under this Act or any rule thereunder.

Powers of Deputy and Assistant Failers.

Subordinate Officers.

21. The officer acting as gate-keeper, or any other officer of the prison, may examine anything carried in or out of the prison, and may stop and search or cause to be searched any person suspected of bringing any prohibited article into or out of the prison, or of carrying out any property belonging to the prison, and, if any such article or property be found, shall give immediate notice thereof to the Failer.

Duties of gate-keeper.

22. Officers subordinate to the Failer shall not be absent from the prison without leave from the Superintendent or from the Failer.

Subordinate officers not to be absent without leave.

23. Prisoners who have been appointed as officers of prisons shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Convict officers.

of 1860. Code.

CHAPTER IV.

ADMISSION, REMOVAL AND DISCHARGE OF PRISONERS.

24. (1) Whenever a prisoner is admitted into a prison, he shall be searched, and all weapons and prohibited articles shall be taken from him.

Prisoners to be examined on admission.

(2) Every criminal prisoner shall also, as soon as possible after admission, be examined under the general or special orders of the Medical Officer, who shall enter or cause to be entered in a book, to be kept by the Failer, a record of the state of the prisoner's health, and of any wounds or marks on his person, the class of labour he is fit for if sentenced to rigorous imprisonment, and any observations which the Medical Officer thinks fit to add.

(3) In the case of female prisoners the search and examination shall be carried out by the matron under the general or special orders of the Medical Officer.

25. All money or other articles in respect whereof no order of a competent Court has been made, and which may with proper authority be brought into the prison by any criminal prisoner or sent to the prison for his use, shall be placed in the custody of the Failer.

Effects of prisoners.

26. (1) All prisoners, previously to being removed to any other prison, shall be examined by the Medical Officer.

Removal and discharge of prisoners.

(2) No prisoner shall be removed from one prison to another unless the Medical Officer certifies that the prisoner is free from any illness rendering him unfit for removal.

(3) No prisoner shall be discharged against his will from prison, if labouring under any acute or dangerous distemper, nor until, in the opinion of the Medical Officer, such discharge is safe.

CHAPTER V.

DISCIPLINE OF PRISONERS.

27. The requisitions of this Act with respect to the separation of prisoners are as follows:—

Separation of prisoners.

(1) in a prison containing female as well as male prisoners the females shall be imprisoned in separate buildings, or separate parts of the same building, in such manner as to prevent their seeing, or conversing or holding any intercourse with, the male prisoners;

(2) in a prison where male prisoners under the age of eighteen are confined, means shall be provided for separating them altogether from the other prisoners and for separating those of them who have arrived at the age of puberty from those who have not;

(3) unconvicted criminal prisoners shall be kept apart from convicted criminal prisoners; and

(4) civil prisoners shall be kept apart from criminal prisoners.

The Prisons Bill.

(Chapter V.—Discipline of Prisoners.—Sections 28-30. Chapter VI.—Food, Clothing and Bedding of Civil and Unconvicted Criminal Prisoners.—Sections 31-33. Chapter VII.—Employment of Prisoners.—Sections 34-36.)

28. Subject to the requirements of the last Association and foregoing section, convicted criminal prisoners may be confined either in association or individually in cells or partly in one way and partly in the other.

29. No cell shall be used for solitary confinement unless it is furnished with the means of enabling the prisoner to communicate at any time with an officer of the prison, and every prisoner so confined in a cell for more than twenty-four hours, whether as a punishment or otherwise, shall be visited at least once a day by the Medical Officer or Medical Subordinate.

30. (1) Every prisoner under sentence of death shall, immediately on his arrival in the prison after sentence, be searched by, or by order of, the Jailer, and all articles shall be taken from him which the Jailer deems it dangerous or inexpedient to leave in his possession.

(2) Every such prisoner shall be confined in a cell apart from all other prisoners, and shall be placed by day and by night under the charge of a guard.

CHAPTER VI.

FOOD, CLOTHING AND BEDDING OF CIVIL AND UNCONVICTED CRIMINAL PRISONERS.

31. A civil prisoner or an unconvicted criminal prisoner shall be permitted to maintain himself, and to purchase, or receive from private sources at proper hours, food, clothing, bedding or other necessities, but subject to examination and to such rules as may be approved by the Inspector General.

32. No part of any food, clothing, bedding or other necessities belonging to any civil or unconvicted criminal prisoner shall be given, hired or sold to any other prisoner; and any prisoner transgressing the provisions of this section shall lose the privilege of purchasing food or receiving it from private sources, for such time as the Superintendent thinks proper.

33. (1) Every civil prisoner and unconvicted criminal prisoner unable to provide himself with sufficient clothing and bedding shall be supplied by the Superintendent with such clothing and bedding as may be necessary.

(2) When any civil prisoner has been committed to prison in execution of a decree in favour of a private person, such person, or his representative, shall, within forty-eight hours after the receipt by him of a demand in writing, pay to the Superintendent the cost of the clothing and bedding so supplied to the prisoner; and in default of such payment the prisoner may be released.

CHAPTER VII.

EMPLOYMENT OF PRISONERS.

34. (1) Civil prisoners may, with the Superintendent's permission, work and follow any trade or profession.

(2) Civil prisoners finding their own implements, and not maintained at the expense of the prison, shall be allowed to receive the whole of their earnings; but the earnings of such as are furnished with implements or are maintained at the expense of the prison shall be subject to a deduction, to be determined by the Superintendent, for the use of implements and the cost of maintenance.

35. (1) No criminal prisoner sentenced to labour or employed on labour at his own desire shall, except on an emergency with the sanction in writing of the Superintendent, be kept to labour for more than nine hours in any one day.

(2) The Medical Officer shall from time to time examine the labouring prisoners while they are employed, and shall at least once in every fortnight cause to be recorded upon the history-ticket of each prisoner employed on labour the weight of such prisoner at the time.

(3) When the Medical Officer is of opinion that the health of any prisoner suffers from employment on any kind or class of labour, such prisoner shall not be employed on that labour but shall be placed on such other kind or class of labour as the Medical Officer may consider suited for him.

36. Provision shall be made by the Superintendent for the employment (as long as they so desire) of all criminal prisoners sentenced to simple imprisonment; but no prisoner not sentenced to rigorous imprisonment shall be punished for neglect of work excepting by such alteration in the scale of diet as may be established by the rules of the prison in the case of neglect of work by such a prisoner.

The Prisons Bill.

(Chapter VIII.—Health of Prisoners.—Sections 37-39. Chapter IX.—Visits to Prisoners.—Sections 40-41. Chapter X.—Offences in relation to Prisons.—Sections 42-44.)

CHAPTER VIII.

HEALTH OF PRISONERS.

37. (1) The names of prisoners desiring to see the Medical Subordinate or appearing out of health in mind or body shall, without delay, be reported by the officer in immediate charge of such prisoners to the Failer.

(2) The Failer shall, without delay, call the attention of the Medical Subordinate to any prisoner desiring to see him, or who is ill, or whose state of mind or body appears to require attention, and shall carry into effect all written directions given by the Medical Officer or Medical Subordinate respecting alterations of the discipline or treatment of any such prisoner.

38. All directions given by the Medical Officer or Medical Subordinate in relation to any prisoner, with the exception of orders for the supply of medicines or directions relating to such matters as are carried into effect by the Medical Officer himself or under his superintendence, shall be entered day by day in the prisoner's history-ticket or in such other record as the Local Government may by rule direct, and the Failer shall make an entry in its proper place stating in respect of each direction the fact of its having been or not having been complied with, accompanied by such observations, if any, as the Failer thinks fit to make, and the date of the entry.

39. In every prison a hospital or proper place for the reception of sick prisoners shall be provided.

CHAPTER IX.

VISITS TO PRISONERS.

40. Due provision shall be made for the admission, at proper times and under proper restrictions, into every prison of persons with whom civil or unconvicted criminal prisoners may desire to communicate, care being taken that, so far as may be consistent with the interests of justice, prisoners under trial may see their duly qualified legal advisers without the presence of any other person.

41. (1) The Failer may demand the name and address of any visitor to a prisoner, and, when the Failer has any ground for suspicion, may search any visitor, or cause him to be searched, but the search shall not be made in the presence of any prisoner or of another visitor.

(2) In case of any such visitor refusing to permit himself to be searched, the Failer may deny him admission; and the grounds of such proceeding, with the particulars thereof, shall be entered in such record as the Local Government may direct.

CHAPTER X.

OFFENCES IN RELATION TO PRISONS.

42. Whoever, contrary to any rule under section 60, introduces or removes, or attempts by any means whatever to introduce or remove, into or from any prison, or supplies or attempts to supply to any prisoner outside the limits of a prison, any prohibited article, and every officer of a prison who, contrary to any such rule, knowingly suffers any such article to be introduced into or removed from any prison, to be possessed by any prisoner, or to be supplied to any prisoner outside the limits of a prison, and whoever, contrary to any such rule, communicates or attempts to communicate with any prisoner, and whoever abets any offence made punishable by this section, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, or to both.

43. When any person, in the presence of any officer of a prison, commits any offence specified in the last foregoing section, and refuses on demand of such officer to state his name and residence, or gives a name or residence which such officer knows, or has reason to believe, to be false, such officer may arrest him, and shall without unnecessary delay make him over to a Police-officer, and thereupon such Police-officer shall proceed as if the offence had been committed in his presence.

44. The Superintendent shall cause to be affixed, in a conspicuous place outside the prison, a notice in English and the Vernacular setting forth the acts prohibited under section 42 and the penalties incurred by their commission

The Prisons Bill(Chapter XI.—Prison-offences.—Sections 45-46.)

CHAPTER XI.

PRISON-OFFENCES.

45. The following acts are declared to be prison-offences when committed by a prisoner :—

- (1) such wilful disobedience to any regulation of the prison as shall have been declared by rules made under section 59 to be a prison-offence ;
- (2) any assault or use of criminal force ;
- (3) the use of insulting or threatening language ;
- (4) immoral or indecent or disorderly behaviour ;
- (5) wilfully disabling himself from labour ;
- (6) contumaciously refusing to work ;
- (7) filing, cutting, altering or removing handcuffs, fetters or bars without due authority ;
- (8) wilful idleness or negligence at work by any prisoner sentenced to rigorous imprisonment ;
- (9) wilful mismanagement of work by any prisoner sentenced to rigorous imprisonment ;
- (10) wilful damage to prison-property ;
- (11) tampering with or defacing history-tickets, records or documents ;
- (12) receiving, possessing or transferring any prohibited article ;
- (13) feigning illness ;
- (14) wilfully bringing a false accusation against any officer or prisoner ;
- (15) omitting or refusing to report, as soon as it comes to his knowledge, the occurrence of any fire, any plot or conspiracy, any escape, attempt or preparation to escape, and any attack or preparation for attack upon any prisoner or prison-official ; and
- (16) conspiring to escape, or to assist in escaping, or to commit any other of the offences aforesaid.

46. The Superintendent may examine any person touching any such offence, and determine thereupon, and punish such offence by—

- (1) a formal warning :

EXPLANATION.—A formal warning shall mean a warning personally addressed to a prisoner by the Superintendent and recorded in the punishment-book and on the prisoner's history-ticket ;

- (2) change of labour to some more irksome or severe form ;
- (3) hard labour for a period not exceeding seven days in the case of convicted criminal prisoners not sentenced to rigorous imprisonment ;
- (4) such loss of privileges admissible under the remission system for the time being in force as may be prescribed by rules made by the Governor General in Council ;
- (5) the substitution of gunny or other coarse fabric for clothing of other material, not being woollen, for a period which shall not exceed three months ;
- (6) imposition of handcuffs of such pattern and weight, in such manner and for such period, as may be prescribed by rules made by the Governor General in Council ;
- (7) imposition of fetters of such pattern and weight, in such manner and for such period, as may be prescribed by rules made by the Governor General in Council ;
- (8) separate confinement for any period not exceeding six months :

EXPLANATION.—Separate confinement means such confinement with or without labour as secludes a prisoner from communication with, but not from sight of, other prisoners, and allows him not less than one hour's exercise per diem and to have his meals in association with one or more other prisoners ;

- (9) penal diet, that is, restriction of diet in such manner and subject to such conditions regarding labour as may be prescribed by the Local Government :

Provided that such restriction of diet shall in no case be applied to a prisoner for more than ninety-six consecutive hours, and shall not be repeated except for a fresh offence nor until after an interval of one week ;

- (10) cellular confinement for any period not exceeding fourteen days :

Provided that after each period of cellular confinement an interval of not less duration than such period must elapse before the prisoner is again sentenced to cellular or solitary confinement :

EXPLANATION.—Cellular confinement means such confinement with or without labour as entirely secludes a prisoner from communication with, but not from sight of other prisoners :

- (11) solitary confinement for any period not exceeding seven days :

Provided that after each period of solitary confinement an interval of not less duration than such period must elapse before the prisoner is again sentenced to solitary or cellular confinement :

EXPLANATION.—Solitary confinement means such confinement with or without labour as entirely secludes the prisoner both from sight of, and communication with, other prisoners ;

- (12) penal diet as defined in clause (9) combined with solitary confinement as defined in clause (11) ;

- (13) whipping, provided that the number of stripes shall not exceed thirty :

Provided that nothing in this section shall render any female or civil prisoner liable to the imposition of any form of handcuffs or fetters, or to whipping.

47. Any two of the punishments enumerated in the last foregoing section may be awarded for any such offence in combination, subject to the following exceptions, namely :—

- (1) formal warning shall not be combined with any other punishment except loss of privileges under clause (4) of that section ;
- (2) penal diet shall not be combined with change of labour under clause (2) of that section, nor shall any additional period of penal diet awarded singly be combined with any period of penal diet awarded in combination with solitary confinement ;
- (3) solitary confinement shall not be combined with cellular confinement or with separate confinement, nor cellular confinement with separate confinement, so as to prolong the total period of seclusion to which the prisoner shall be liable ;
- (4) whipping shall not be combined with any other form of punishment except cellular or separate confinement and loss of privileges admissible under the remission system.

48. (1) The Superintendent shall have power to award any of the punishments enumerated in the two last foregoing sections, subject, in the case of separate confinement for a period exceeding one month, to the previous confirmation of the Inspector General.

(2) No officer subordinate to the Superintendent shall have power to award any punishment whatever.

49. Except by order of a Court of Justice, no punishment other than the punishments specified in the foregoing sections shall be inflicted on any prisoner, and no punishment shall be inflicted on any prisoner otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of those sections.

50. (1) No punishment of penal diet, either singly or in combination, or of whipping, or of change of labour under section 46, clause (2), shall be executed until the prisoner to whom such punishment has been awarded has been examined by the Medical Officer, who, if he considers the prisoner fit to undergo the punishment, shall certify accordingly in the appropriate column of the punishment-book prescribed in section 12.

(2) If he considers the prisoner unfit to undergo the punishment, he shall in like manner record his opinion in writing and shall state whether the prisoner is absolutely unfit for punishment of the kind awarded, or whether he considers any modification necessary.

(3) In the latter case he shall state what extent of punishment he thinks the prisoner can undergo without injury to his health.

51. (1) In the punishment-book prescribed in section 12 there shall be recorded, in respect of every punishment inflicted, the prisoner's name, register number and the class (whether habitual or not) to which he belongs, the prison-offence of which he was guilty, the date on which such prison-offence was committed, the number of previous prison-offences recorded against the prisoner, and the date of his last prison-offence, the punishment awarded, and the date of infliction.

(2) In the case of every serious prison-offence, the names of the witnesses proving the offence shall be recorded, and, in the case of offences for which whipping is awarded, the Superintendent shall record the substance of the evidence of the witnesses, the defence of the prisoner, and the finding with the reasons therefor.

(3) Against the entries relating to each punishment the Failer and Superintendent shall affix their initials as evidence of the correctness of the entries.

The Prisons Bill.

(Chapter XI.—Prison-offences.—Sections 52-54. Chapter XII.—Miscellaneous.—Sections 55-59.)

52. If any prisoner is guilty of any offence against prison-discipline which, by reason of his having frequently committed such offences or otherwise, in the opinion of the Superintendent is not adequately punishable by the infliction of any punishment which he has power under this Act to award, the Superintendent may forward such prisoner to the Court of the District Magistrate or of any Magistrate of the first class having jurisdiction, together with a statement of the circumstances, and such Magistrate shall thereupon inquire into and try the charge so brought against the prisoner, and, upon conviction, may sentence him to imprisonment which may extend to one year, such term to be in addition to any term for which such prisoner was undergoing imprisonment when he committed such offence, or may sentence him to any of the punishments enumerated in section 46 :

Provided that the District Magistrate may transfer the case for inquiry and trial to any Magistrate of the first class : and Provided also that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

53. (1) No punishment of whipping shall be inflicted in instalments, or except in the presence of the Superintendent and Medical Officer or Medical Subordinate.

(2) Whipping shall be inflicted with a light ratan not less than half an inch in diameter on the buttocks, and in case of prisoners under the age of sixteen it shall be inflicted, in the way of school discipline, with a lighter ratan.

54. (1) Every Jailor or officer of a prison subordinate to him who shall be guilty of any violation of duty or wilful breach or neglect of any rule or regulation or lawful order made by competent authority, or who shall withdraw from the duties of his office without permission, or without having given previous notice in writing of his intention for the period of two months, or who shall wilfully overstay any leave granted to him, or who shall engage without authority in any employment other than his prison-duty, or who shall be guilty of cowardice, shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months, or to both.

(2) No person shall under this section be punished twice for the same offence.

CHAPTER XII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

55. A prisoner, when being taken to or from extra-mural custody, any prison in which he may be lawfully confined, control and employment of prisoners. or whenever he is working outside or is otherwise beyond the limits of any such prison in or under the lawful custody or control of a prison-officer belonging to such prison, shall be deemed to be in prison and shall be subject to all the same incidents as if he were actually in prison.

56. Whenever the Superintendent considers it necessary (with reference to the state of the prison or the character of the prisoners) for the safe custody of any prisoners that they should be confined in irons, he may, subject to such rules and instructions as may be laid down by the Inspector General with the sanction of the Local Government, so confine them.

57. (1) Prisoners under sentence of transportation may, subject to any rules made under section 60, be confined in fetters for the first three months after admission to prison.

(2) Should the Superintendent consider it necessary, either for the safe custody of the prisoner himself or for any other reason, that fetters should be retained on any such prisoner for more than three months, he shall apply to the Inspector General for sanction to their retention for the period for which he considers their retention necessary, and the Inspector General may sanction such retention accordingly.

58. No prisoner shall be put in irons or under mechanical restraint by the Jailor of his own authority, Prisoners not to be ironed by Jailor except under necessity. except in case of urgent necessity, in which case notice thereof shall be forthwith given to the Superintendent.

59. The Governor General in Council may for any part of British India, and each Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council may for the territories under its administration, make rules consistent with this Act—

- (1) defining the acts which shall constitute prison-offences ;
- (2) determining the classification of prison-offences into serious and minor offences ;
- (3) fixing the punishments admissible under this Act which shall be awardable for commission of prison-offences or classes thereof ;

The Prisons Bill.(Chapter XII.—Miscellaneous.—Sections 60-62.)

- (4) declaring the circumstances in which acts constituting both a prison-offence and an offence under the Indian Penal Code may or may not be dealt with as a prison-offence ;
- (5) for the award of marks and the shortening of sentences ;
- (6) regulating the use of arms against any prisoner or body of prisoners in the case of an outbreak or attempt to escape ;
- (7) defining the circumstances, and regulating the conditions, under which prisoners in danger of death may be released ;
- (8) regulating the transfer from one part of British India to another of prisoners whose term of transportation or imprisonment is about to expire ; and,
- (9) generally, for carrying into effect the purposes of this Act.

60. The Local Government may, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules consistent with this Act—

- (a) for the classification of prisons, and description and construction of wards, cells and other places of detention ;
- (b) for the regulation by numbers, length or character of sentences, or otherwise, of the prisoners to be confined in each class of prisons ;
- (c) for the government of prisons and for the appointment, guidance, control, punishment and dismissal of all officers appointed under this Act ;
- (d) as to the food, bedding and clothing of criminal prisoners, and of civil prisoners maintained otherwise than at their own cost ;
- (e) for the employment, instruction and control of convicts within or without prisons ;
- (f) for defining articles the introduction or removal of which into or out of prisons without due authority is prohibited ;
- (g) for classifying and prescribing the forms of labour and regulating the periods of rest from labour ;
- (h) for regulating the disposal of the proceeds of the employment of prisoners ;

- (i) for regulating the confinement in fetters of prisoners sentenced to transportation ;
- (j) for the classification and the separation of prisoners ;
- (k) for regulating the confinement of convicted criminal prisoners under section 28 ;
- (l) for the preparation and maintenance of history-tickets ;
- (m) for the selection and appointment of prisoners as officers of prisons ;
- (n) for rewards for good conduct ;
- (o) for regulating the transfer of prisoners whose term of transportation or imprisonment is about to expire ;
- (p) for the treatment, transfer and disposal of criminal lunatics or recovered criminal lunatics confined in prisons ;
- (q) for regulating the transmission of appeals and petitions from prisoners and their communications with their friends ;
- (r) for the appointment and guidance of visitors of prisons ;
- (s) for extending any or all of the provisions of this Act and of the rules thereunder to subsidiary jails or special places of confinement appointed under section 541 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and to the officers employed, and the prisoners confined, therein ; and
- (t) generally, in regard to the admission, custody, employment, dieting, treatment and release of prisoners, and for other purposes consistent with this Act.

61. Copies of rules, under sections 59 and 60, so far as they affect the government of prisons, shall be exhibited, both in English and in the Vernacular, in some place to which all persons employed within a prison have access.

62. All or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed by this Act on a Superintendent or Medical Officer may in his absence be exercised and performed by such other officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf either by name or by his official designation.

PRISONS BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ANTONY MACDONNELL said:—"With Your Excellency's permission I should like to make a representation to the Council.

"The Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to Prisons have now completed their alterations, the Bill has been amended, and the Report of the Committee is being drafted. It is usual not to publish a Bill which comes from the Select Committee until it has been presented to Council, but, if the usual procedure is followed in the present instance, the Bill if passed into law this session will be before the public for a week less than it would be if a departure from the usual procedure were sanctioned and the Bill published before its presentation to the Council. I therefore beg Your Excellency and the Council to sanction a departure from the usual custom upon this occasion, and allow the Bill to be published in the Gazette of India on Saturday next, though the Report will not, by that date, have been presented."

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said that he thought it would be for the convenience of the public that the suggestion of the Hon'ble Member should be adopted.

The proposal to publish the Bill as suggested in the Gazette of India of Saturday, the 10th March, was put and agreed to.

QUESTION AND ANSWER.

The Hon'ble MAHARAJA PARTAB NARAYAN SINGH OF AJUDHIA asked :—

Whether the Government of India will reconsider the question of providing closet accommodation in each passenger train by attaching a latrine carriage for the benefit of the third class passengers, who, under the existing system, are put to considerable discomfort and inconvenience.

The Hon'ble SIR CHARLES PRITCHARD replied :—

"The question of the extent to which the provision of latrine accommodation on passenger trains should be made compulsory was carefully examined by this Council at the time when the Indian Railways Act, 1890, was under its consideration, and the result of the Council's deliberations is embodied in section 64 of that Act. Latrine accommodation is now provided on all railways to the full extent required by law. The Government of India, as at present advised, does not propose to proceed to fresh legislation on the subject."

INDIAN STAMP ACT, 1879, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, with respect to Policies of Sea-insurance and Sale-certificates, be taken into consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND also moved that in division (a) of article 49 of Schedule I of the Act proposed to be substituted by section 3 of the Bill, as amended, for the figures "0 3 0" where they occur opposite the words "where the insurance shall be made for any time not exceeding six months" the figures "0 2 0" be substituted; and for the figures "0 6 0" where they occur opposite the words "where the insurance shall be made for any time exceeding six months and not exceeding twelve months" the figures "0 4 0" be substituted. He said :—

"I have, with the consent of the Members of the Select Committee, to propose an amendment in the rates of stamp-duty specified in the Bill, which it was considered desirable should be proposed in Council and not effected in Committee.

"The whole object of the Bill is to remove all inducement to insurers to place their insurances with Companies in England instead of with Companies in this country, and with that object we copied, in the differentiation of the stamp-duties on the policies, the words of the English Act. In the two last specified cases—those applicable to time insurance—the rates in the English Act are 3*d.* per £100 for insurances up to six months, and 6*d.* for insurances up to twelve months, being respectively one eight-thousandth and one four-thousandth of the maximum insurable at each rate. The corresponding rates in India would be 2 annas and 4 annas per ₹1,000 insured, and the Select Committee agreed that it was desirable, on the principle on which the Bill is based, that these should be adopted in lieu of the higher rates of 3 annas and 6 annas stated in the Bill.

"I propose, therefore, that the amendment be made."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND also moved that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PRISONERS ACT, 1871, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Prisoners Act, 1871, be taken into consideration. He said:—"When I moved for leave to introduce this Bill I mentioned that it was only intended to meet two or three difficulties which had been found in the working of the Prisoners Act as regarded the dealings with British Courts and Tribunals in Native States. However, when it came before the Select Committee it was thought desirable somewhat to extend the scope of the Bill, but not, I think, in any manner not germane to its original intention; and accordingly two clauses have been put in at the end, and substituted for sections 30 and 32 of the Act as it stands, in order that those sections may apply not only to persons sentenced to imprisonment but to persons sentenced to transportation, as to the removal of whom from one place to another some difficulty has been experienced. With that exception, and also that we have, in deference to a suggestion of the Hon'ble Member in the Home Department, acquiesced in by the Foreign Department of the Government of India, substituted the expression 'under the suzerainty of Her Majesty', in speaking of the subordinate Princes and States, for the expression 'in alliance with Her Majesty', the Bill is practically the same as it was when referred to the Select Committee."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 10th March, 1894.

INDIAN TARIFF BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to Customs-duties, and for other purposes. He said :—

“ The only alteration which the Select Committee have made in the substantive part of the Bill is to amend the section which relates to import from, and export to, foreign European settlements in India. The section hitherto has applied only to those foreign settlements which lay upon the sea-coast, being intended to prevent the use of those settlements as untaxed ports of entry into India. In the more general form which we have now given to the section, Chandernagore will also be included, not that it is intended to take any active measures to erect a customs-barrier around it, but that the Government may possess the legal power to prevent the territory in question being used as a means of evasion of the duties imposed by the present Act.

“ The tariff we have very carefully gone through in detail. The main alterations I shall mention in order. First, we have found it necessary to abandon the proposal I made when I introduced the Bill to impose the full five per cent. duty upon iron. Since the days of the tariff of 1875, at least four large businesses of machinery manufacture have been established in India. Now, imported machinery we all accept it as necessary to exempt; any other course would be a tax on capital, and would be a tax upon our own manufactures and a protection to competitors outside India. But, if we allow machinery to be imported free, it is obviously impossible to tax at five per cent. the materials out of which our own machinery manufacturers construct their machines. It seemed to us there was no way out of the difficulty but to reduce the tax on iron, and with it that on steel, to its old figure of one per cent.

"The next main alteration is that we have included paper among the articles that have to pay duty. This was recommended to us in more than one quarter, among others by the Calcutta Trades Association, and upon consideration we saw no good reason why this particular article should have a special exemption.

"We received a representation regarding that variety of petroleum which is used for batching, in which objection was taken to imposing upon it a special rate of duty. We admitted the objection and applied to it the general rate of five per cent.

"We have received some other representations regarding particular articles on the tariff. We have judged these matters solely from a revenue point of view—that is, we have not admitted as a ground for exemption the mere fact that it was possible to urge that the article taxed was, in some of its uses, applied as the raw material of an Indian industry. On the other hand, we have steadily refused to listen to exhortations to regulate duties so as to produce some particular effect in changing or influencing the course of trade.

"As regards the tariff valuations, we addressed enquiries by telegram to the Chambers of Commerce and Trades Associations. All or most of them have responded by stating that after examination they had no exception to take to them—a remarkable testimony to the judgment and carefulness of Mr. O'Connor, to whose charge were committed the enquiries upon which these valuations were drawn up. In a few cases we have accepted the suggestions of merchants who preferred an ad valorem rate to a tariff valuation. But in not a single instance have we found reason to alter the valuations originally entered.

"Tariff values are things that necessarily fluctuate and require periodical correction; but power is given by the Sea-customs Act to the Governor General in Council to alter tariff values from time to time by notification, and it is understood that this power will be used by having them periodically examined by a competent committee.

"I do not think there is any other point in the Select Committee's Report to which it is necessary for me to call the attention of the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND moved His Excellency the President to suspend the Rules of Business to admit of the Report of the Select Committee being taken into consideration.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT declared the Rules to be suspended.

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND moved that the Report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration. He said that he would reserve any remarks which it might be necessary for him to make till after Members of Council had had an opportunity of expressing their views.

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR moved as an amendment to the Hon'ble Mr. Westland's motion that the Bill be recommitted to the same Select Committee. He said :—"My Lord, the statement laid before this Council on Thursday, the 1st instant, by the Hon'ble Member in charge of this Bill discloses an estimated deficiency in the Budget of 1894-95 of $3\frac{1}{2}$ crores of rupees, while the provisions for increased taxation under this Bill do not amount to more than an estimated income of 1 crore and 40 lakhs. Speaking for myself, I am wholly in the dark as to how the Government intend to meet the balance amounting to over two crores, and without a more complete statement it is difficult to grasp the situation. I invite the Hon'ble Member to disclose his entire programme and explain how the balance to make up the large sum of Rs. $3\frac{1}{2}$ crores is to be met: and, with regard to the rate of exchange calculated at 1s. 2d. per rupee, to declare the amount of Council bills the Secretary of State contemplates selling, and his intentions regarding the adjustment of arrears. Meanwhile I confine my remarks to the income to be provided from custom-duties.

"I have no desire, my Lord, to add to the harassment that besets the Government of India in connection with the present position of its finances, but I felt it to be my duty to record my dissent in the Report of the Select Committee as to the exclusion of duties upon cotton piece-goods, yarns and threads from the tariff schedule attached to this Bill. If taxation upon imports has become a necessity, I am strongly of opinion that this should be levied without any exception or favour to any particular branches of trade. It was stated in this Council some years ago that the arguments in favour of abolishing the general import-duties were even stronger than those which could be adduced in respect to the abolition of the cotton-duties; that the maintenance of the general import-duties, if the cotton-duties were abolished, would, from every point of view, be open to great objection. It was further admitted that the general import-duties involved an amount of friction, scrutiny and interference with trade incommensurate with the revenue produced at that time, and that their maintenance was inadvisable if cotton-duties were abolished. I hold, my Lord, that the same arguments apply to-day, and I go further and maintain that friction may grow into an angry controversy, arising from what may have the appearance of an antagonism of interests between this country and England, if a preference is now shown to the cotton manufacturers by exempting their goods from import taxation at a time when this country finds difficulty in discovering ways and means to meet its financial engagements. It is inexplicable, from purely fiscal considerations, why woollens from Bradford, iron from Stafford, hardware from Birmingham and umbrellas from Glasgow should become subject to tariff, while cottons from Manchester pass in free.

"The present taxation, we have been told, is necessitated by the fall in the value of silver, which we know England has declined to attempt to arrest. India's difficulties will be aggravated if she is forbidden to use the means most suitable to extricate herself from them. The position that the Government of India now occupies is one of some delicacy as well as of difficulty, for the taxation now proposed will do little more than enable them to pay compensation to their officers and servants on account of the fall in the value of their incomes. I recognise this charge to be a burden which our finances have to suffer in connection with the depreciation of silver, to retain for the Empire all the advantages of intelligence, strength and energy, on which good administration and commercial prosperity depend. This compensation is not to be grudged to an overworked and self-sacrificing body of public servants. But I can quite understand that a feeling of dissatisfaction may arise if the payment of this compensation becomes unduly onerous through the system of taxation adopted to provide the amount required.

"The volume of trade in cotton goods and yarns, imported into this country, and which under this Bill are exempted, amounts to fully 28 crores of rupees, which is equal to about one-half of the total imports from abroad. The Hon'ble Member has admitted that a five per cent. duty upon the cotton-imports would probably yield about Rx. 1,350,000, and if, therefore, the Government decide to limit taxation on all imports to a fixed sum of 1 crore and 40 lakhs, the duty upon total imports, excluding salt and liquor but including cotton goods, would not exceed two and a-half per cent. of the value. Such a tariff, or even a tariff of double this amount, namely, five per cent., cannot be considered a protective tariff to Indian manufactures, nor can it be classed as an objectionable duty when raised solely for the purposes of revenue. Therefore there is to hand, without prejudice to any special interests, an income from imports sufficient to meet the prospective wants of the State during the coming financial year, and without endangering the progress and efficiency of the Empire. The amount of import-duty would be so moderate that merchants and dealers in cotton fabrics have frankly said it would not affect trade, and some have stated that the repeal of the duties on cotton goods in 1878 and in 1882 made no difference whatever in their volume of business. I do not say that the tax is desired by importers and dealers, for all people are averse to taxes, and to quote Burke's famous saying: 'It is as difficult to tax and to please as it is to love and be wise ; ' but I maintain that the trade will not object to the imposition of such duties if the income is required for the purposes of the revenue. And I take it that these merchants—who in many instances are agents for the manufacturer—find, as was stated in this Council Chamber thirty-four years ago by no less an authority than a previous Finance Minister, the Hon'ble Mr. Wilson, that an import-duty adds to the cost and is a tax on the consumer, and so long as it is not unduly high to limit trade it is of no inconvenience to the trade. The consumer is not likely to take exception to such a moderate rate of taxation as I have referred to, when the perfect equity of the system of taxation becomes known, and when it is understood that every member of the community from the Governor General downwards to the humble raiyat will contribute equally his share to these taxes. The incidence of taxation at five per cent. ad valorem on cotton-imports would not amount to more than nine pies or three farthings per head per annum, an infinitesimal amount which could be raised with ease and accuracy and would be based on that fundamental principle that the tax which each individual in this country is bound to pay ought to be certain and not arbitrary and should not leave the tax-payers in doubt as to the true amount due from them and thereby facilitate arbitrary and illegal exactions on the part of the tax-gatherer. My proposal now before this Council provides a system of meeting the liabilities of the Empire that the general body of tax-payers prefer, who after all are the parties chiefly interested, and who not only deserve consideration but demand it, and whose grievance will not disappear until they get it. Surely, my Lord, it would be unfortunate to place a measure on the statute-book which runs counter to the wishes of the people and to the public sense of justice, and which in such conditions must prove untenable.

"My Lord, I am aware, as quoted by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, that the opinion was expressed by the Hon'ble House of Commons many years ago that the duties then levied upon cotton manufactures imported into India were protective in their nature and should be repealed so soon as the financial condition of India permitted ; and that Lord Salisbury then impressed this upon the Government of India, hoping that so soon as the finances permitted a reform would be made in this branch of the tariff. This we are aware was given effect to whenever the finances permitted, but it was not to be supposed that the action taken was irrevocable, and that when circumstances altered recourse might not be had to this system of supplementing revenues. Since that date the report of the Indian Famine Commission, amongst other suggestions, urged upon the Government of India the necessity of encouraging diversity of occupations through which the surplus population might be drawn from agricultural pursuits and led to find the means of subsistence in manufactures or some such employments. It was further pointed out that weavers in this country are the most numerous class among artisans who in the event of famine habitually require relief. If it were possible to extend help to this class, it would but be assisting a section of the community that have suffered much by the introduction of powerloom manufactures, through a foreign occupation of the country, which relief should not be grudged. I also consider that the supposed benefit that a moderate import-duty would give to mills working in Native States is entirely mythical, for these mills, chiefly engaged in spinning and not in weaving, do not now number more than nine, and there is no evidence to show that their number is likely to increase. The advantages that have been gained by the people of this country through the introduction of industrial enterprise have been fully admitted, and I need not occupy the time of this Council with a recapitulation. But after all the number of operatives employed in the cotton and jute factories of India, returned at 187,000, is a mere fraction of the vast population of this Empire. With regard to the suggestion that a countervailing excise should be placed upon the outturn of mills situated in British India, I think it would be quite possible to levy such ; but if Manchester, with the help of the economic appliances suggested for her benefit by the leading scientists of the world, cannot compete with manufacturing India at a difference of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. to 5 per cent., it appears to me to be a pure matter of sentiment, and not of practical statesmanship, for the Government now to refuse to recoup the finances by a light or moderate import-duty upon cotton goods.

"I strongly maintain that the maximum would not amount to a protective duty, and that in any case it is justified. The Hon'ble Mr Wilson, an apostle of free trade whom I have already quoted, gave expression to this view many years ago when he stated in this Council Chamber that, if customs-duties cannot be dispensed with on our imports, 'no reasonable man can object to our retaining an old accustomed duty of 5 per cent. on manufactured goods, but when this is raised to 10 per cent., which in effect may often amount to 15 or 20 per cent. on the cost price of the article at home, no one who is not prepared to abjure the principles of free trade can deny that this is a rate which, if it is to be maintained, requires us at once to impose a countervailing excise-duty on every loom in India.'

"Unwilling as I am to allude to the subject in this Council Chamber, it is impossible to deny that there is a growing feeling in this country that India's interests are being subordinated to Lombard Street on the one hand and Manchester on the other. It is believed that through the influence of the former the Empire has been made to feel, to the full, the effects of the fall in the value of silver without being accorded the liberty to deal with the situation as appears to be in her best interests, and that through dictation on the part of the latter she is now forbidden to find for herself a way out of a difficulty by imposing taxes upon herself. It was observed by Lord Cromer, when in charge of the finances of India in 1882, that the wealth of India, like that of other countries, is in proportion not only to the natural resources but to the degree of liberty it may possess in the use of these resources; and, my Lord, he quoted the views expressed by Your Excellency's distinguished predecessor, Lord Northbrook, that 'in all financial questions the true interests of the people of India are the only considerations which the Government of India has to regard.' The exercise of a fair measure of that liberty and the consideration of her interests India now desires.

"Sir John Strachey, in this Council Chamber in the month of February, 1880, very clearly set forth the necessity that India should hold an independent financial position, and so important and applicable to the present position are his remarks that I make no apology for quoting them at length.

'I can imagine,' he said, 'few greater misfortunes to India than the loss of her financial independence, and the acceptance by England of financial responsibility for her Indian Empire. It would signify to India the loss of control over her own affairs in every department of her administration, the possible subordination of her interests to those of a foreign country, and the substitution of ignorance for knowledge in her government. Although some rare instances may be quoted in which, when there seemed to be a conflict between English and Indian interests, it may perhaps be doubted whether India has been treated with perfect fairness, there can be no question that, on the whole, the government of India has been carried on with as honest and thorough a regard for Indian interests as could have happened if India had had a separate national existence of her own. England may rightly be proud of the way in which she has treated her great dependency.

'These fortunate results have, however, been due not only to her justice but also to the wisdom with which she has left to India a separate financial responsibility. England has felt that it would be no kindness to take upon herself burdens which India now bears; to guarantee Indian debts, pay for Indian wars and relieve Indian famines. England has also felt that it was wise in her own true interest to refuse to take into her own hands the control of the £67,000,000 which now constitute the revenue of India. England does not choose that there should be grounds for even a suspicion in regard to the purity of her motives.

'I say this in the belief that India has before her a future of increasing wealth and prosperity, but, if this anticipation should not be verified and her future should be one of financial embarrassment, the loss of her financial independence would bring with it other misfortunes. I trust that the people of England may never find cause for believing that the maintenance of their Indian Empire means the imposition of heavy burdens on themselves.

'If India is ever to have a separate national existence, she must have self-respect and self-reliance, and I am sure that Indian patriots, who with perfect loyalty to British rule may nevertheless have, as they may rightly have, visions and aspirations of a distant future of another kind, ought to be the first to declare that their magnificent country shall bear its own burdens. India expects justice from England, but does not ask for charity. She feels that, with her ample and splendid resources, her two hundred millions of people, her revenue which is surpassed by that of two only of the greatest European nations, she is a source of strength, not of weakness, to the British Empire.'

"And, bringing the consideration of this important subject up to date, Your Excellency's distinguished predecessor, Lord Lansdowne, in another Chamber, lately remarked :—

'Another danger—and I am not sure that it is not the greatest of all—seems to me to lie in the tendency to transfer power from the Government of India to the British Parliament. I admit that in a country of democratic institutions Parliament must be the ultimate source and depository of power. In an extreme case, there is no act of the executive, British or Indian, which can be removed beyond its control. The Viceroy and the Secretary of State have alike to reckon with it, and there is no escape from its authority. It does not, however, follow that because these powers are inherent in Parliament they should be perpetually exercised by it, and it is the modern tendency to exercise those powers continually, and at the instance of irresponsible persons, which in my belief constitutes a grave menace to the safety of the Empire And so it may come to pass that, while we are slowly and laboriously striving to obtain an equilibrium between income and expenditure, or endeavouring to improve the condition of our Indian service, some haphazard decision of our masters on the other side threatens our finances with bankruptcy, or capsizes our most carefully considered schemes for improving the efficiency of the public services. The wrong thing is done, and it is done in a manner that cannot fail to impair the authority of a Government which can carry on its work only if its authority is upheld.'

"These, my Lord, are weighty opinions. We have not a representative assembly to pronounce by vote upon these questions, but we have a public opinion, an enlightened public opinion both European and Native, and we have a free Press and free discussion, and there is a unanimous verdict from these sources averse to the decision that has brought about the exemption of cotton manufactures from taxation. It is a feeling that is not likely to subside until the Government of India uses its influence to have this cause of grievance removed.

"I submit that a duty to include all imports would not be an inappropriate system of taxation for India in an emergency like the present if it lead, as may be expected—under the pressure of the divers interests affected—to a more vigilant watch being kept, both here and at home, upon expenditure and revenue, with the object of one day getting the taxation removed.

"In conclusion, my Lord, I would urge that for the purposes of revenue, made necessary by the present financial exigencies of the State, the levy of a duty upon imports is an appropriate measure for Your Excellency's Government to adopt; but I would also urge that, as it would be inconsistent with the best traditions of British administration to show any favour to particular industries, the assessment should include the imports of cotton fabrics, yarns and thread. So strong and so universal is the feeling as to the inadequacy and unfairness of a Tariff Bill which exempts cotton goods while including all other manufactures that I have felt compelled not to rest content with a mere protest, but to take the vote of this Council as to whether the Bill should be proceeded with in its present unsatisfactory condition, or be referred back to the Select Committee for consideration."

The Hon'ble MR. LEE-WARNER said :—"My Lord, I am the junior member of one of the famous 'three divisions' of Your Lordship's Council and the humble recipient of a copy of a resolution which was passed at a public meeting on Thursday. The learned and able gentleman who proposed that resolution devoted much of his speech to an examination of the duties and position of an official member of this Council who is not a member of the Executive Government. My mind at once reverted to the sittings in the old Miracle plays, and I wondered whether the supporters of the resolution would seat me in the upper, central or lower regions. When presently I was reassured by observing that official members were credited with 'consciences,' my satisfaction was soon corrected by the learned gentleman's sum total—'I cannot for myself conceive his voting against his convictions and passing the Act without amendment.' So apt are we all, even the most learned, to denote dependence on me as independence, conscience and convictions as my conscience, and orthodoxy as my doxy.

"I shall, I trust, whenever I vote in this Council or elsewhere, vote according to my own independent convictions without losing respect for the convictions of others and specially of large bodies of my fellow countrymen: and my convictions, which are possibly misguided, lead me to the conclusion which I shall proceed to indicate.

"I agree with my hon'ble friend Mr. Playfair that, so far as it is permissible to apply the phrase 'public opinion' to the supposed sentiments of several scores of millions (who are not aware that the question of imposing cotton-duties is under discussion, nor aware of the existence of this Council), the articulate voice of India, whether European or Native, is unanimously raised against dictation from Lancashire and in favour of the intention of the motion now before us. There are no doubt, however, objections from even the Indian point of view to such duties, and my own experience of the country induces me to believe that the action taken by Lord Ripon's Government found many supporters at the time whose 'consciences and convictions' were above suspicion. But I admit that the Indian vote to-day is solidly cast in favour of the duties, and perhaps justly so. Still there is and must be another side to the question, and it is a commonplace that questions of tariff and duties on trade and commerce concern Great Britain as well as India. It seems to me that British opinion on this subject is a factor in the decision, that it is an adverse factor, and that it is a potent factor. That it is a factor is a self-evident proposition. I do not believe that there is a nation in Europe which is practically free in the settlement of its tariff. Commerce is an international interest, and no nation which seeks the maintenance of cordial relations with its neighbours imposes taxes upon their exports without due consideration. How much more is a British Indian Legislature bound to give some consideration to the feelings of Great Britain before it decides a question of tariff! I believe that the feeling in the United Kingdom is adverse to the imposition of cotton-duties, as being likely to re-act upon the general prosperity of British trade and commerce, in the maintenance of which India, as a great exporter of wheat, tea and other articles consumed by the British operative, is directly interested. I lay great stress on the fact that two gentlemen who lately addressed a public meeting in this city, one of whom had sat in Parliament, and the other had addressed many public meetings at home, made no reference to any speeches delivered by them on the subject to English ears. I observe that some gentlemen in England, who pose as the 'friends of India,' proceed to Manchester to discourse upon the subject of a Purundhar Bank, but never even in a stage whisper utter a word in favour of cotton-duties. I may be wrong, but I assume it as a fact that British public opinion is as strongly against cotton-duties as Indian opinion is in their favour. It is important, then, to inquire whether such an opinion is potent. It cannot be denied that Her Majesty's Government have the right to disallow any measure passed in this Council. It is well known that a discussion on Indian finances takes place every year, and that Her Majesty's Government are then put upon their trial in respect of Indian financial administration. Is it conceivable, is it constitutional, that the Secretary of State for India should allow a measure which he cannot successfully defend in Parliament? My hon'ble friend Mr. Playfair referred to a speech made by the late Viceroy which I was privileged to hear. But, if I understood His Excellency correctly, he never challenged the authority of Parliament as a final all-powerful decision. What His Lordship objected to was the resolution hastily adopted by an irresponsible member of Parliament, and not the authoritative decision of Her Majesty's Government which is the difficulty with which we are at the present moment face to face.

"If, then, these three propositions are admitted, that British opinion is a factor, an adverse factor and a powerful factor, would it be prudent or statesmanlike on the part of this Council to insist upon passing a measure which would operate for a few weeks to the dislocation of trade, and then be disallowed? That seems to me the only practical question which not merely the official member of the Council who is not a member of the Government, but also the non-official member, must answer according to his conscience.

"I shall give effect to my own convictions, not as I am enjoined to do in the resolution I hold in my hand by supporting the amendment of the Bill, but by recognising these two facts: first, that the Government of India must be fully conscious of the strong opinion in favour of cotton-duties held in this country; and, secondly, that it must be presumed to know better than any other body of men what measure of taxation it can carry to a successful final issue at the present moment. I shall therefore support whatever measure Government may introduce."

The Hon'ble MR. CLOGSTOUN said:—"My Lord, as a member of the Select Committee of the Bill now under consideration, I have signed the Report which has been presented to the Council, and have, therefore, already shown my disagreement with the note of dissent attached to the Bill—a dissent which is made on the ground that the Bill entirely omits cotton goods from the import-duties imposed by the Bill on all or nearly all other imported goods. I should prefer, my Lord, not to give a silent vote in favour of the Bill, but to give very briefly my reasons for believing that the exclusion of cotton goods from the tariff is a measure not less just to the cotton consumers in India than to the producers in England, and that in the present state of the finances, with a reasonable hope that even with a very low exchange we shall be able to meet the needs of the coming year without the necessity of further taxation than that now proposed, the omission of these articles from taxation is advisable. If, while we give to India freedom from further taxation, we can, at the same time, save ourselves from striking a blow at one of the greatest industries of England, I should hope that the whole body of the Council would cordially concur with Government in its determination to defer the imposition of those duties until a time when the Government shall assure us that the raising of additional revenue is imperative, and that no other plan less open to objection than the import-duty on cotton goods, without a countervailing excise-duty, is available.

"I would ask the Council whether the claim of England is not worthy of generous consideration. Compliance with the demand will not involve, as the Government has already declared, any other form of taxation to which, it may be, serious objection might be taken. Non-compliance with the demand means additional taxation on the people of India. I think it would need very strong evidence to persuade the Council that the country, as a whole, will not gladly welcome the postponement of this additional taxation.

"The grounds on which the abolition of the cotton-duties was demanded by England and assented to by India in 1878-80 were that they were protective in their nature, were contrary to sound commercial policy, and were unjust alike to the Indian consumer and the English producer. These reasons still apply, and, in the interests of the people of India quite as much as in the interests of the manufacturers in England, preclude the imposition of any duty on cotton goods which is not imposed solely as an absolute necessity for revenue purposes.

"The extent to which the import-duty on cotton goods acted as a protective duty was already large in 1878. The extent to which it would so act at this moment is enormously increased, and there can be no doubt that an import-duty would further largely stimulate local production to the detriment of English industry and to the detriment of the local consumers in India.

"Were it possible to impose a countervailing duty on the cotton goods manufactured in this country, the objections to an import-duty on cotton goods of being protective would cease.

"The speech of the Hon'ble Financial Member, when introducing the Bill, shows, however, that the imposition of an excise-duty on local cotton manufactures is beset with great difficulties which the Government at present apparently sees no means of meeting. It is earnestly to be hoped that if hereafter it should become absolutely necessary, owing to any further fall in exchange or even to a continuance at its present low figure, to impose the cotton-duties, some means will be found for overcoming these difficulties.

"It is essential that they should be overcome if the country is to receive as revenue a sum in any proportion to the additional charge which the imposition of an import-duty will impose on the consumer of cotton goods, whether these goods are made locally or in England. Meanwhile, it is clear that an import-duty on cotton goods cannot be made to touch the large productions of the Indian mills, while an import-duty of five per cent. would mean an increased charge of that amount, or more, on all cotton goods consumed in the country, the proceeds of of this huge tax levied on every soul in the country being divided between the Government and the Indian millowners, the Government share gradually diminishing, while the share of the millowners—a very large share at starting—would from year to year be largely increased.

"My Lord, as matters stand, I am averse to imposing on the country any additional taxation with which Government declares it is able to dispense—a taxation which would fall so heavily on the people and be comparatively so unprofitable to Government. While, however, the Government declares itself prepared to dispense with further taxation, I am afraid it is only too clear that a reduction in the expenditure of the Famine Fund must form a necessary feature in the finances of the coming year. Expenditure from revenue on works protective against famine was suspended in 1886-87 and the four following years in preference to imposing new taxation, and the course was acquiesced in by the country, as being a proper course to adopt, because, though expenditure from revenue was discontinued, a very large expenditure from capital—an expenditure amounting to $3\frac{1}{2}$ crores per annum on railways and irrigation works, which are to the fullest extent famine protective works—is every year incurred. I think, my Lord, that under the circumstances the Government is justified in refraining from imposing further taxation solely in order that it may construct additional railways out of revenue.

"My Lord, in the speech delivered on the 1st instant, the Hon'ble Mr. Westland has shown that the very large deficit of $3\frac{1}{2}$ crores, which would be the result of carrying on till the end of next year our existing rate of expenditure with our present revenues, is arrived at by taking a very low rate of exchange—a rate of 1s. 2d. the rupee. It is impossible, my Lord, to prove, with recent experience fresh in our recollections, that this rate is too low; but those who have faith in the results of the recent action of Government in closing the mints look forward with confidence to the establishment of a much higher rate, which must sooner or later largely improve the financial position of the Government. With these prospects before us, I, my Lord, as a lover of England, as well as a lover of India, deprecate the imposition of these protective duties which are not now essential, which improved circumstances will, I believe, hereafter show to be quite unnecessary, and the imposition of which, where they are not essential, must rightly create a bitter feeling between the two countries."

The Hon'ble GANGADHAR RAO MADHAV CHITNAVIS said:—"As regards the proposed import-duties, I beg to offer the following remarks, though I fear some of them may be at the risk of a repetition of the statements already made. My Lord, in the first place, I regret that the Report of the Select Committee on such an important matter should have been placed in the hands of the Members so late. We are thus prevented from making any remarks as fully as we could have wished. I hope no one will take exception to the principle that, as far as possible, no duty should be levied on articles which are mostly consumed by the poorer classes. I must, therefore, deprecate whatever tends to raise the price of such articles. In the schedule appended to the Bill under discussion I find that kerosine oil, which is extensively consumed by the poorer people in this country, and which already bears a duty of half-an-anna per gallon, was to bear double that duty hereafter. It is, therefore, no satisfaction to me that the duty should have been changed according to Select Committee's Report to an ad valorem duty of 5 per cent. on this poor's oil. [It may be that kerosine oil is becoming cheaper and cheaper in spite of the taxation already imposed upon it. To increase the duty upon it on that ground will not be justifiable; for will the Government be in a position to remit duties upon it as readily, either partly or wholly, if in the course of a few months, or years, its price tends to increase in consequence either of its increased taxation or of its cost of production? With regard to the argument adduced in certain quarters that an import-duty on kerosine oil is necessary to protect indigenous oil manufacture, it is at once futile by reason of the fact that the oils that are extensively manufactured in this country do not enter into competition with kerosine oil owing partly to their price and partly to the purposes for which they are used.]

"I am glad to hear just now from the Hon'ble the Finance Member that the duty on iron has been reduced, as I consider that there should be no duty on articles like coal, iron, etc., which are necessary for the development of the mechanical industry of the country.

"My Lord, I fully endorse the views of the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair about what he says with regard to the services and the compensation granted to them. I fully sympathise with European servants of the Crown who have to make remittances, but at the same time I cannot dissociate from my mind the idea that it is likely to be felt, especially in these present distressed circumstances, an unjustifiable demand on all other subjects of Her Majesty's Empire, whether European or Native. The imposition of the import-duty is therefore unobjectionable except in respect of certain articles as I have pointed out. But, when it fails to go even half way towards meeting the deficit, I consider it my duty as a representative of the people to take this opportunity of placing before the Government the strong opinion that prevails amongst them in regard to another class of import-duties, viz., the cotton-duties. As regards the re-imposition of these duties, the Hon'ble the Finance Member has been pleased to observe that duties on cotton-goods can mean only import-duties and not an excise on local manufactures also. Without, therefore, entering upon the question of excise on local manufactures, I might express an opinion that cotton-duties, even if they were levied on imports only, would not go against the principles of free trade, as had once been considered. Even free trade countries must have revenue, and a low duty for that purpose is not a policy of protection. And I must go yet further, and repeat, what has been so often said by eminent advocates of free trade, that a policy of protection, when applied to a country like India, where industries are young and unable to rise owing to foreign competition, does not go against the principles of free trade, and may even be necessary. And, if what I have just said as regards infant industries is true of the whole of India, it is much more so as regards the province whence I come, where the mill industry has only just commenced. The practice of the British Government would be antagonistic to its declared principles if the cotton fabrics were to be excluded from a duty on the plea of free trade; for in England itself, where industries are fully developed, what is the case? Import-duties are levied in that free trade country, evidently for the purpose of revenue, on tea, coffee, tobacco, etc. When such is the case, well might the people here misunderstand the motives of the Government, and regard it as alike selfish and insincere that what is thus practised by the British Government at home should by that same Government be forbidden in the administration of India. Besides, the duty will in no sense be a tax or impost on the people of England. It is a general principle that the cost of every article of trade falls on the consumer; otherwise production would cease. The import-duty on cotton-goods would be paid by the people of India, and in such a way as not to be felt as a grievance, or to be beyond their resources. I may here say that, if I were to judge from what I see in my province, the duty would not press the poorer people, as these classes of people generally use cloth made in the province, while Manchester cloth is generally used by the upper and middle classes.

"The reason given, my Lord, by the Hon'ble the Finance Member, no doubt at the instance of the Report of the Herschell Committee, for not imposing duty on cotton-goods is, that in that case there ought to be a counterbalancing export-duty, which, it is said, would be impracticable to impose in the case of hand-made goods made in the mufassal. The reply to this statement has already been expressed from several quarters, that such classes of the imported goods as are turned out in our mills need not be taxed. But finer fabrics as are not produced in India and woollen goods may be taxed, and, as mills here do not turn out such goods, the duty can scarcely be said to be protective, for it cannot protect a thing which does not exist.

"It must be remembered that the abolition of the cotton-duties in 1882 gave rise to strong opposition from all parts of India. They were a source of revenue the most unobjectionable, because they yielded a substantial income but did not press upon any class of the population and were not attended with injustice or oppression. Yet the duties were abandoned in the face of protests made at the time by several Members of the Council. And, though the people were in no way benefitted, the sacrifice which such an abandonment involved amounted at the time to three quarters of a million. There now remains no doubt whatsoever that such an abolition was not consistent with a far-sighted financial policy, and but for such a policy of sacrifice the Government of the present day would have probably found themselves in a much better financial position than brooding over the means of meeting a heavy deficit of 3½ crores; and, I believe, it would be wise yet to re-impose those duties, against whatever opposition the Government may have to encounter from Lancashire, and in spite of whatever insinuations may be brought against them as protecting the Indian industry in violation of the principles of free trade. It would be wise yet, I say, and I have the then Viceroy himself in support of my contention. I quote the following words which dropped from him in the course of his famous speech of 10th March, 1882, on the abolition of the cotton-duties. 'I am bound to say', said His Excellency, 'that I should not have been a party to the repeal of the cotton-duties, or to the repeal of other customs-duties, if it had been proposed to repeal them in the face of a deficit, or if it had been necessary, in order to repeal them, to impose other taxation upon the country.' I leave it to your Lordship and the Hon'ble Members to judge if these utterances of Lord Ripon do not in a way throw a sort of responsibility on the future Government of the country to resort to these duties at the first instance in the case of a deficit or whenever the wants of a country require further taxation. Unfortunately, it was not foreseen at that time that the financial condition of the country might not continue so flourishing as then, that the country might be again involved in frontier complications, that the rate of exchange would so rapidly fall and that years of deficits would soon follow, and that the Government would be compelled to impose fresh taxation upon the country. If these difficulties had been foreseen, the Government of Lord Ripon would never have even so much as contemplated the abolition of the cotton-duties. But all these have now come to pass, and it remains for your Excellency's Government to consider whether it would not be wise yet to re-impose those duties on the same principle of protecting the interests of India on which they were abolished.

"It must also be observed that in excluding cotton fabrics from the list of dutiable articles and at the same time imposing duties on such articles as iron, coal, &c., and thereby handicapping such indigenous metal industries and raw materials as are generally very extensively used in the mills, the Government would be inflicting a two-fold wrong on the people of this country; for while such imposition would increase the cost of production of fabrics manufactured here, and would actually make such fabrics rise in price, the exclusion of cotton fabrics from a duty would act as a sort of bounty or premium on goods imported from abroad, and would also raise the price of Indian manufactures indirectly, in the same proportion. It is a double wrong, I would submit, and Your Excellency and the Hon'ble Members of this Council will, I hope, give this phase of the question the consideration it deserves.

"With respect to the proposal of the exclusion, I humbly believe, there is evidence that even those who advocate or propose the exclusion are not proud of the proposal. Hence it may be inferred that they are conscious of the wrong which such an exclusion would imply, with an evident desire to avoid the responsibility. The Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State told the deputation from Manchester that the Government of India were not prepared to include cotton fabrics in the list of articles to be scheduled for duty. He thus wished to imply that it was the Government of India who were too diffident in their measures. The Finance Member, on the other hand, declared that the Secretary of State was not prepared to sanction the impost on cotton goods, thus clearing himself and the Government of India from every share in the unjustifiable exclusion. In such a case the feelings of the people of India, who will have to bear the burden for no fault of theirs, have, I suppose, some claims to consideration, and the public voice is undoubtedly and almost unanimously very strong in favour of the course which, in the interest of India, ought to be adopted.

"Would it not then be well for this Council and the Hon'ble Members sitting here to make their position clear by including cotton fabrics in the list of dutiable articles, and throw upon the Home Government the responsibility of rejection? Such a course would be consistent with the declaration of the Finance Member that it is not the Government of India that contemplate this injustice and thus not only make their position clear before the world, but also save themselves from the responsibility of drawing unjustifiably upon any other resources placed in their custody—a step which, it is feared by the people, is imminent.

"I cannot close my remarks, my Lord, without bringing to the notice of the Council that I have received several letters from my province asking me to protest against the exclusion of imported cotton fabrics from the list of dutiable articles, and to place their views respectfully before Your Excellency and the Council.

" Successive Viceroys have held that the interests of India ought to be their first consideration, and that it ought to be the first duty of the Government of India to consider the interests of the Indian people, and that Indian questions ought to be looked at from an Indian point of view. There is no reason to doubt that Your Excellency's Government will be guided by the same generous views, and show to the world that the British Government can forego the interests of a particular section of the people of England when justice and the interests of the entire Indian population really require this to be done. To follow this noble policy will be, for Your Excellency, to inaugurate your administration by an act of justice to the 287 millions of people over whom you have been called by Providence to rule."

The Hon'ble the MAHARAJA OF DURBHANGA said :—" The imposition on the taxpayers of India of a vast system of import-duties, with the sole exemption of cotton goods, seems to me very much to resemble a performance of the play of Hamlet from which the part of Hamlet himself is altogether omitted. When import-duties have been talked about, whether in the Herschell Committee or elsewhere, as a possible means of relief from our financial difficulties, it is absolutely undeniable that what has been meant primarily is an import-duty on cotton-goods. The wording of the report of the Herschell Committee is sufficient to prove this ; and it is assumed therein, and is, I fear, notorious, that the chief, if not the only, objection to such a duty is the fear lest it should arouse the hostility of certain powerful interests in the Imperial Parliament. It is impossible in these times of financial difficulty and embarrassment to allege of any of these duties that they are imposed for the purpose of protection. It is obvious, and is indeed admitted, that we are imposing these duties for revenue purposes only, and not for the sake of protection ; and therefore the only possible excuse of a fair and honourable kind that might have been urged for the exemption of cotton-goods is at once taken away.

" But I go further than this. I say that a moment's consideration will show conclusively that this exemption is itself a protective measure of the most scandalous nature when combined with the duties that are to be so freely imposed on materials of, and machinery for, our own indigenous industries.

" For example, let us consider the meaning of a duty on the import of the various raw or partly manufactured articles that are used as mill stores in our cotton mills. It is unnecessary to point out that this is a protective duty—protecting the mills of England against our own mills. Or, again, take the case of the immense import of coloured cotton-goods that are brought to this country from England in prodigious quantities, and that are under this tariff to come in free of duty. The indigenous manufacture of coloured cotton-goods that has hitherto competed with these imports from England depends largely on the cheap import of aniline dyes and other colours ; and the importance of this industry is plainly shown by the fact that these colouring stuffs are at present imported to the value of, I believe, over half a crore per annum. Now we are going to tax these dyes, which enable us to compete with the imported coloured cotton-goods, and yet we propose to admit the latter free of all duty. The unfairness of the proceeding is obvious on the face of it, and therefore I maintain that it is quite impossible for any Government that values the good opinion of the civilized world, and that desires to consult the interests of its own subjects, to persist in carrying it through.

" And while I deplore the omission of the import-duty on cotton-goods, because that omission protects the industry of others and injures our indigenous industries, I object to some of the duties imposed by this Bill for precisely similar reasons.

" Take the case of the five per cent. that we are invited to impose on the import of iron, copper, brass and other metals. Vast quantities of metal utensils, tools, and so forth are used for domestic purposes, and in agriculture and in other ways, by the labouring masses of the Indian populations ; and it is of course quite certain that each and all of these will be rendered dearer for the poor raiyat of India, while our indigenous metal industry will be seriously handicapped by the new taxation.

"But the most painful contrast to the indulgent treatment of imported cotton-goods that is afforded by this Bill is the tax on the import of petroleum, the only imported commodity, except salt, that is very largely, and indeed almost universally, consumed by the millions of our poorest and most hard-working classes in India.

"The Tariff Bill is not the Budget, and therefore I do not here suggest any alternative policy other than the inclusion of cotton-goods in the schedule of commodities to be taxed on import. But if the old proverb be still true, that a penny saved is a penny gained, then the Executive Government may well be advised to seek increased resources in diminished expenditure."

The Hon'ble the MAHARAJA OF AJUDHIA said that he would support the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair's amendment.

The Hon'ble MR. STEVENS said:—My Lord, I venture to ask for the indulgence of Your Excellency and the Council in order that I may briefly explain the vote which I propose to give on this amendment. There are precedents, my Lord, which go to show that in past times it has been considered open to Additional Members who are officials to express opinions, and to support those opinions by their votes, adverse to the policy of the Government in financial matters as well as on others of general importance. And I feel the utmost confidence that Your Excellency's Administration would not desire to restrain this customary freedom of speech and vote. In these circumstances, an official Additional Member ought not, in my judgment, to allow it to be believed that he is a mere instrument in the hands of the Government. I desire, therefore, to accept full responsibility for the vote which I am about to give on the present occasion.

"I am in perfect sympathy with the feelings of surprise and regret—universal, deep and loudly expressed throughout the country—that the Tariff Bill does not include a duty on imported cotton-goods. I share the general disappointment that, instead of the adoption of so just, impartial and reasonable a method of increasing the revenue, the public should have been asked to content themselves with explanations which, as regards a large part of the goods affected, have no relevancy and are inadequate and unsatisfactory as to the remainder. Either the money which duties on cotton-goods would produce is required or it is not. If it is required, there seems to be no room for further discussion: if it is not required, I find myself with everyone else in the difficulty of having to discover a reason why other goods should pay five per cent. while these enter free.

"By what means it is proposed that the expected deficit of over 2½ crores rupees shall be met it is at present possible only to surmise. Two methods have been suggested, namely, the absorption of the Famine Insurance Fund and clipping the Provincial Revenues. I will not detain the Council by discussing the mischiefs which these proposals would involve; it seems to me that in either case they far exceed those resulting from the imposition of the cotton duties. But, if the re-establishment of this impost would give the Government more money than it requires to balance the expected deficit, I venture to suggest that the opportunity should be taken to re-adjust the incidence of other kinds of taxation. The income-tax is oppressive, and, in the case of those whose assessment is not a mere matter of arithmetic, vexatious, inquisitorial and uncertain in a high degree. Yet those who are fairly able to pay will pay, if not cheerfully, still with resignation, provided they understand that they are not being taxed to save the interests of a small but influential body of manufacturers in England, who derive their profits from India but contribute nothing to its revenues.

"I would especially invite Your Excellency's attention to the assesseees of the lowest classes, namely, those with incomes of from five hundred to a thousand rupees per annum. In Lower Bengal these persons are about 71,000 in number out of a total number of 104,000 assessed to income-tax; and they pay about 7½ lakhs of rupees out of a total collection of 36 lakhs. They comprise for the most part petty shop-keepers and traders, small village-mahajans, and Government servants and others drawing fixed incomes. No one who has not had practical experience can imagine the difficulty and uncertainty attending the assessment of the first two of these classes. Accounts are not kept, or at least are not produced; balance sheets, if submitted at all, are obviously prepared for the occasion; and the assessor is left to assess on the best guesses he can make, with the help of information given by the neighbours, who have often an interest in misleading him in one direction or the other; average daily sales of the shop-keepers are estimated, average scales of profit are guessed at, the supposed capital of the petty money-lenders is conjectured, and an average rate of interest is struck. This is all that circumstances permit, and not an officer concerned (from the assessor to the Commissioner of the division) can feel the least certainty that the assessment has been just, or that a man who ought to have been assessed has not unjustly escaped. For the poor man whose income is fixed and known there is no escape; no evasion is possible. I think no one can read the Native papers without being struck by the frequency of the complaint from local correspondents that food has reached famine prices. No doubt this is usually an exaggerated expression; but it has a pathos of its own as implying a belief that the pressure, severe for the present, is yet temporary. Those who can take broader views know that this is not so; they know that the purchasing power of silver has fallen, and, though it may fluctuate within narrow limits, is never likely to rise again to its former level. The result is this, that those who were once 'passing rich on £40 a year' are so no longer. The times have become hard for them, and it is with difficulty that they can feed and clothe their families. To be excused a tax of ten rupees would mean to gain the power of buying, say, three maunds or so of rice, or of paying for the attendance of one or two children at school, or of providing a considerable part of the clothing of the family. When I think of these patient, laborious, indispensable people toiling in silence while their difficulties close round them like the collapsing chamber in the romance, I am impelled to ask Your Lordship's Government to consider whether their relief from the tax does not claim from an Indian Administration infinitely more attention than a perhaps trivial increase in the gains of the Lancashire manufacturers.

"I now pass on with reluctance to a matter of far greater moment. It is impossible to ignore the rapidly spreading and growing belief, which is gaining currency with all classes throughout the country, that in this case, and perhaps in others, the interests of India are sacrificed to meet the exigencies of party politics in England. At the Town Hall on Thursday a Native gentleman of high reputation is reported to have used the following language: 'During two hotly-contested campaigns I had the honour of appearing in the ranks of the Liberal Party; but no sentiments of allegiance can deter or restrain me from saying that I feel deeply humiliated that a Liberal Administration should be in favour of what impartial history will hereafter describe as an act of gross political immorality.'

"My Lord, among us in India the asperities of party politics are smoothed and practically forgotten among those cares and studies which are common to us all. Within the walls of this Council Chamber European politics have no place. I venture therefore, without hesitation, to say that there is no one here who can fail to be powerfully moved when he hears criticisms such as these passed on any British Administration, whether Conservative or Liberal, by a Native of India, educated after our manner, versed in our politics and history, and competent to judge us according to our own moral tests.

"I do not admit that the criticism is accurate and just. I have a firm hope that it will prove to have been premature. But the people of this country read in their newspapers how pressure is from time to time applied, sometimes in the guise of humanity, sometimes in avowed selfishness, but always, as they think, in the direction of advancing interests at Home to the detriment of those of India; and, when they observe the action or inaction (as the case may be) which is prayed for being practically carried out, it is no wonder that they are tempted to regard the relations of these things as the relations of cause and effect. It is often said that the British Empire in India rests on the national character for truth and justice, and that the single-minded devotion to duty of the great majority of our officers has satisfied the people that the administration cannot be in better hands. My Lord, in these days a fierce light beats around not only those in exalted positions but the Collector in his district and the Assistant in his sub-division. An error, a mistake of judgment, an unpopular executive order, a few hasty words, not to speak of more serious transgressions which in former days would have remained unknown except to those personally cognizant of the circumstances, is now dragged forth and sometimes exaggerated into undue importance, and the person in fault is discredited and denounced; but, while individual officers are thus sharply criticised, we see the British Government, the British Parliament, the British nation, acknowledged as the ultimate appellate authority to be relied on to set right what may have been done wrong here. And this acknowledgment, and the belief which underlies it, are the real safeguards of the Empire.

An error, a mistake of judgment, an unpopular executive order, a few hasty words, not to speak of more serious transgressions

"But what if it be believed that the fountain of justice itself is impure? But what if, in the minds of our Indian fellow-subjects, the impression should be confirmed that their good is disregarded and postponed to selfish considerations by those same exalted authorities to whom they have been accustomed to look for protection? I can conceive of no condition of greater gravity.

"I forbear to pursue this topic further, for I know that it cannot fail to engage the most serious attention of Your Excellency's Government.

"And now, my Lord, that I have thus plainly, though briefly and very inadequately, indicated my views on the general subject before the Council, I wish to offer a few words to explain the vote which I propose to give. Much counsel has been given to the official Additional Members, and they have been freely invited to do their duty. The votes of the unofficial Members are understood to be a matter of course: the members of the Government are so fettered that their abstention from voting may be pardoned. For those of us who are officials, but who fail to vote in accordance with what are believed to be our convictions, there is said to be no excuse. I offer no excuse, and, if my vote is not in accordance with the views of those with whom I most heartily agree on the main subject, they will remember that I am entitled to maintain my own opinion as to what it is right for us to do.

"If we were living under a system of what is technically called 'responsible government', under which Your Excellency's Executive Council would be solely responsible for projects placed before us, and under which the effect of this amendment being carried would be that my hon'ble friend Mr. Westland with his colleagues would resign, and Your Excellency would commission my hon'ble friend Mr. Playfair to form an Administration to carry out forthwith the opinions with which I am in sympathy, there would be no difficulty in coming to a decision. But the facts are far different. Your Excellency is yourself the head of the Executive Government: the Council are not to be deposed by votes of ours. We have no means, except guessing, of even knowing to what extent the Government of India in India, in omitting to impose a duty on cotton fabrics, is acting in accordance with its own opinions or in obedience to instructions from Home. The mover of the amendment does not ask us to reject the Bill: he merely wishes it to be recommitted. It seems probable that nothing would be changed by the Select Committee, and when the Report came to us we should be in exactly the same position that we are in now. But an interval of trouble and uncertainty would have been passed; and Your Excellency's Government would have been put to great inconvenience, and the public service would have been obstructed. All that we should have done would have been to enter a protest, and that is what I understand to be the purpose of the amendment. But in my judgment the reduction of business to a dead-lock is an expedient which requires absolute necessity, for its justification. In this case the necessity is not apparent to me. There is no reason to believe that the high authorities in England, who are the ultimate rulers of this country, have ever realised the extent and depth of the feeling which exists here on the subject of these cotton-duties. The meetings which are being held from one end of India to the other, the writings in the papers, the proceedings in this Council, must convince them that this opposition is practically universal and most thorough and sincere, and cannot be disregarded with safety. I cannot believe that, when the strength of this growing agitation is recognized, the Government will persevere in a course of action which to people of all trades and professions and of all nationalities in India appears to be incompatible with the interests of this country.

"Because I feel confident that the question will be reconsidered and our object thus gained, I deem it my duty not to vote in a manner which I think would tend to cause serious inconvenience to Your Excellency's administration."

The Hon'ble FAZULBHAI VISHRAM said : " My Lord, I have joined in the partial dissent from the Report of the Select Committee, because as a member of a large community vitally interested in the industrial development and material prosperity of this country, and as a commercial man not wholly unacquainted with the economic condition of the people, I feel it my duty to record an emphatic protest against the exclusion of cotton goods from the operation of the Tariff Bill. My Lord, I have tried to acquaint myself with the reasons which have induced Government to make the exception in favour of such goods, but I have failed utterly to apprehend or appreciate the force of those reasons. That they have wholly failed to satisfy the public opinion of India is a matter of notoriety. That the reasons assigned have no valid foundation I shall endeavour to show in a few words. It has been suggested that if imported cotton goods were subjected to a duty there would be grave difficulty in the case of the products of the mills in Native States, for it is said neither could customs be conveniently realised on them on the British frontier, nor would it be just to raise an excise-duty on such goods. But when we fully understand the facts connected with this argument we shall see how fallacious it is. There are at present 141 cotton mills in India, of which only eight or nine are in Native territories, and out of these eight or nine six only weave cloth! The obstacle therefore, which, as suggested, wears an aspect of formidable dimensions, loses all its weight, all its force, when you examine its real application. But there is more than this. These mills in Native States, like the mills in British India, only turn out coarser cloths and yarns of the lower counts. Throughout the discussion which the proposed measure has given rise to in the country, nobody has suggested that such articles of coarser make or coarser counts should be subjected to duty. What Indian public opinion contends for—and on this point Indians and Europeans seem absolutely at one—is that there is absolutely no reason, no justification, for excluding the finer cloths and finer yarns from duty. If they are made dutiable, the whole difficulty as to cotton goods imported from Native States vanishes. And so does the idea which seems to haunt the mind of the English manufacturers that duty on imported cotton goods mean protection on goods made in this country, for, as I have already ventured to point out, we make in this country cloths of coarser texture and yarns of coarser count, which we do not suggest should be made dutiable.

" The exemption of goods to which I am referring from the operation of the Tariff Bill is, in my humble opinion, politically and economically unwise. It is not my province to discuss politics in Council. But, my Lord, I cannot help seeing the impression the exemption has created in India. The impression is that India is being sacrificed to English interests. Right or wrong that impression prevails among all classes of the community, high and low, European and Native. They say that the currency measure has been rendered a nullity owing to Lombard Street; and now justice is denied to India in view of Lancashire. I am only referring to the opinion in the country which is daily gathering force and increasing in volume. Is it wise, is it right, I venture to ask, to give cause for such an impression about the beneficent British rule? We see that the Government of India is face to face with a grave financial difficulty; that it has an enormous deficit to meet, which may become still larger if English exchange were to go down further. I will not pause here to enquire how this has happened or whether it would not have been obviated by means other than by imposing additional burdens on the people. Nor do I wish to travel out of the range of the present discussion by enquiring why no real effort was made to give effect to the currency legislation of last year. What I do say, and say emphatically, is that I utterly fail to understand why cotton fabrics imported from England to India should be exempted from taxation, when it is perfectly well known that the incidence of that taxation would fall in the main on the well-to-do classes here who use the fabrics which we suggest should be taxed. Such a tax, if imposed, would not only go a long way to making up the deficit, but probably help, in some degree at least, in erecting a balance of trade in favour of India and thus give some stability to our currency. If, however, the Tariff Bill passes as it is India will not only lose a much-needed revenue, estimated at about 130 lakhs of rupees, but a penalty will be imposed upon her cotton productions. For instance, Bombay will be handicapped to the extent of the additional five per cent. which her mills will have to pay for English stores—not coal, referred to by a previous speaker—besides the further disadvantage which the lowering of the China exchange, in consequence of the duty on silver, will bring upon her. Thus, in addition to Lancashire, even Japan will be favoured at the cost of India.

“With these remarks, my Lord, I beg to support the amendment.”

The Hon'ble Sir GRIFFITH EVANS said:—“My Lord, this matter which is before the Council to-day is a matter of very great gravity. The difficulties of the situation are very great, and I did not come here with a light heart in the belief that it is a simple thing to decide one way or other; but the situation, as the Council will see, is one which, so far as my experience goes, is quite unparalleled. This is the position. The Financial Member has shown us a financial statement, not the whole Budget. It is sufficient for the purpose of establishing that it is necessary to raise money, and that there is a deficit of $3\frac{1}{2}$ crores to be made up, and he proposes to meet this by levying general import-duties, exempting cottons, and including a tax upon petroleum. The general import-duties bring in about Rx. 1,200,000 and the petroleum-duty brings in Rx. 200,000. The total of that comes to Rx. 1,400,000, and the rest of the $3\frac{1}{2}$ crores is unprovided for by taxation. It is not explained as yet how this deficit is to be met, but one thing is apparent and cannot be denied, and that is that the only way in which it can be met or diminished is by absorbing what is called the Famine Fund, or, more accurately, the famine surplus, and making so-called retrenchments; that is to say, starving the country to such an extent so as to cripple the administration and stop all progress. The cotton-duties would amount to a considerable sum—Rx. 1,350,000; but the Financial Member will not take this money, although the money is urgently needed, and although it is there to his hands and the financial situation clearly demands it. The reason he has given for not taking it is to be found in his short statement that ‘Her Majesty’s Government are not prepared at present to sanction the inclusion of cotton yarns or cotton fabrics among the articles declared liable to duty.’ This intimation has been received all over India, as you have heard from previous speakers, with an unqualified storm of indignation. The Hon'ble Mr. Lee-Warner admitted that the opinion was solid in India. Your Lordship has heard from various non-official members in Council and from the Hon'ble Mr. Stevens how very strong and widespread the feeling is. Alone amongst them the Hon'ble Mr. Clogstoun has by the light of a lively imagination come to the conclusion that he will yet see the country welcoming this shapeless and inadequate measure. I think I may almost say that there is no one in India who doubts that if the Government of India were left free in this matter neither they nor any sensible financiers would have exempted cotton-goods.

“Now, why is it this indignation is felt so strongly? The reasons are not far to seek. I must, in order to explain it, call the attention of the Council to how the matter stands with regard to these import-duties. These duties were repealed in 1882 finally. They were repealed at a cost of over £600,000 in respect of the cotton and £560,000, I think, in respect of the general import-duties, making a total of over a million. Now, it is perfectly true that in 1878 there was a resolution of the House of Commons that these duties ought to be abolished because they were protective in their character, and ought to be abolished when the finances of India permitted it. But that objection had ceased before 1882, for they had been confined to the finer class of goods in which India did not, and does not, compete. I have here the words of Sir Evelyn Baring in 1872, in which he admitted distinctly and categorically ‘that direct protection to local manufactures no longer exists.’ But he put his objection to the cotton-duties on other grounds, and he, being determined then, having a surplus, to repeal those duties, did—as every financier would do under the circumstances—make the case as strong as he could against them. But when he had done that he turned to the general import-duties and he rent them. He showed upon all kinds of grounds that they were protective, that they were taxes upon raw material in many cases, and, after having dealt with them in the most ruthless manner, he wound up by saying—‘The arguments in favour of abolishing the general import-duties are even stronger than those which may be adduced in respect of the abolition of the cotton-duties. The maintenance of the former, if the latter are to be abolished, would from every point of view be open to objection.’ The abolition took place because these import-duties were objectionable and Government considered they were sufficiently well off to do without them.

“This then was the position in 1882—that there was a large tax upon the finer kinds of cotton goods. It admittedly was not protective, and it was not pretended that it was abolished because it was protective. With regard to the question whether it was protective or not before it was reduced in 1878, I will not trouble the Council at any length. Anybody who wishes to consider the matter will find from the able speech of Mr. Mandlik of Bombay in 1886, at the time when the income-tax was proposed, that he adduced many arguments to show that, as a matter of fact, there was not any large competition in coarse goods between Manchester and the Indian mills. The real competition in the coarse goods was between the Indian mills and the handloom weavers. The objection of protection then had, as a matter of fact, been met by 1882, and the matter stood in this way, that except for certain inconveniences—and they were less than the inevitable inconveniences of a general import tariff—there would have been no reason for taking them away. Now, it has been suggested apparently that in seeking to re-impose those taxes we are proposing to strike a deathblow at Lancashire—so the Hon’ble Mr. Clogstoun seems to think—and that we ought to beware of doing anything of the kind. I entirely agree with what has fallen from one Hon’ble Member that there is a solidarity of the Empire, that there ought not to be a war of tariffs or an attempt to injure or destroy each other; live and let live. But what we complain of is that this is not being carried out.

“It is clear that duties on the finer cottons are not open to objection on the ground of protection or anything of that kind. There may be inconvenience; that cannot be helped. When you come to the coarser goods there is no doubt the question how far it acts as a protection, but if it were desired to tax these coarser goods, and if an excise duty were necessary for that purpose, I do not suppose the ingenuity of the Financial Member would fail him in finding a means of putting on an excise-duty. That particular question is not, however, before the Council. Then, as regards the handloom weavers, it is as absolutely absurd to suggest that Manchester or the Indian mills would suffer and be crushed by the protection to handloom weavers of a duty of five per cent. as it would be to suggest that a first class English racehorse would be crushed by having to carry five pounds more weight in a handicap than a 14-hand Arab. The handloom weavers have been beaten and were beaten before the duties were taken off, and therefore we need not trouble ourselves further on this point. Then, if you will look at the need of a tax, it is, of course, evident that the money is much required and that the tax is a tax which would enormously lighten the situation and relieve the finances of India, and ought to be put on unless there is some very serious objection; that it is a tax upon which everybody is agreed—officials, non-officials, Natives and Europeans, and, if we may trust the papers, the whole of the Secretary of State’s Council. There is, as a matter of fact, a consensus of opinion which I have never seen paralleled since I have been in India, and it is an exceedingly sad thing to see that, for some reason or another, the Home authorities, with whom the ultimate power rests, for the present, at any rate, seem insensible or indifferent to that fact. What may be the reason I do not know, but can guess. I do not entertain the same views as one hon’ble member expressed—that is, I am unable to look with intense admiration at the great vigilance with which the English Parliament scrutinizes the Indian Budget. As a matter of fact, the Indian Budget is brought in at the tail end of the session and listened to usually by empty benches. But we know that there are other influences which do cause people under the exigencies of party warfare to do regrettable things. We hear this from both parties. We have read the most eloquent denunciations by Mr. Gladstone of the manner in which a Tory Government and a Tory Viceroy repealed a large portion of the cotton-duties in 1879 without any consideration of the distress or necessity of India, and how unfair the manner was in which it was done. We know that such things do happen from the exigencies of party warfare, and there is no doubt that the public in considering this matter does not live in a band-box, and is not able to exhibit that wonderful and childlike faith in the all-seeing wisdom of the Secretary of State for India and Her Majesty's Government which is a most valuable possession to those who have got it, and which is particularly desirable for persons with tender consciences.

"With regard to the Government in India, apart from what one can gather from the Financial Statement, I do not think that anybody who is acquainted with the personnel of that Government would credit them with having originated this measure or with having decided of their own free will not to include cotton fabrics in any shape or form. As regards the Financial Member, no one would credit him with it. He is too well known. His genius for finance, his grasp of the situation, his fitness to ride out a financial storm, are all well known, and when we find him taking title of 'anise' and 'cummin,' two of the articles to be found in Schedule No. 3, and neglecting the weightier matters of finance, to wit, the cotton fabrics, one knows that it cannot be of his own free will. I observe that 'mint' has unaccountably been omitted, possibly lest the scripture should be fulfilled. Or, again, when we find the Financial Member—when we see a man of his grasp and power—grovelling in the dust heaps of the third schedule for 'fish maws' and 'sharks' fins' to meet a deficit of $3\frac{1}{2}$ crores, we feel very much like what the ancient Assyrians must have felt when they saw Nebuchadnezzar going on all fours and eating grass under the compulsion of the Higher Powers. It is a pitiable spectacle.

"As to the attitude of the members of this Council, as regards the non-official members I would only say this, that so far as I am able to ascertain, and certainly speaking for myself, the attitude is one of a desire so far as possible not to embarrass Your Excellency's Government but to give every assistance and sympathy. Still, when this matter is so scandalous and felt to be so, they have no option except to do what they can to stop it. As for the official members, I can say nothing; they are able to speak for themselves. The legislative members have vindicated their privileges of free speech and free vote, whether on a Government measure or not. As to the difficulties with regard to voting on this particular motion, I entirely sympathise with the difficulty which the Hon'ble Mr. Stevens sets forth. After having fully stated his opinion, he points out the difficulty he feels with regard to voting for this motion. I extremely regret that the form of the motion is obliged to be what it is, and I ought to explain particularly to the Council why it is so. I should much have preferred to have had a plain and direct motion that cotton fabrics be included in the schedule. But I understand from the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair that an objection was raised that this would be beyond the competence of a private Member of Council, because it would be introducing a measure of taxation. Whether that is so or not need not be discussed at the present moment. At any rate, the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair did not consider it desirable, under these circumstances, to raise this question, and therefore he put the form of the motion in the only way in which he could in order to raise the question. Two courses only were open. One was to vote simply against the passing of the Bill, and the other was to have a discussion at an earlier stage and move, as he has done, that the Bill be recommitted to the Select Committee. I understand the feelings of my hon'ble friend Mr. Stevens, because, of course, it cannot be certainly known what the action of the Secretary of State would be if this motion was carried. If the Secretary of State still refused his sanction to the inclusion of cotton fabrics, it may be that nothing would have come of it except a deadlock, or it may be the Secretary of State would yield to the unanimous feeling of the country backed by the action of the Council. We who have supported the motion have come to the conclusion that, on the whole, it was the best course to adopt on the ground which I shall explain.

"We are placed in this position. It is within its legitimate powers for the Council to take the step of practically refusing to pass this Bill unless the amendment is made, and it is possible that the Secretary of State on that refusal, considering the deadlock to which matters may be brought by it, may change his mind. We are very loth to propose such a motion at all, and it is undoubtedly a choice of evils, and it is quite open to anybody to come to the conclusion that the lesser evil is to allow the Bill to be passed with a protest if an amendment cannot be made as my hon'ble friend Mr. Stevens has said. On the other hand, I have come to the conclusion that, on the balance of convenience and inconvenience, it is better for us to press this motion, and my reason is this. The feeling is exceedingly strong and it is exceedingly bitter. The sober judgment of the country is against the decision come to by Government, and that sober judgment has been quickened into indignation by the feeling that this does not belong to the class of excusable errors of judgment, and is not a decision which could be arrived at by anybody on a real consideration of the true interests of India. If there were such a spectacle before us as that of Lancashire about to be starved by a protective duty, there would be reason for the exemption of cotton fabrics from this measure, and I would be the last person to take the line that we are advocating. But there is nothing of the sort proposed. The feeling of indignation is so exceedingly strong that it is most desirable that in some way or another it should be put an end to. Nothing is worse in India than agitation of any kind, and agitation of this sort, where we are placed really in this position that it is difficult for us to maintain our proud boast that we honestly believe that, barring errors of judgment, India is being administered in her true interests, is doubly injurious. When one sees the Secretary of State, in the exercise of his absolute power, demanding the Bill in its present form from the Government in India, one is reminded of Alladin and the Roc's egg. I feel that unless some steps are taken to stop this injustice there will be a very strong feeling of discontent and injury throughout the country, and what makes it worse is this, that it is the only time that I can remember when everybody, official and non-official, Native and European, is of the same opinion. In these circumstances I deem it best to ask this Council to take steps to terminate the situation by a vote which will render it necessary for the Secretary of State to reconsider his decision at once and, if possible, avoid discredit to British rule. The step taken is an unusual one, and opinions may differ as to its being the right one; but, on the whole, so far as I can see, it seems to be the only one open to us, unless we are content simply to make a protest and then allow the Bill to be passed without recording our votes against it in its present form. The situation is one, so far as I am aware, which has no parallel within the time I have been in India. Under the circumstances, I can only hope, if, as seems probable from what has been said by various speakers, this motion is lost, the Secretary of State may still reconsider the matter."

The Hon'ble DR. RASHBEHARY GHOSE said:—"I have no hesitation whatever in supporting the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair, who represents the mercantile community in this Council. I venture to think that the exclusion of the cotton-duties from the Tariff Act would be not only a cruel wrong to the people of this country, but a grave scandal as well as a financial and political blunder, to which the famous saying of Tallyrand might well be applied. We are all aware how public opinion has condemned the proposed exclusion. Not a single dissentient voice, at any rate outside the Council Chamber, has been heard—not one jarring note of discord. The Hon'ble Mr. Westland, in introducing the measure, referred to the embarrassed condition of the finances, and said, rightly enough, that he was obliged to cast his net very wide. He might also have added that the meshes of this net are very fine; for besides the articles to which attention has been drawn by the Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans, we find that the schedule includes the cassia nut and the common shell; but notwithstanding the gravity of the condition of our finances, notwithstanding the obvious necessity for casting the net very wide, notwithstanding the extreme fineness of its meshes, cotton fabrics are conspicuous by their absence.

"It is said in the Statement of Objects and Reasons that owing to the embarrassed condition of the finances it has been decided to increase the revenue by the imposition of indirect taxation in the form of import-duties, and that the present Bill practically re-imposes the Tariff schedule of 1875 with some exceptions, of which the most important is the omission of duties on cotton yarns and goods. Now, one would think from the language here employed that cotton yarns and goods do not form an important part of our imports, and although they are excluded we are practically restoring the Tariff Act of 1875. But what is the actual state of things, and what would the intelligent foreigner who is said to be always with us think of the omission if he was told that the goods which are advisedly omitted constitute nearly one-half of the total imports? What would be his surprise if he should read the speech in which the Bill was introduced by the Hon'ble Finance Member? That speech contains an able defence, if I may say so, of import-duties when the interests of the Exchequer require that such duties should be imposed. But for any justification of the invidious distinction in favour of the cotton goods which come to us from Lancashire he would seek in vain in the utterances of the Finance Member beyond an echo somewhat faint, from the report of the Herschell Committee that the duties on cotton goods were the subject of vehement attack in England, and that any attempt to reimpose them would meet with great opposition. But opposition from whom? Not from the people of this country, not from the people who would have ultimately to pay those duties, as the intelligent foreigner in his innocence might imagine, but from the manufacturers, the merchant princes of Lancashire!! It has been suggested that an import-duty on cotton goods would be a protective duty and therefore objectionable. But the answer may be given in the words of an eminent living English statesman whose name will always be dear to free trade. 'There is not,' said Mr. Gladstone from his place in the House of Commons in 1879, 'a free trade Government in this or any country which has not freely admitted that the state of the revenue is an essential element in the consideration of the application even of the best principles of free trade.' These words were quoted with approval by Major Baring in 1882 and have been repeated by our present Finance Minister; and here I cannot resist the temptation of citing another passage from the same speech which possesses a peculiar appropriateness at the present moment. It is to be found in one of the memorials on the table. Mr. Gladstone said:—

'With regard to the remission of import-duties, there seems to me to be something distinctly repugnant in the way it has been done in the time of India's distress and difficulty by the Government of a party which has done all in its power to retain every protective duty in this country, and which, from year to year as the occasion arises, advises the Crown to assent to Colonial Acts imposing fresh duties upon British manufactures. What an invidious, almost odious, picture of inequality we exhibit to the millions of India. The free trade doctrines that we hold so dear, that we apply them against the feelings of the Indian people in their utmost rigour and without a grain of mercy, disappear in a moment when it is a question of dealing with those whose interest and opinions we cannot lightly tamper with, namely, the free colonists of the Empire?'

"In this connection I may be permitted to refer to the opinion of another well-known apostle of free trade in our day, the late Mr. Fawcett, who was known—and, if I may say so, worthily known—as the friend of India in the House of Commons. Mr. Fawcett, in a well-known treatise of his, draws a distinction between a protective duty properly so-called and a duty imposed merely for revenue purposes, and he points out with regard to the duty on Manchester goods, that it could not be treated as a protective duty in the proper sense of the expression. But even if it was a protective duty, are protective duties in the shape of bounties to native industries so utterly unknown in the rest of the world, so utterly unknown even in British colonies, that we should shudder at the bare mention of protection? I submit that a light duty of five per cent. cannot possibly be regarded as a protective duty; and this conclusion does not rest on speculative opinion only, for we are not altogether without experience. What has been the effect of the removal of the duties on Manchester goods? Has Manchester been able to drive Bombay out of the cotton market? No. But, as Macaulay says in speaking of legislation regarding Irish industries by the English Parliament, the jealousy of commerce is like the jealousy of love; it is as fanciful and as unreasonable, and the accomplished historian might have added, it possesses another well-known attribute of 'the green-eyed monster'—it is as cruel as the grave.

"Then, again, the difficulty of excluding a particular kind of goods like Manchester fabrics from the Indian tariff is so obvious that it is hardly necessary to insist upon it. This was pointed out by Major Baring, now Lord Cromer, in one of the speeches quoted by the Finance Minister in his speech in introducing the Bill. In making a clean sweep of the import-duties from our tariff in 1882,

Lord Cromer spoke of the 'destructive' forces which had been introduced by the partial abolition of the cotton-duties in the year 1878. He said :—

'Apparel of many kinds, hardware, jewellery, innumerable manufactures of metal, provisions and stores of many kinds, spices, sugar, tea, tobacco, with raw silk and fabrics of silk and wool, are all made in India, some to a large extent, and every import-duty on them is protective. On what principle, again, are silk and woollen goods, or goods having cotton mixed with silk and wool, to be denied the exemption accorded to cotton goods? "The duty on woollen fabrics," the Calcutta Trades Association rightly argues, "must, if only for the sake of consistency, follow the cotton-duties."'

"To-day it is Manchester, to-morrow it may be Newcastle, the next day it may be Birmingham, and so on from day to day till there will be nothing left to tax except sharks' fins and shells. I repeat that a duty on cotton goods cannot be objected to on the ground that it would be protective. But suppose I am wrong; cannot the objection be met by imposing an excise-duty on home manufactures? The thing is not impossible and certainly not above the ingenuity of our able Finance Minister. In fact, it may be necessary at any time, if exchange suffers a further decline, to impose an import-duty on cotton-goods, which must in the opinion of some persons be accompanied by an excise-duty on home manufactures; but then there is another and a more unexceptionable way out of the supposed difficulty. There are some kinds of cotton yarn and goods used by the wealthier classes only which cannot be produced in India, and an import-duty levied on such goods cannot possibly, even by the warmest admirers of free trade, as against fair trade, be regarded as protective. Some side issues, as I may call them, have been raised by Hon'ble Members. The unequal incidence of the income-tax as well as the additional burden placed on our finances by the exchange compensation allowance have been introduced into the debate. These, however, are questions upon which I do not now propose to enter. They may well wait till the Budget comes up for discussion. We have had as yet, if I may say so, merely the first instalment.

"My Lord, I have done; but before I conclude I must say that the fair fame of England for just dealing, which cannot, if I may say so, be too jealously guarded, is at stake. The spell which she has so long exercised over her subjects, a spell more potent even than the bayonet or the sword, which holds in loyal submission her vast empire 'broad based upon the people's will'—is in danger of being broken. At such a moment as this we owe it to ourselves—we owe it to the country—we owe it to the Government under which we have the happiness to live—to give timely warning. Our warnings may be unheeded—our protests may be disregarded as 'a tale of little meaning' 'chanted by an illused race of men'; but we shall at least have the satisfaction of having done our duty—a most painful, but I need hardly add, under the circumstances, a most imperative, duty."

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND said :—"When I brought the present Bill before Your Excellency's Council at its meeting of 1st March, I was more concerned to show the necessity out of which arose the demand for new fiscal legislation than to explain the reasons for which it had been determined that we should not at the time go further than we did in the proposals laid before the Council. It must, however, have been sufficiently evident that when we stated that our resources were at the present moment behind our requirements by Rx. 3,500,000, and brought forward demands for fiscal legislation which covered only Rx. 1,400,000, we either had some particular justification for not pressing further demands upon the tax-payers, or we had some other legislation in view. The necessity of our declaring our intentions in this matter was brought before Your Excellency's Government by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce; and Your Excellency's Government, recognizing that our public critics were justified in urging their inability to pronounce upon the present proposals without knowing something more of the full scheme of the Government, at once communicated to that Chamber and to other similar bodies the fact that no other proposals lay behind the present one; in other words, that the Government of India did not intend at the present moment to fill up by new revenue the whole of the estimated deficit.

"The appetite comes in the eating,' and I am to-day assailed with fresh enquiries as to intended measures. It is not desirable for me to anticipate otherwise than in a very general way the statement I shall have to make in a week or two to the Council as to the measures by which we mean to carry on the finance of the Government for the ensuing year, but, so far as I can, I shall try to meet the demands. The fact is that our Budget discussions are not yet complete, and there are measures still unsettled upon which Budget results depend. I do not mind admitting that I do not expect to show a revenue equal to the expenditure I shall have to meet. I cannot say as yet how far we can enforce economies so as to reduce our expenditure for the year as nearly as possible to the level of our means. But I may say at once that this is the main staple of our proposals in addition to the measure now before the Council. As regards the question of Council Bills, again I must say that until the Budget date approaches the Secretary of State may reasonably object to our announcing measures which he is still at perfect liberty to modify. But I am unwilling to refuse even this information, so far as I may give it. All I can say is that in the Home Estimates, as they lie before me, the Secretary of State does not propose to increase his drawings over the year's requirements in order to pay off the temporary debt. The precise figures will be announced in due course, and will be accompanied with the usual reservation of entire liberty to the Secretary of State to vary the amounts drawn or borrowed, as he may find occasion.

"The view which Your Excellency's Government has taken is that we are at present in a transition period, and that whatever measures we take—whether they are sufficient or insufficient to fill up the deficit in the accounts of the year 1894-95—they must be looked upon as only provisional and temporary. We are still passing through—it may be said we have only just entered upon—that currency crisis upon the settlement of which depends our future finance. Whether we shall be able to establish our rupee at what we may call a favourable figure is a question the solution of which must practically be left to experiment. Until two months ago circumstances were against us, and the experiment was practically in suspense. The period during which we have been able to watch the effect of commercial operations upon our currency is not yet more than a few weeks old—far too short a time to enable us to judge whether the falling rupee is to carry us into perpetually increasing difficulties, or whether a recovery from its present low figure is to give us some respite from our financial troubles and anxieties. Even since my statement was laid before the Council there has been a change—whether it is merely a temporary one or not, it is nevertheless an important change—in the aspect of the matter. Time has not yet declared on the one side or on the other, and it is impossible for any one as yet to pronounce whether our financial position is going to improve or going to deteriorate. It is a serious confession to make, but it is nevertheless true, that our financial position in the immediate future depends upon circumstances absolutely outside our control, and that we can do little more than watch in what direction the forces are working which will in the end either bring us security from these perpetual variations or still more serious troubles than any we have yet had to provide against.

"This then is the position we had to meet. Do what we will, the year 1894-95 must be a transition period—a period at the end of which, we have every reason to hope, we shall be far better able than we now are to judge in what direction our finance is progressing.

"Under these circumstances the question that presented itself to us was whether we were to assume that all hope of the recovery of the rupee, within some measurable distance of time, was lost, and to adopt heroic measures which would place ourselves at once in a position to meet our current rate of expenditure, even with the rupee at fourteen pence; or whether we should for the present adopt a policy of waiting for further developments, making all the temporary arrangements we could for tiding over a year of extreme difficulty, and meantime merely lay the foundation of the fiscal measures to which, in the event of our ultimately having to fill whole estimated deficit of $3\frac{1}{2}$ crores, we would be obliged to have recourse. For, as I carefully pointed out in my speech of 1st March, when the present Bill comes into operation we shall have at our disposal, not merely an additional revenue, but an additional source of revenue.

"The question of the imposition of the cotton-duties was practically the question between these two methods of procedure—the question between the final adoption of a complete scheme, intended to re-establish our finance, even at the present diminished value of the rupee; and the adoption of a scheme, admitted to be a partial remedy only, but offering possibilities of extension hereafter, if that farther experience, for which we must in any case wait before knowing what our real permanent financial condition is, should show that it is necessary for us to make further provision for our needs.

"This is the question which came before the Government of India and, so far as I am in a position to judge, from the tenor of our communications with England, before Her Majesty's Government in England. In dealing with it we, on our part, necessarily had before us the past history of the cotton-duties. The action of the Government in respect of these duties was taken under instructions received in consequence of resolutions passed by the House of Commons. The first of these, which it is unnecessary to say did not open a new question but was a pronouncement upon a matter that had been receiving public attention, was dated 11th July, 1877, and was in the following terms:—

'That, in the opinion of this House, the duties now levied upon cotton manufacture imported into India, being protective in their nature, are contrary to sound commercial policy, and ought to be repealed without delay so soon as the financial condition of India will permit.'

"This resolution was transmitted by the Secretary of State as an instruction to the Government of India.

"Two years later, a partial remission of these duties having taken place, another resolution was passed by the same House, under date 4th April, 1879. It was in these terms:—

'That the Indian import-duty on cotton goods, being unjust alike to the Indian consumer and the English producer, ought to be abolished, and this House accepts the recent reduction in these duties as a step towards their total abolition to which Her Majesty's Government are pledged.'

"The policy of this resolution was, as is well known, carried into effect, and we have loyally stood by it for fifteen years, comparatively few of which have been free of financial difficulty.

"While this resolution of the House of Commons stands on record, we must admit that the question of these duties is not open to our discretion in the same sense as the duties on other articles of the tariff. The question, however, was taken up and anxiously discussed by the Government of India whether the present circumstances constituted such financial stress as would warrant us in reversing the policy of fifteen years, or rather in claiming that the conditions attached to the resolutions themselves—vis., the ability of the finance to stand the strain—had ceased to be effective.

"I have stated to the best of my ability the question as it presented itself to our minds, and as I presume also to the minds of Her Majesty's Government. It is useless for me to enter further upon a discussion of what may be said on the two aspects of the question.

"I have listened with instruction to the arguments in favour of cotton-duties put forward by the mover of the amendment. If the matter were left to my discretion, I dare say I would incline in the direction of the Hon'ble Member's amendment. It is so much more easy for a Finance Minister to work with flowing treasuries, and to be able to meet this demand and that demand, which I am obliged to admit to be necessary in the interests of the public service. It is so much better for my personal reputation to present a budget in which, with the acclamation of the tax-payers themselves, I have taken heroic measures to make our revenue sufficient for our expenditure. I look forward with dread to my duties in the coming year, to my being obliged to refuse every demand that comes before me, however strongly backed. I admit that I have to come down from the regions of high finance to grovel, as Sir Griffith Evans says, among fish-maws and shark-fins; but these articles, notwithstanding their obnoxious name, will bring me in sufficient revenue to pay the salary of a High Court Judge for half a year, and I prefer to regard the rupees rather from the standpoint of their noble use than from that of their ignoble origin. Every consideration would induce me, personally, to support the proposal to fill my treasuries with the duties levied on cotton. But I admit there are arguments on the other side. Like any other question of imperial policy, the matter is one for the decision of Her Majesty's Government, and I stated that decision on 1st March in words which were carefully chosen so as to express what I understood to be its precise effect. The decision was explained in my speech, and I think it was also explained by Her Majesty's Secretary of State on a recent public occasion (for which, however, I have only the authority of the public telegrams), to have been come to purely with reference to present circumstances. We accept the conditions of severe economy and retrenchment which it imposes upon us for the next twelvemonth; but it is a state of financial strain which, though it may be possible to endure it for that period of time, will certainly demand relief at the end of it, unless that relief comes to us in the shape of an unexpectedly rapid recovery of the value of the rupee.

"I am anxious to clear up one misapprehension as to my meaning on 1st March. I was desirous to explain exactly what the fiscal question in my opinion was, and I referred to the difficulties of imposing a countervailing excise-duty in India. It seems to have been thought that I wished to urge that this difficulty was a reason, either to my mind or in the opinion of the Secretary of State, for refusing to impose these duties. I do not know how far these considerations may weigh with the authorities at home. But, speaking for myself, I do not admit the validity of the objection made to the duties on the ground of their protecting an Indian industry against a foreign one. I shall not enter upon the question whether that course of procedure, if it were adopted, would be so wicked a course after all. I need only say that India as a manufacturing country is not yet out of her tutelage, and, if any industry in the world deserves protection, it is the cotton industry of India, the only real indigenous industry which has sprung up in this country—an industry, moreover, on which our present currency difficulties have compelled us, in the interests, as we believe, of the country generally, to inflict a certain amount of injury. But, however we may admire free trade as a goal to be aimed at, we must not, when we are driven to the imposition of import-duties, be too ready to raise the cry of protection. As Sir John Strachey said in 1878, India, by the extent and favourable conditions of its territory, is capable of producing almost every article required for the use of man. He argued thence that any import-tariff in India must be actually and potentially protective; and that as countervailing excise-duties were generally costly, vexatious and inconvenient, and in India in most cases impracticable, it was a hopeless task to construct a tariff for India which could be theoretically free from the protective objection. If, therefore, we require the money (as is the case at present), and are compelled to have recourse to import-duties in order to raise it, we must not set up for ourselves an impossible standard, and regard the possibility of protective action as an argument against the validity of the tariff.

"I quote the following passage from Sir William Muir's speech in introducing the Tariff Bill of 1875:—

"No doubt the argument is theoretically correct that, where a commodity is produced at home, we should either free the import of that commodity, or excise its production to an extent equivalent to the import-duty, or altogether prohibit its production. But, if Hon'ble Members will cast their eye down the import schedule, they will find hardly any article which, in consequence of the vast area and varying conditions of our soil and climate, cannot be more or less produced in some part of our dominions. The argument, however perfect in theory, would prove too much in practice; for I presume no one will contend that, in deference to mere theory, we should surrender our whole revenue on imports of £1,700,000. And, in point of fact, the duty is so low that it cannot perceptibly affect the trade. This was evidently the opinion of Mr. Laing. In his Financial Statement of 1861, when vigorously denouncing all protective duties, and asserting that they "certainly could not be maintained for a couple of years," he at the same time admitted an exception where the import-duty was "so small that it would be palpably not worth while to establish a countervailing system of excise." The duty on cotton piece-goods was then 10 per cent., and that on yarn (reduced by him to) 5 per cent.; it is now but 5 and 3½ per cent., respectively. His views are still more explicitly stated in the following passage delivered on the same occasion:—

"Free trade does not mean that there shall be no taxes; but that taxes shall be levied solely with the view to revenue, and not partly for revenue and partly for protection.

"That every customs-duty on an imported article should have a corresponding excise-duty on similar articles produced at home has therefore become an axiom; and it admits of only one exception, where the amount of import-duty is so moderate that it does not seriously affect trade, while it makes it obviously inexpedient to establish an excise machinery for the sake of levying a trifling duty.

"This is the case with regard to corn in England, where a duty of 1s. a quarter, equal to 5 per cent., on the cheaper sorts of foreign grain is retained, and it is precisely our case with regard to piece-goods."

"I do not admit that the Manchester trade is so reduced in the world that it can no longer fight a fair fight. In respect of most of the Manchester products India cannot compete; the finer goods which Manchester mainly sends out to this country are beyond the power—at present at least—of Indian manufacture. India in fact cannot produce the cotton requisite for their manufacture; the climate too, as I understand, is in some cases unsuited to the processes involved. The provinces of Indian manufacture and of Manchester manufacture to a certain extent overlap, but the area which Manchester occupies, and must continue to occupy, without competition, is very wide and comprehensive. I would appeal to the Manchester manufacturers themselves to be content with the unrivalled position which their manufactures occupy, and must continue to occupy, in this country, and not to think that their maintenance of it depends upon their enjoying exemptions and privileges in India which they would never dream of asking for in any other British dependency.

“When, therefore, I stated my opinion that an excise-duty involved in India very considerable difficulties, I stated it merely by way of clearing the issues that arise in the case. If the question of the cotton-duties comes up again, as I presume it will if our finances do not improve, it is quite possible, in my opinion, to discuss its admissibility apart from any question of countervailing excise; for I do not hold that a tax of the kind is such a necessary support to a moderate import-duty that the inadvisability, or even impracticability, of an excise-duty is a proof of the impossibility of a customs-duty.

“And now, my Lord, with reference to my own vote upon the question. I have to bear in mind that the Government of India itself is a creation of an Act of Parliament, invested with definite powers, and subjected to certain restrictions. We have done our duty in laying the question before Her Majesty's Secretary of State, who, I believe, is fully informed on the subject, and we have taken his decision. That decision he has the constitutional power to communicate to us, and to enforce upon us, even if we do not admit the validity of the arguments which have commended it to him. My duty is to support the decision thus constitutionally arrived at—especially seeing that it has reference only to the question of present finance—and I shall vote against the amendment before the Council.”

The Hon'ble SIR CHARLES PRITCHARD said:—“My Lord, I cannot give a silent vote on this amendment, and if I speak at all I cannot consent to conceal my personal opinion on the important subject now under discussion. I feel bound to state that opinion, and then to explain the reasons that impel me to give a vote on this amendment which runs counter to it. My own views regarding the exclusion of cotton goods from taxation under the Indian Tariff Bill are closely allied to those expressed by the Hon'ble Member who has moved the amendment. I should have preferred a measure that would have brought into the Government treasury a more substantial revenue—one that would have effected a greater improvement in our financial position, and have enabled us to avoid part, at any rate, of the impending retrenchments of State expenditure on Railways and Irrigation works. I should have preferred a measure that would have imposed import-duties on a few of the articles of foreign manufacture which the people of India most largely consume and have left free the smaller items, the subjection of which to tariff-duties will only bring in a small amount of revenue, at the cost of some trouble to the trade in its collection; and one that followed more closely the wishes of Indian tax-payers regarding the shape in which they should make their contributions to the Exchequer. But I sit in this Council, not as an independent member, but by virtue of the office I hold as a member of the Executive Council of the Governor General. The Government of India is not an autocratic and independent authority, but is subject to the control and direction of the Home Government. In matters relating to Indian taxation, it is the constitutional duty of the Government of India to formulate proposals in Executive Council, and to submit the proposals it approves to the Home Government, which, in its wisdom, accepts, modifies or rejects those proposals. The duty of giving effect to the decision arrived at by Her Majesty's Government then rests on the Government of India. It was under these prescriptions that the Indian Tariff Bill assumed the shape in which it was introduced into this Council by my hon'ble friend the Finance Member. The question whether cotton goods should be included in, or excluded from, the Tariff schedules was anxiously considered by the Executive Council, and certain representations on the subject, in which I most heartily concurred, were on more than one occasion submitted to the Secretary of State. Her Majesty's Government has considered those representations and, viewing the subject from the wider standpoint of Imperial policy and in its relation to the interests of the Empire as a whole, has decided against the inclusion of cotton goods in the schedules of the Indian Tariff Bill. I must accept that decision and take my part in giving effect to it, and shall vote accordingly against the amendment."

The Hon'ble LIEUTENANT-GENERAL BRACKENBURY said :—" My Lord, I am personally of opinion that in the present financial situation it is desirable, in the interests of India, that import-duties should be imposed upon certain classes of cotton goods, but I intend to vote against the amendment proposed by my hon'ble friend Mr. Playfair ; and with Your Excellency's permission I will state the reasons why I shall thus vote.

"At a public meeting held in Calcutta on Thursday last, in proposing a resolution, which has been forwarded to Your Excellency's Government, calling upon this Council to reject the Indian Tariff Bill, unless it be amended so as to include cotton fabrics, the mover appealed to the members of Your Excellency's Executive Council to vote according to their judgment and conscience. It is my intention to vote according to my judgment and conscience. I cannot conceive that any member of Your Excellency's Executive Council would vote against his conscience, though he may often, in deference to the views of the majority of his colleagues, subordinate his personal judgment to theirs ; or though he may, in concert with his colleagues, subordinate his personal judgment to that of Her Majesty's Government. Every member of Your Excellency's Executive Council holds his appointment under the sign manual of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, whose constitutional power is exercised by Her Majesty's Government ; and for my own part I cannot think that, as a member of that Council, I should be justified in voting against the orders of Her Majesty's Government. In the unlikely event of orders being received from Her Majesty's Government, which I could not obey consistently with the dictates of my conscience, self-respect would impel me to what, in my opinion, would be the only course open to me, the resignation of the appointment which I hold.

"If, for example, orders were to be issued that, rather than impose additional taxation, military expenditure was to be cut down to a point which would, in my conscientious opinion, endanger the safety of British rule in India, I should consider it my duty to resign my post on Your Excellency's Council, because I could not become a party to what my conscience would tell me I ought not to consent to. But in this case my conscience gives me no such mandate.

"The broader question before us is whether import-duties shall or shall not be placed upon cotton goods. I have stated my own opinion that in the interests of India it is desirable that some such duties should be imposed. But Her Majesty's Government have wider interests to look to than those of India alone. Their range of vision is a wider one than ours. They are responsible to Her Majesty for the government of Her Majesty's Empire as a whole ; and knowing all the circumstances of this case, knowing the opinions which have been expressed here on this subject, and the feeling shown at public meetings in India, Her Majesty's Government have decided that such duties should not at present be imposed ; and I do not consider that, even if the amendment before us raised the direct question whether cotton goods should or should not be subjected to import-duties, I should be justified in pressing my own opinion against this deliberately expressed decision of Her Majesty's Government to the extent of resigning my post at such a time. The Government treasuries are full. There is no question of imminent financial danger or bankruptcy. The most that the immediate imposition of the cotton-duties would do would be to enable us to dispense with certain retrenchments of expenditure, which are to be regretted, or to prevent our decreasing the balance at our disposal. But the financial future is uncertain ; and it seems to me that, holding such opinions as I have expressed, it is my duty to remain at my post, and, unless the financial situation improves, endeavour, by such constitutional means as are open to me, to bring about a change in the views of Her Majesty's Government.

"I have thus dealt with the question, which lies at the root of Mr. Playfair's amendment, as a question of conscience only; but, when I consider what the amendment itself is, and what would be the results of accepting it, my judgment tells me that I am right in voting against it. The amendment is 'that the Bill be recommitted to the same Select Committee.' What, my Lord, would be the result of accepting this amendment, even if the Select Committee were to consent to include cotton-duties to an extent which would satisfy the mover of the amendment, and if their Report were to be accepted, and if the Bill, thus amended, were to be passed in this Council? We have the certainty that Her Majesty's Government would refuse to allow the Bill to come into operation. The only result of such a course would be, therefore, to prevent the Government of India from imposing such import-duties as it is allowed to impose, to prevent its providing so far as it can for the deficit which it has to face, and to increase the difficulties of the financial situation and the embarrassment in which the Government of India is already placed. To such action I could not be a consenting party, and for these reasons it is my intention to vote against the amendment to recommit the Bill, and in favour of the Report of the Select Committee being taken into consideration."

His Excellency THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF said:—"My Lord, following the example which has been set me by other Members of Your Lordship's Council, I am anxious to state, but very briefly, the reasons that actuate me in voting against the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.

"In the public discussions that have taken place on the Bill there have not been wanting what I may describe as challenges to members of Your Excellency's Council to vote according to what the speakers assume are the convictions of those members in this case; and it may give colour to the inferences which must be drawn from such challenges if I vote without giving reasons for the view I support. The speakers have confined themselves principally to the question of the exclusion of the cotton-duties in the abstract, without giving due weight to the most important surroundings of that question in the present connection.

"If India had an independent national existence and we were its supreme Government, as one hon'ble Native Member on the opposite side of the table seems to think when he speaks of a reference lately made by the Secretary of State to the views of the Government of India as if that Government only embraced Your Excellency's Council, there would be more force in these arguments; but it is hardly necessary for me to state that this is the exact opposite of the actual conditions, and to act as if we were independent is to shut our eyes to what is the practical political aspect before us, and to run off the line into vagaries which must inevitably lead to a deadlock.

"I am glad to say India must still be looked upon and legislated for as a component part of the British Empire, and its wants and interests must be weighed in the balances of imperial considerations. If the interests of each component part were left to its representatives to appraise and to enforce according to their own standard of relative importance, I fear there would be practical difficulties in working the Empire as a whole.

"The British Empire in India is dependent for its very existence on the material aid and support which it receives from Her Majesty's Government. Such dependence has, both in its political and ethical aspects, certain natural obligations, and the first of these obligations is subordination to imperial interests. These interests must be judged, not by the representatives of any part of that Empire, but by Her Majesty's Government who are responsible for the whole. I believe my duty as one of Your Lordship's Council to be confined to the strongest representation of what, in our more intimate local knowledge, we consider for the best interests of this great Indian Empire, and having so acquitted myself to accept loyally the decision of Her Majesty's Government. I am further convinced that to attempt to govern India on any other principle is to wander from what is practical and safe into what is fantastic and dangerous.

"I am therefore voting according to my conscience and the best of my understanding in opposing the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Playfair."

The Hon'ble MR. PLAYFAIR said :—" My Lord, I would only wish to remark that I have listened with the greatest interest to the speeches which have been delivered by Hon'ble Members during this discussion. Whatever the result of the voting may be, I think I may claim a moral victory, and under the circumstances I do not regret having put forward this amendment in the Council."

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said :—" Before a vote is taken on the amendment, I desire to say only a very few words. I do not think that any good purpose would be served by my entering upon the general debate, or renewing the arguments which my hon'ble colleague, who is in charge of the Bill, has put before you in support of the proposal that the Bill now before the Council should be passed. Still less shall I enter upon any of the personal considerations which have come somewhat prominently before the Council on this occasion. I agree with the main points of the description of individual responsibility which have been given by General Brackenbury. For myself, however much I may regret that the first large measure which has come before the Council since I have had the honour of presiding here is one that has given rise to so much dissatisfaction, I think there is no one who will doubt that my duty in the matter is plain. The point which I wish to impress upon the Council is this, that it must not be supposed that those concerned in the government of the Indian Empire, either in this country or in England, were not aware that objections could be taken to the form of the proposals embodied in the Bill before the Council. The Acts of Parliament prescribe the procedure by which decisions such as that involving taxation are arrived at, and you may take it that all the proper procedure has been faithfully observed, and that the Bill before us is the result of a decision constitutionally arrived at.

" At the same time, we, who have been entrusted with the government of India in this country, have recognized that in a case like this, where, as in all matters of taxation, it is impossible to allow much time for the various stages of a Bill, it was our duty to obtain for ourselves, and for Her Majesty's Government, all the information available as to the course of public opinion in reference to this measure.

" It has been evident that the very deepest interest has been taken in this measure by all sections of the community, and in all parts of the country. And I do not think I am exceeding my duty in saying that, so far as my observation goes, this keen interest has found an expression perfectly legitimate, and not exceeding the limits of fair discussion.

" I think I can assure you that the views entertained in this country, to which public expression has been given both before and since the introduction of this Bill, have been communicated to the Secretary of State, and fully considered by Her Majesty's Government; and I am able further to state that if after an interval sufficient to judge of the position as affected by the Tariff Act, the course of exchange, and other circumstances, there is no improvement, Her Majesty's Government will be prepared to receive a further representation on the subject.

" In the meantime it has not been possible to alter the arrangements already announced, and it is, therefore, our duty to ask the Council to proceed now with the Bill, and to pass it through its remaining stages.

" The question which I have to put to the Council is 'that the Bill to amend the Law relating to Customs-duties and for other purposes be recommended to the same Select Committee.'"

The Motion being put, the Council divided : —

Ayes.

The Hon'ble Mr. Playfair.
The Hon'ble Gangadhar Rao Madhav Chitnavis.
The Hon'ble the Mahārāja of Ajudhiā.
The Hon'ble the Mahārāja of Durbhanga.
The Hon'ble Fazulbhai Vishram.
The Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans.
The Hon'ble Dr. Rashbehary Ghose.

Noes.

The Hon'ble Mr. Lee-Warner.
The Hon'ble Mr. Clogstoun.
The Hon'ble Dr. Lethbridge.
The Hon'ble Mr. Stevens.
The Hon'ble Sir Antony MacDonnell.
The Hon'ble Mr. Westland.
The Hon'ble Sir Charles Pritchard.
The Hon'ble Lieutenant-General Brackenbury.
The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Miller.
His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.
His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT observed that he did not consider it necessary, under the circumstances, to record his vote.

The Motion was therefore negatived.

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND'S Motion that the Report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration was then put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. WESTLAND moved that the Bill, as amended, be passed. He said:—"I cannot but acknowledge that it will be impossible to bring a new Tariff Act into force without causing a certain amount of friction between merchants on the one side and Government officials on the other. A number of points are certain to arise, in practice, in which the views of these two bodies will necessarily be different. We have, however, received from the mercantile community such an amount of support in our general policy of reviving the Tariff that we shall certainly strive to do nothing to forfeit that support in our administration of it. We may expect that our officers will find some difficulties arise when they begin to exercise the new duties which the law just about to be passed imposes upon them. But I feel sure that I may confidently ask for the exercise of a little patience until matters settle down to routine. My duty is necessarily, first of all, to the Exchequer, but, subject to that first consideration, I shall certainly do my best, and I am sure that the Governments more immediately connected with the administration of the Act will do the same, to ensure that the revenue we seek shall be obtained with the least possible inconvenience to the trading community, and the least possible interruption of the flow of commerce.

"And now, my Lord, one word of a personal character before I conclude my remarks. I have taken charge of Indian finance at an especially anxious time—a time when I need all the advice and all the information that can be made available to me. I have over and over again had to ask that advice and assistance at the hands of some of my old friends and some new friends among the merchants and bankers of Calcutta. I wish to publicly express my obligations to them for the manner in which, sometimes at personal inconvenience, they have responded to my enquiries, and for the manner in which they have dealt with me when they came of their own motion to talk with me over matters relating to my work. I am the more anxious to do so in this public fashion, because very frequently in these matters my tongue has been tied, and I have been unable to show them, at the time, my appreciation of their counsel. It has been my duty, on several occasions during these last few months, to inform Your Excellency's Government of the state of matters in the commercial world; and I would wish the gentlemen at whose hands I have from time to time sought information to understand that, although they may not always see to what use the information they have given us is put, it is none the less appreciated both by Your Excellency's Government and myself. I trust they will continue to believe that we set a high value upon their support, and will continue to give us their advice and assistance, even though occasionally they are not able to concur in our policy."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 15th March, 1894.

APPROPRIATION REPORT ON THE ACCOUNTS OF 1892-93.

GENERAL REVIEW.

Throughout the report the figures are tens of rupees (Rs. 1 = Rs. 10), with the last two figures cut off for brevity, thus, 149,7 reads one hundred and forty-nine thousand seven hundred tens of rupees.

In the Budget Estimates for 1892-93 the total revenue was estimated at 88,367,9 and the expenditure chargeable against it at 88,221,3, leaving a small surplus of 146,6. The fall in the rate of exchange during 1891-92 had been so great, that in the Financial statement for 1892-93 some difficulty was experienced in securing equilibrium between revenue and expenditure. The rate of exchange was taken in the Budget Estimates at 1s. 4d. against 1s. 5½d. taken in the Budget Estimates of the previous year. It was possible to cover the heavy loss due to this fall and to secure a small surplus only by a concurrence of fortunate incidents, namely (1) the receipt of contributions to the extent of 466,3 from Local Governments on revision of the Provincial contracts, (2) anticipated growth of general revenue under the Principal Heads, (3) anticipated growth of Railway Revenue in India, and (4) a substantial improvement under Interest in India owing to there having been no borrowing for some years and to an increase in the paper currency investment. The accounts of the year now show a deficit of 833,4. During the year there was a further heavy fall in the rate of exchange, the average rate realised during it being only 1s. 2.985d. against 1s. 4d. taken in the Budget Estimate and the net charge on account of exchange being increased by 1,637,6. There has also been an increase of 384,1 or with exchange of 615,2 in the sterling expenditure in England due chiefly to the payment of 212,4, to the War Office on account of arrears of the charges for the British troops serving in India, to the adoption of a new rule for the payment of furlough allowances, retired pay and pensions monthly instead of quarterly, and to the purchase of two troopships and a dredger. In India also there was an increase of 582,4 in the expenditure on the Army due to special expeditions on the frontier and the transport charges for supply of the Gilgit Agency and to a rise in the price of food and forage. These increases in the expenditure having, however, been to some extent counterbalanced by an improvement of 990,9 in the net revenue from opium due partly to a rise in the price of Bengal opium and partly to a large saving in the payments for the same owing to a failure of the opium crop and by a moderate improvement under most of the other heads of revenue, the accounts of the year closed as mentioned above, with a deficit of 833,4. The actual revenue and expenditure of the year under the different groups are compared in detail in the following paragraphs with the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimates.

2. The only important change in the system of accounts made during the year which requires special notice here, is that recoveries made from other departments and Local Governments on account of work executed in Dockyards are now deducted from the expenditure under the head Marine instead of being shown as receipts under that head.

3. The following summary gives the Budget and Account figures of 1892-93 to be reviewed in this report, and the details will be found in the statements on pages 142 to 154 :—

for establishment. The Interest charges in 1891-92 included a considerable amount on account of discount on the sterling loan raised in that year, while those of 1892-93 included only a small amount on account of this, and the total charges were still further reduced by the transfer of a larger portion of the interest charges in India to the Railway Revenue account in consequence of additional capital expenditure on State Railways. The charges of the Post Office and Telegraph Departments increased with the extended operations of the Department, and a larger coinage of silver also involved increased outlay under Mint. In the Civil Departments the charges of 1891-92 included 182,1 on account of the Census, so that the increase in the Other Charges in 1892-93 was larger than shown above. The excess was due to the payments in England on account of the construction of two troopships and a dredger, to the payment of arrears of the subsidy of the Amir of Afghanistan, to special political expenditure in the Lushai Country and on the North-Western Frontier, and to the general growth of expenditure under this group to meet the growing demands of administration. The increase in the group Miscellaneous was the result partly of the normal increase in the charges for pensions and partly of the new arrangement made in England regarding the payment of pensions monthly instead of quarterly as before. The Famine grant was maintained in both years at the full sum of 1,500,0, but the expenditure recorded under the head Famine Relief and Insurance was smaller in 1892-93 owing to an increase in the portion of the charges shown in the Railway Revenue Account on account of the net loss in working the protective railways constructed through the agency of companies, namely, the Indian Midland and the Bengal-Nagpur Railways. The increase in the net loss just mentioned was due partly to a falling off in the net traffic receipts of the railways and partly to the fall in the rate of exchange having enhanced the charges on account of interest on their capital expenditure. The increase under Construction of Railways is accounted for by the fact that a larger portion of the capital expenditure on Railways was met from general revenues and charged to this head. In the Railway Revenue Account there was a decrease in the working expenses of State Railways owing to the generally smaller traffic worked during the year, to smaller renewals of permanent-way and repairs of rolling stock on many of the lines, to smaller payments of surplus profits to the East Indian Railway and, on account of the Rajputana Malwa Railway, to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway. The surplus profits of Guaranteed Railways were also smaller, and there was a special recovery from the Assam-Bengal Railway on account of the cost incurred by Government on surveys connected with the line. These decreases were, however, counterbalanced to some extent by an increase in the interest charges resulting from the progress of construction. In the Irrigation section a falling off in the expenditure on Minor Works was nearly met by increases in the working expenses of Major Works and in the charges for Interest on Debt. As regards Buildings and Roads owing to the revision of the Provincial contracts in 1892-93, the Provincial Governments assigned considerably smaller grants for expenditure under this head. In the previous year the Imperial expenditure also was high owing to the necessity for undertaking famine relief works in Upper Burma, to the execution of special repairs to the buildings at Quetta damaged by abnormal winter rains, and to the construction of the Quetta Water Works and Morgha Gomal road. Under Army there was specially heavy expenditure in 1891-92 in connection with the Manipur and other frontier expeditions, the cold weather field operations in Upper Burma, the preparations made to facilitate mobilisation, the augmentation of transport and the purchase of additional ordnance mules and remounts in India and of ordnance stores in England. The decrease in the expenditure in 1892-93 due to these causes was, however, more than counterbalanced by an arrear payment of 212,4 in respect of the Home charges of British forces serving in India, by a large increase in the charges for pay and pensions of non-effective and retired officers of the Indian service owing to their disbursement monthly instead of quarterly as before, by an increase in the charges for the pay of British troops which was issued at a rate of exchange of 1s. 4½d. in 1892-93 against 1s. 6½d. in 1891-92, and by the increased expenditure involved by a rise in the prices of food and forage. The expenditure on Special Defence Works is decreasing owing to the approach to completion of the important works included in the programme.

Comparison of Accounts with Budget Estimates of 1892-93.

10. The following figures exhibit the differences in the net accounts between the Budget and the Actuals, the loss due to the fall in the rate of exchange which was taken in the Budget at 1s. 4d. being shown in a separate column. The comparison of the gross figures has been given before under paragraph 3 :—

	Due to fall in exchange.	Better + Due to other causes.	Worse— Net.
Principal Heads of Revenue	— 3,6	+ 2,027,5	+ 2,023,9

11. The net improvement of 2,023,9 under the Principal Heads of Revenue is made up of an increase of 1,199,0 in the revenue and a saving of 824,9 in the expenditure. The increase in revenue occurred principally under Opium (358,6), Land Revenue (229,8), Stamps (218,9), Excise (140,1), Salt (111,4), and Provincial Rates (83,4), while the saving in expenditure occurred chiefly under Opium (632,3), Forest (105,3) and Land Revenue (94,6). The Interest charges were higher owing to no provision having been made in the Budget for the discount on the new loan raised in England during the year, and for the extra expenditure involved in India by the conversion of the $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loans of 1878 and 1879. As regards Post Office, Telegraph, and Mint sufficient allowance was not made in the Budget for the expansion of the operations of the Postal and Telegraph Departments, and for the exceptionally high Silver Coinage of the year. Under Civil Departments the charges of the Marine and Political Departments were higher than the Budget, owing, respectively to the purchase of two troopships and a dredger, and to the payment of arrears of the Amir's subsidy, to the high charges of the North Lushai Agency and to those of some special missions on the North-Western frontier. The net result under Miscellaneous was worse than the Budget, owing partly to a falling off in the receipts from Gain by Exchange, and partly to an increase in the charges under Stationery and Printing and for Pensions, in consequence of the new arrangement for paying them in England monthly instead of quarterly as before. The charges actually recorded under Famine Relief and Insurance were smaller than the Budget, as the portion of the fixed amount, shown under the Railway Revenue Account was larger in consequence of an increase in the net charge on account of the Protective Railways. This also led to a larger amount of capital expenditure being shown under Construction of Railways, the grant under which was accordingly exceeded. The improvement in the Railway Revenue Account was derived chiefly from a brisk traffic on the Rajputana-Malwa, East Indian, and Burma Railways, counterbalanced by a falling off on the North-Western and the Bengal-Nagpur Railways, and also from the refund by the Assam-Bengal Railway of the expenditure incurred by Government on surveys connected with the line. The improvement under Irrigation was derived almost wholly from increased revenue under Major Works—Direct Receipts. This was due to an extension of irrigation from canals in the Punjab and North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the recovery of arrears of water rates in Bengal and to the season having been more favourable for canal irrigation in Madras and Bombay. Under Buildings and Roads there was a special credit on account of the sale of the ferries over the rivers Gogra and Chowka at Byram Ghat to the Bengal and North-Western Railway Company, and there were also as usual large savings on the Budget Grants for expenditure. The increase in the Army charges resulted from the payment to the War Office of some arrears of the Home charges of British troops serving in India which, it was expected, would be paid in the previous year, from the introduction of the new system of paying retired and non-effective pay in England monthly instead of quarterly as before, from the charges of the Kajuri Kach Force, Kurrum Escort, Kashmere Transport, and the Lushai and other expeditions, and from a rise in the prices of food and forage. The lapse under Special Defence Works was caused chiefly by smaller payments in England for stores and armaments.

12. The Budget estimated for an excess expenditure of 1,015,1 on the whole account, but a sum of 1,161,7 out of the Provincial and Local Expenditure was payable from past accumulations of balances, leaving a net surplus in the Imperial account of 146,6. The accounts close with a deficit of 833,4 in the Imperial account, and a deficit in the Provincial and Local account of 177,4. The net Imperial Revenue has, therefore, been worse than the Budget by $146,6 + 833,4$ or 980,0, and the Provincial and Local Expenditure has been better by $1,161,7 - 177,4$ or 984,3. 14. The actuals exceeded the Budget Estimate by 1,199,0. Of this improvement 358,6 occurred under Opium, being due chiefly to higher prices having been realised at the sales for Bengal Opium, and 229,8 under Land Revenue, chiefly in consequence of the revision of settlements in some districts of Burma and Bombay having brought in a larger increase of revenue than was anticipated. Stamp and Excise revenue also had their normal growth, the improvements having been 218,9 and 140,1 respectively, while Salt and Provincial Rates contributed 111,4 and 83,4, the former being due to an exceptionally brisk demand for Sambhar Salt under the through traffic system, and the latter to a great extent to revaluations in Bengal. On the other hand, there was a decline of 74,2 in the revenue under Customs, due to a falling off in the exports of rice from Burma and Bengal, chiefly in consequence of the low prices of the article which prevailed in Europe during the year.

15. Compared with the actuals of the previous year there was a total improvement of 1,550,4, of which 939,5 occurred under Land Revenue, due chiefly to the low collections in Madras in the previous year owing to scarcity, which necessitated the recovery of a considerable amount of arrears in 1892-93, and led to a difference of 700,4 between the collections of the two years, and partly to a revision of settlements in Burma and Bombay. The remainder of the improvement was contributed chiefly by Stamps (186,4), Excise (125,3), Provincial Rates (203,7), and Forest (100,7).

16. The receipts under this head exceeded by 939,5, those of the year 1891-92 in which there was a falling off in Madras owing to the prevailing scarcity. During 1892-93 there was a large recovery of arrears in Madras, this Province alone accounting for 700,4 out of the total excess of 939,5, and there was also an improvement in Burma (125,7) chiefly in miscellaneous receipts in Upper Burma and in Bombay (114,2), where both Ordinary Revenue and Assessments of Alienated Lands showed a considerable improvement. As compared with the Budget Estimate, the actuals showed an increase of 229,8, of which Ordinary Land Revenue Collections account for 102,2, and the Assessment of Alienated Lands in Bombay for 71,8; the rest of the improvement occurring in Fisheries in Lower Burma, Nazarana receipts in the Punjab, and other miscellaneous items.

17. Under Ordinary Land Revenue the chief item of improvement over the Budget was an increase of 84,7 in Lower Burma due to the settlement operations in Thongwa and Amherst Districts having brought an additional area of about 300,000 acres under assessment, to the rates having been enhanced from July 1892 in certain circles of the Pegu District, and to the full rate of assessment having been imposed, under orders issued during the year, upon culturable land left fallow by the owners without satisfactory reason. In Bombay there was an increase of 65,5 due to the introduction of Revised Survey Rates in Khandesh, to the postponement of revenue payable in 1891-92 owing to scarcity in Belgaum and Bijapur, which was paid this year, to the revision of settlements in several taluks in Shikarpur, and to a special receipt of 6,9 on account of sale proceeds of land on the Esplanade. In Madras there was an increase of 39,0, due to increased collection of arrears on account of the previous year. In India there was an improvement of 5,8, chiefly in Ajmere, where there was scarcity and distress in 1891-92, and in Assam of 4,7, due mainly to extension of cultivation. In Bengal there was a net improvement of 7,9 due to increased collections from Government estates, counterbalanced by a deficiency of 37,6 in the collection of fixed Revenue, chiefly in the districts of Purneah, Shahabad, Faridpur and Midnapore. On the other hand, the actuals fell short of the Budget by 82,8 in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, owing to heavy floods in the Azamgarh District; to remissions and abatement of land revenue on deteriorated lands and in villages which had suffered from hail in the districts of Dehra Dun, Etawah, Banda, Cawnpore, and Jalaun; and to the non-realization, to their full extent, of the arrears of 1891-92. In the Punjab there was a deficiency of 22,8 as compared with the Budget, owing to delay in the introduction of revised assessments in the Lahore District and to remissions and suspensions rendered necessary by a bad harvest. In both these Provinces, however, the receipts exceeded those of 1891-92.

18. As compared with the Revised Estimate, the accounts under this head showed only a difference of 9,0 in the total, although there were larger variations in some of the Provinces. In Upper Burma the forecasts of the Revenue Officers were too sanguine; in the North-Western Provinces the anticipation that some of the deficiency in February would be made up in March was not realized; while in Bombay some advance collections caused an excess over the Revised Estimate.

19. Under Assessment of Alienated Lands less Quit Rents, the increase of 71,8 in Bombay was due to the introduction of Revised Survey Rates.

20. Under Sale of Proprietary Right, Sale of Waste Lands and Receipts for improvement of Government Estates, there was an increase of 3,0 in the Punjab, due chiefly to a special credit of 2,9 in connection with lands on the Sohág and Para Canal, in the Montgomery District. The actuals of 1891-92 in Bengal included a special receipt of 8,1 on account of the sale-proceeds of leases under the new waste land lease rules.

21. Under Fisheries and Miscellaneous receipts, there was an improvement over the Budget Estimate of 3,7 in India, chiefly on account of grazing fees in Baluchistan, which show a progressing increase, and of 1,9 in the Central Provinces, due partly to larger receipts from quarries in the Saugor District. In Upper Burma the receipts exceeded those of 1891-92 by 72,5, the improvement being chiefly in the Thathameda tax and the receipts from Petroleum wells; but they fell short of the Revised Estimate by 30,6 owing to the non-realization of 40,0, due from the Ruby Mines Company. In Lower Burma there was an increase of 14,3 over the Budget, chiefly owing to better receipts from Fisheries, especially in the Mergui and Henzada Districts. In Assam there was an improvement of 2,9 in House-tax collections and in Fisheries; in Bengal an increase of 2,6, due to larger receipts from sale proceeds of trees, and from grazing collections in Jalpiguri; and in Madras an increase of 10,4 in arrear collections. In the Punjab the receipts under this head were less than in 1891-92 by 20,1. The difference occurred in the receipts connected with the Chenab colonization scheme, the sale proceeds of waste lands being 36,8 less and Nazarana and recoveries on account of cost of Survey 13,5 and 3,9 respectively more than in the preceding year. The Budget appears to have taken no account of these receipts, which explains the increase over the Budget of 25,9. The accounts of 1892-93 also include 2,1 for Judicial Record Fees which was entered in the Budget under XVIIA—Law and Justice, Courts of Law.

22. Under Land Revenue due to Irrigation the increase over the previous year was chiefly due to the fact that the Revenue fell off in 1891-92, owing to large remissions granted in Madras on account of the unfavourable season and to an insufficient supply of water in the canals in Sind.

25 The receipts from the sale of Bengal opium exceeded the estimate and the actuals of the previous year by 423.3 and 143.6, respectively. The Budget calculated upon the sale of 54,000 chests at Rs 1,050 per chest, but owing to an unfavorable crop the total sales had to be reduced to 48,852 chests. The average price realized (Rs 1,247 a chest) was, however, considerably in excess of the estimated price, (Rs 1,050) and the increased receipts from this cause more than met the reduction in the quantity sold. In 1891-92 Bombay opium was exported to an unusually large amount; a large stock accordingly remained in hand in China at the end of the year, and a smaller quantity was required for export in 1892-93. Under Excise Opium there was an improvement of 10.7 in Lower Burma attributable to the suppression of smuggling, to increased consumption of the raw article following the stoppage of the sale of all noxious preparations therefrom, and to the consumers having laid in larger supplies in anticipation of the imposition of restrictive measures. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the increase was due to stoppage of smuggling and to a good harvest. The deterioration in Upper Burma was caused by large imports of foreign opium.

27. The actuals for the past five years, during which no change in the rates of duty has occurred, have been as follows:—

	India.	Burma.	Bengal.	Madras.	Bombay.	TOTAL.
1888-89	1,852,0	30,9	2,281,7	1,649,9	1,861,1	7,675,6

1892-93	2,118,1	162,2	2,410,1	1,721,2	2,244,5	8,656,1

There is again a slight improvement on the whole; but the rate of improvement is gradually diminishing.

28. As compared with the Budget, there is an improvement of 111,4, mainly the outcome of an increase of 138,1 in India and a decrease of 35,5 in Bombay.

29. Changes either of administration or of classification have occurred during 1892-93, which vitiate a comparison of the results under minor heads in some of the Provinces. Thus in Bombay some portion of the duty hitherto collected as Excise duty has, in consequence of the termination of the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty, been transferred to duty on imported salt, as it is now collected as Customs duty at frontier stations. In India and Madras changes in classification have led to transfers of Revenue between the first two heads. In the former the receipts from the Kohat mines and the Government share of the Mundi Revenue, amounting in 1892-93 to 31,5 and in Madras the duty on Government salt, are now very properly classified as Excise duty instead of being included under the sale proceeds of Government salt.

30. Allowing for these changes the only points requiring notice are mentioned below. In India there was an improvement on the original estimate under sale of Government salt, of 12,0 due to increased demand for Sambhar salt under the through traffic system, and under Excise duty of 125,6 ascribable to larger sales of Sambhar as well as of the Punjab mines rock salt. In Burma the falling off in the receipts under Excise duty was due to the inability of the locally manufactured salt to compete with imported salt, the revenue from which was, however, adversely affected by larger importations of ngapi which led to the failure of the estimate. In Bengal the revenue from duty on imported salt is steadily progressing. The Budget counted on an increase of 11,0 over the Revised Estimate of the previous year, and the actuals exceeded the Budget by 14,7. The Revised Estimate was framed in view of the low realisations during the first 11 months, but the deficiency was more than counterbalanced by unusually heavy receipts in March. In Madras there was a slight fall in the total sales of Government salt, the demand for the salt of the Pandraka factory in the Hyderabad markets having been less than was anticipated. Leaving out of account the duty on Government salt transferred from the first head the receipts from excise duty showed an advance of 18,1 over the estimate, due to the high price of Government paper, which prevailed during the greater part of the year, having led to an increase in the cash sales and a diminution of sales under the credit system. This cause operated in a higher degree during 1891-92 in which the receipts were considerably higher. The increase under Miscellaneous arose from the higher rates of cess levied on Excise factories, so as to cover the large outstanding balances of the previous year and the expenditure on licensees' works incurred by Government during the year. In Bombay the Excise and Customs duty taken together show a falling off, the collections in 1891-92 having been exceptionally high.

31. The revenue under this head showed, as usual, more or less, improvement in almost all the provinces. The actuals of 1892-93 exceeded those of the preceding year by 186,4 and the estimate by 218,9. To these figures Court-fees contributed 107,7. and 152,3 and commercial stamps 76,9 and 67,9 respectively. The Court-fee Revenue is of a very elastic nature and in most of the provinces in which an improvement occurred sufficient allowance for this was not made in the estimates. In Madras, however, the establishment of additional Courts of Law contributed to the improvement in the receipts, while in Bombay the advance was largely due to a special receipt of 12,7 as probate duty on the estate of a Parsi millionaire. The decline in Assam of 4,6 was due to decrease in litigation caused by an unfavorable season and scarcity in Sylhet, which contributes the bulk of the revenue in this province. The increase under Sale of commercial and other stamps was pretty general, the largest improvements occurring in Bengal and Madras. In the Central Provinces the deterioration compared with the estimate is only nominal. The estimate provided 12,2 on account of revenue from the sale of Forest stamps, but receipts from these were credited in the accounts to IX.—Forest. Neglecting the effects of this change in classification there was an improvement on the Estimate.

32. Except a fall of 1,6 in Assam, 1,6 in the Punjab and 2,8 in Madras, due in all cases to temporary causes, the Excise revenue showed an advance in all the provinces, the total increase over the actuals of the preceding year having been 125,3. The estimate of the year was also exceeded by 140,1.

33. In India the improvement under license and distillery fees resulted partly from the growth of revenue in Baluchistan, and partly from the enhancement of the rate of still-head duty from Rs. 5 to Rs. 4 per gallon in Bangalore. In the Central Provinces the revenue was swelled in 1891-92 by advance collections in some of the districts. The estimate for Lower Burma, which was based on the actuals of the previous year, was cautiously framed, as it was expected that the introduction of restrictive measures then in contemplation would diminish the revenue. The prohibition of the sale of noxious preparations of opium and their consumption in the shops operated to diminish the revenue from opium license-fees by 6,5, which, however, was more than counterbalanced by an increase in the license-fees, for sale of foreign liquor and tari, distillery fees and duty on Madras liquor. In Upper Burma the increase under License and Distillery fees and Duties is attributed to larger sales from the Mandalay distilleries in consequence of the closing of the Rangoon distillery. The decline in receipts from excise opium was due to larger importations of foreign opium. In Assam the estimate anticipated a considerable falling off in the revenue from license and distillery fees consequent on the failure of the ganja crop in Rajshahi, whence Assam obtains its supply; the actuals however turned out better. Bengal as in the previous year showed the greatest increase: the actuals for 1891-92 were exceeded by 46,1 and the estimate by 64,5. The improvement was chiefly under License fees for sale of liquors and drugs other than opium and under still-head duty. In the North-Western-Provinces and Oudh the increase is almost entirely under still-head duty and is due to enhancement of rates and the introduction of differential rates of still-head duty in lieu of uniform rates. In the Punjab, the Budget counted on the normal improvement in the revenue derived from license and distillery fees, but owing to the extraordinary unhealthiness which prevailed during the latter half of 1892-93, only a portion of the improvement was realized. The variations under Opium arose chiefly from the inclusion in the actuals for 1891-92 and in the estimates, of the duty on Malwa opium imported into the Native States in the Punjab, the repayments to the Native States having been charged to Refunds, whereas in the accounts for 1892-93 the net revenue only has been credited. In Madras the decline in receipts from license and distillery fees was caused by a falling off in the realisations from excise duty on country spirits and rentals owing to an unfavorable season. The improvement under Opium has accrued from an increase in the transport duty on imported opium. The decline in Other Receipts was owing to the revenue from fines having been less than anticipated. In Bombay the estimate was cautiously framed in anticipation of bad harvests in some districts checking the consumption of liquor. The Revised was raised a little too high with reference to the comparatively large receipts during the earlier months, which however were not maintained throughout.

34. The total receipts under this head show an improvement of 83,4 over the Budget, of which 48,8 occurred in Bengal, 25,4 in Madras, and 8,8 in Lower Burma. Bombay showed a falling-off of 8,1. In other provinces the actuals corresponded closely with the estimate. In Bengal the increase occurred chiefly under road-cess and public works cess in consequence of revaluations. In Madras the increase as compared with the Budget is accounted for by the normal growth of the revenue; the collections in 1891-92 were abnormally low owing to the scarcity which prevailed in several districts. In Burma the improvement under this head followed that in the land revenue collections. In Bombay the estimate anticipated an advance upon the good results of 1891-92, which was however not realised.

35. There was a falling off of 74,2 as compared with the Budget, and of 83,7 as compared with the actuals of the previous year. The fall occurred entirely under Export duties, there being a considerable increase from Import duties. In Burma and Bengal the import duties yielded larger revenues than anticipated, owing to an increase in the imports of kerosine-oil, liquor and wines. On the other hand, there was a falling off in the export duties in both the provinces on account of low prices in Europe, aggravated in the case of Burma by combination amongst merchants to keep local prices down, and in that of Bengal by the rice crop having been below the average. The decrease in Madras under the first head was due to a decline in the imports of kerosine-oil and Colombo arrack, and under the second to a fall in the exports of rice from Tanjore. There was an advance, however, upon the actuals of the previous year, chiefly in consequence of the collection of duty on the exports of rice to Goa on the termination of the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty. The improvement under the last minor head is attributed partly to the large quantities of rice which paid land customs for shipment at Karikal, which now offers greater facilities for exportation than British Indian Ports, and partly to the confiscation in Madras under the Merchandise Marks Act of piece-goods of the value of 1,2. In Bombay, in spite of smaller importations of liquor, and petroleum in Sind, owing, in the former case, to the growing popularity of country spirits from their cheapness, the importations of brandy and whiskey in the presidency proper were large enough to secure an improvement over the previous year. The improvement under export duties was obtained from larger exports of rice to Mauritius, Zanzibar, Mozambique, Aden, Muscat, and Ceylon, which were checked in 1891-92 by the high prices prevailing in Bombay. The increase under the last head was due chiefly to the duties collected in consequence of the termination of the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty.

36. The receipts under this head showed an improvement over the Budget Estimate of 41,0; and over the accounts of 1891-92 of 33,4. The improvement was general and is attributed to more careful assessment. The chief items of increase are 7,7 in Lower Burma, 12,8 in Madras, and 17,5 in Bombay. The improvement in the last-mentioned Province occurred chiefly in the tax on surplus profits of Railways and on profits of Companies. In Bengal the receipts showed a progressive increase from 1888-89 to 1891-92, but fell off in 1892-93. This is attributed to the figures of 1891-92 having been inflated by arrear collections.

37. As usual the India figures include, in addition to the collections made in the districts directly administered by the Government of India, the recoveries in the Non-civil Departments from the salaries of Government officers. The details are given below :—

38. The accounts of 1892-93 showed an improvement in the Revenue under this head of 24.1 over the Budget Estimate, and of 100.7 over the accounts of 1891-92. The whole of this improvement is more than accounted for by larger receipts in Lower Burma, where there was an increase of 99.0 over the Budget Estimate, and of 147.4 over the accounts of 1891-92, due to larger sales of timber. In Bengal, Central Provinces, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Punjab, Madras, and Bombay there was a considerable decline, the reasons for which are explained in detail below. The Revised Estimate of the year also proved too sanguine in Madras, North-Western Provinces and Oudh and Bombay.

39. Under Timber and other produce removed by Government Agency there was a total deficiency of 49.9 as compared with the Budget, but this deficiency was more than covered by an increase of 50.4 under Timber, etc., removed by consumers and purchasers. The two heads are to a certain extent complementary to each other, the operations of Government agencies contracting and expanding as private agencies are more or less active. Taking the two heads together the special features are noticed below. In India the improvement was mainly due to the sale in London at better prices of larger cargoes of timber from the Andamans, and an increase in the sales of Sandal wood at Coorg. In the Central Provinces the deficiency was due partly to the myabolams of the previous year's collection not having been sold in consequence of a great fall in prices. In Assam the small improvement was due to the demand for sleepers for the Bengal-Assam Railway. In Lower Burma the large improvement of 39.5 under Head I was due to larger sales in Pegu and a rise in prices in Tenasserim, and that of 43.1 under Head II, was due to a large outturn of teak extracted by Messrs. Macgregor and Co.; to fees for removing bamboos from unreserved forests, which were introduced after the preparation of the Budget; and to enhanced rates for the extraction of Thingum boat hulls. In Bengal the receipts under Head I fell off owing to the closing of the Darjeeling Fuel Depot and the Julpiguri and Buxa Timber Depôts, while the decrease under Head II was partly due to the check on consumption caused by the introduction of enhanced rates in the Sunderbuns Division. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the receipts were less owing to the Rajputana-Malwa Railway having taken over a smaller quantity of sleepers; to the price of sleepers sold to the North-Western Railway not having been credited in the accounts of the year; and to a smaller supply of fuel to the Commissariat Department. In the Punjab the receipts were less owing to general dullness of the market and to the delivery of less fuel than was expected to the North-Western Railway. In Madras the revenue was affected by the scarcity of the previous year, and by the unfavourable season in some districts. In Bombay the large increase anticipated was not realized and the actuals differed but slightly from those of the previous year.

40. Under Other Receipts there was an increase of 23.6, of which 13.7 occurred in Lower Burma, and was due to the brisk demand for foreign teak timber; to larger revenue from sawpit licenses; and to an increase in the number of cases compounded by Forest Officers.

41. Excepting a slight decline in Assam due to scarcity in Sylhet, the receipts under this head show an advance in all the provinces on the actuals for the preceding year as well as upon the Budget Estimate of 1892-93. With the multiplication of sub-registry offices and the progress of the country in education and prosperity, the importance of registration is being more and more appreciated. In Bombay the number of registrations increased from 296,057 in 1891-92 to 314 691 in 1892-93. In the Punjab a great impetus was given to registration by a decision of the Chief Court giving priority to registered documents over unregistered documents, which has created an impression in the public mind that no deed affecting immovable property is safe unless registered. In Madras the striking increase noticeable under Other Receipts proceeded from the recovery of fees on the numerous searches instituted in registration offices in connection with the grant of advances under the Land Improvement Act. It was expected that the receipts from this special source, which merely result from a payment from one pocket into another (see paragraph 47), would fall off, and a low figure was consequently taken in the Budget; but they continued at a high level during the year; and in the Revised an excess over the previous year's figure was anticipated, which was not, however, realized owing to the restrictions imposed latterly by the Government on the grant of loans.

42. The receipts under this head are for the most part fixed. The fluctuations that are observable arise either from the non-payment of dues, or from collections in advance or arrears. In the case of Oodeypur the Budget was fixed at the amount payable by the Durbar, but as the payment in the preceding year fell in arrear by 3,5, the Revised was raised by that amount. The actual payment however was short by 5,0. The excess in Kathiawar tribute was due to realisations of arrears. The fluctuations in the contribution from the Baroda State were caused (1) by the inclusion in the actuals for 1891-92 of an arrear realisation of 9; (2) by the deduction of 8,9 in the Budget in view of the claim of the Durbar for the maintenance of the contingent after its nominal disbandment, which was not however settled before the end of the year; (3) by non-payment of 4 within the year by some minor states in the Mahi Kanta Agency. As regards "Tributes and Contributions under 5,000," the variations in Burma were caused chiefly by larger collections from the Shan States. In Assam the tribute from the Manipur State of 5,0, provided in the Revised, was not paid till the next year.

43. The expenditure in this section showed a saving of 824.9 on the Budget and of 85.5 compared with the actuals of 1891-92. Of the saving on the Budget 632.3 occurred under Opium, due to a very unfavourable crop in Bengal; 105.3 under Forest, due partly to the Estimate having been placed too high, and partly to a contraction of departmental operations in consequence of a slackness in the demand for timber, and 94.6 under Land Revenue, which occurred chiefly in Allowances to District and Village Officers. On the other hand there was an increase of 52.1 under Assignments and Compensations, which occurred in the adjustments of Alienated Land Revenue in Bombay, and was due to revision of settlements and extension of cultivation. The decrease compared with the actuals of the previous year is the net outcome of a decrease of 259.3 under Opium and of increases of 101.3 under Land Revenue, due partly to extended survey and settlement operations in Bengal and Upper Burma; and partly to a general rise in the charges of District Administration; of 35.9 under Assignments and Compensations, due principally to the cause which occasioned the difference between the Actuals and the Budget; of 21.3 under Forests, due to increased charges for establishment and of petty increases under most of the other heads.

44. The charges under this head, on account of their fluctuating character, do not admit of an accurate forecast, but a few of the principal variations are noticed below. In Bombay, where the largest divergence occurs, the excess over the estimate under Stamps was caused by the refund to the Bombay Port Trust of 3.1 in connection with the composition of stamp duty chargeable on their debentures. In the case of Customs the difference is explained by the fact that while the estimate provided for the payment of only 16.5 as the share of the Portuguese Indian Government of the common Customs receipts, the amount actually paid was 19.5. In 1891-92 there was no payment on this account. The excess under Assessed Taxes was caused by a special refund of 1,5 of the tax recovered from the employés of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway residing in the Berars and the Nizam's dominions. The increase under Other Revenue Refunds arose from the payment of 8 on account of 1 anna cess to the Thakore Sahib of Limdi, in accordance with the decision of the Secretary of State. The difference in the results of the two years under Salt is due to a special payment of 1,1 in Goa in 1891-92, in connection with the disallowance of the purchase of the stock of Salt on the termination of the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty, which was referred to in the last Report. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the refunds of Land Revenue were inflated by special payments made in certain districts under orders of the Local Government; while the excess under the last head is due to larger refunds of Local and Patwari rates and of advance payments made for Excise settlements which were subsequently cancelled. The only other province in which there has been excess expenditure is Madras, where the excess is attributed to the variable character of the charges under this head, but the Budget appears to have been pitched too low. The differences in other provinces do not call for special notice.

46. The expenditure was less than the Budget Estimate by 94,6, but more than in 1891-92 by 101,3. The saving, as compared with the Budget, occurred chiefly in Allowances to District and Village Officers in Madras and Bombay, in which there was an over-estimate, and in Settlement charges in the Punjab. The increase over 1891-92 was due to a general rise in the Charges of District Administration, which account for 35,6 or rather more than a third of the total increase; to Survey and Settlement expenditure on an enlarged scale, in Upper Burma (20,6) and Bengal (44,7); and to additional expenditure on Land Records and Agriculture (8,9) especially in Bombay and Burma.

47. Under Charges of District Administration the actuals agreed almost exactly with the Budget: excesses of 28,1 in Madras, and 3,4 in Bengal being counterbalanced by savings of 7,3 and 4,9 in Central Provinces and Assam, where sufficient allowance was not made in the Budget for savings in the salaries of officers and Establishment, of 7,5 in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, which occurred chiefly in the charges for the Kanungo Establishment, and of 12,1 in Bombay, where it was due chiefly to the lapsing of a provision of 2,4 for the formation of a new Collectorate in Sind, to the transfer of 5,2 on account of local purchases of stationery to "30—Stationery and Printing," and to the new agricultural staff required for the Southern and Central Divisions not having been entertained from the commencement of the year. The excess in Madras was due to too large a credit having been taken in the Budget for savings on account of the absence of officers on leave out of India, to an unusually large number of officers having taken privilege leave during the year, to the large amount of fees paid for searches in Registration offices in connection with the extraordinary advances made under the Land Improvement and Agriculturists' Loans Acts (counterbalanced by a corresponding increase of Revenue under Registration—see paragraph 41) to the remuneration paid to copyists on account of the introduction from the beginning of the year of copy stamped papers in Revenue offices, and to a large increase in the Postage charges.

48. Under Survey and Settlement there was an excess of 14,1 in Bengal, chiefly in Professional Survey charges connected with the Settlement operations in Orissa and Chittagong and of 3,8 in Bombay, due to the charge for the re-survey of the River Indus, sanctioned by the Government of India in the course of the year and to the contributions from Talukdaree estates, which are adjusted by deduction from expenditure, not having been paid during the year. This excess was met by a re-appropriation from the savings under Land Records and Agriculture. But there were savings of 9,8 in North-Western Provinces and Oudh and 3,9 in Madras, in both of which provinces the Budget had been framed too high; of 11,8 in the Punjab, and of 2,0 in India, due to the early completion of the Hissar, Ferozepore and Gurdaspur and of the Coorg settlements respectively; and of 3,5 in Assam, due chiefly to a provision of 2,3 for Ilam settlements in Sylhet not having been utilised owing to the postponement of the Survey operations.

49. As compared with 1891-92, there was an increase 56,5, owing chiefly to extended operations in Bengal and Upper Burma.

50. Under Land Records and Agriculture the increase as compared with 1891-92, is due to the appointment of a Superintendent of Land Records in Assam, and of a Deputy Director for the Land Records Branch in Madras, and to charges for additional agricultural inspectors in Bombay. The decrease as compared with the Budget occurred chiefly in Bombay and Madras, due in the former to the provision for additional agricultural establishments, etc., not having been fully utilised, and to a provision of 3,2 for Office accommodation having been transferred to the Public Works Department, and in the latter to the appointment of an Agricultural expert, for which provision was made in the Budget, not having been sanctioned.

51. Under Management of Government Estates, there was a decrease of 1,8 as compared with the Budget, of which 1,6 occurred in Bengal in consequence of the provision for miscellaneous improvements not having been fully utilized. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh there was a special payment of 5,0 in 1891-92 to Messrs. Begg, Dunlop & Co. as compensation for the surrender of their lease of the Ghazipur Farm to Government.

52. Under Commission on Collections there was an excess of 3,6, in Upper Burma due to larger collections of Thathameda, and a saving of 5,4 in Lower Burma, owing to the commission earned not having been fully paid in the year and of 2,2 in Assam, where these charges have been steadily declining since 1885-86, owing to Tehsildar Agency supplanting collection by Mouzadars. In India the increase, as compared with 1891-92, was due to the charges in Baluchistan being for the first time shown here instead of being deducted from receipts.

53. Under Allowances to District and Village Officers there was a saving of 67,2, as compared with the Budget, of which 42,5 occurred in Madras owing to the non-introduction, to the extent expected, of the scheme for the revision of Village Establishments; 11,2 occurred in Bombay in Village Establishments in the Sind districts; and 9,8 occurred in North-Western Provinces and Oudh owing, chiefly, to the transfer of the charges for allowances to the Rani of Chilari, to the Maharaja of Benares, to Raja Sambhu Narayan Singh of Ghazipur, and to the Raja of Bariapur from this head to "2.—Assignments and Compensations," and also of the charges on account of the Superintendent of the Maharaja of Benares' family Domains, to the minor head Charges of District Administration. The increase in Bombay as compared with 1891-92 was due to arrear payments in the Dharwar District.

54. The chief difference under this head occurs in Bengal under Cultivation and Manufacturing charges in both the agencies, which taken together show a saving of 625,5. The estimate was based on the assumption that an average crop would be obtained, but the outturn was on a much smaller scale. Smaller expenditure on account of commission to Amlahs in both the agencies added to smaller expenditure on Petty Construction and Repairs in Behar, and on Rewards and Purchase of Tents in the Benares agency produced the savings under Establishment and Contingencies in spite of larger expenditure under Tour Charges in the latter agency.

55. The details of the Cultivation and Manufacturing charges are given below. The charges, being dependent on the produce of opium, are liable to heavy fluctuations from year to year:—

56. The total expenditure under this head fell short of the Estimate by 38,8. With the single exception of Bengal, in which the Estimate was exceeded by 7,2, there were savings in all the provinces. In India the saving was chiefly due, under the first head, to the full sanctioned scale of Preventive Establishment, especially in Sambhar, not having been entertained, and to smaller travelling allowance charges, partly counterbalanced by increases in through traffic charges and in payments of compensation for land taken up for manufacturing purposes. The provision made in the Revised Estimate for petty construction and repairs proved too low, chiefly in the Kohat and Punjab mines, where a new weigh-bridge was built, and the rolling-stock and permanent-way of the mine tramway were extensively renewed. The large saving in the manufacturing charges is attributed to a bad season having materially affected the manufacture of Sambhar and Pachbadra salt. In Burma the saving was due to smaller charges for commission, owing to the falling off in excise duty. In Bengal the excess is traceable to a special payment of 7,5 sanctioned as an honorarium to Mr Kilby for patent scales after the estimate was framed. In Madras the expansion of departmental operations accounts for the increase over the previous year under the first head. Smaller outturn in some of the Government factories, and the failure to open some new factories and extensions, provided for in the Budget, led to the large savings in salt purchase and freight charges. In Bombay the saving under the first head resulted from the transfer of the charges for local purchases of stationery to "Stationery and printing," from excess provision in the Budget for the new Preventive Establishments, entertained on the termination of the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty, and from changes in the holders of the appointment of the Collector of Salt Revenue, partially counterbalanced by payments to officers of other provinces and the cost of the Goa Mixed Commission both of which, together with the charges for the new Preventive Establishments, contributed to raise the actuals of the year over those of the preceding year. Larger production of Baragora salt, with a view to bring up the stock to two years' demand, led to excess expenditure under Purchase and freight.

1891-92, is nominal, being due to the transfer of the charges for the Inspector General of Stamps to "18—General Administration" in North-Western-Provinces and Oudh and Bombay.

58. The increase of 4.3 in the Charges on sale of Stamps, in Bengal, Punjab, Madras, and Bombay, was due to the discount on larger sales.

59. The increase in the amount of recoveries from other Governments on account of the cost of Stamps supplied from Central Stores was due partly to the recovery having been made from Madras for the first time in 1892-93, and partly to the transfer to this head from "30—Stationery and Printing," of the cost of plain paper used with Court-fee stamps.

60. In England there was a saving in the sterling expenditure of 4.7, due to smaller demands for stamps.

61. The actual expenditure was less than the Budget Estimate by 13.1 and more than in 1891-92 by 2.9. The saving on the Budget occurred chiefly in Madras, where one-fourth of the charges of the combined department of Salt and Excise, less the charges for Orissa Salt and those for Licensees' works, is debited to this head.

62. In India there was an increase of 2.1 owing to the entertainment of an additional establishment in Bangalore. In Lower Burma the increase was due to the sanction of two additional excise officers for Sandoway. In Bengal the saving of 2.6 was partly due to smaller outlay on the construction and repair of distillery buildings and on rewards. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh there was an excess of 1.0 due to the transfer of the charges for glass hydrometers from "18—General Administration" and to higher expenditure on account of discount on sale of opium and on rewards. In Bombay there was a saving of 3.6, chiefly in establishment charges, in consequence of temporary vacancies.

64. The charges were less than the Budget Estimate by 1,7, and more than the accounts of 1891-92 by 4,2. The saving on the Budget was due chiefly to the absence on leave of the permanent incumbents of the appointments of Collector of Customs, Calcutta, and Collector of Customs, Rangoon, their places being occupied by lower paid officers. The increase over 1891-92 was due to the construction of a steam launch for the Calcutta Customs House to replace the Viper and to the entertainment of an additional preventive establishment for the Presidency Division, Bombay, for which no provision was made in the Budget.

65. There was a saving of 1,6 on the Budget, due to the special establishment sanctioned for Ajmere not having been entertained in consequence of the prevalence of scarcity, which it was thought would render Income-tax operations unsuccessful; to the payment of a smaller sum as commission in Lower Burma; and to the provision in the Budget for a whole-time Collector of Income-tax for Calcutta not having been utilised.

66. The Indian expenditure was smaller than the Budget Estimate by 105.6, but larger than the Actuals of 1891-92 by 19.6. About half (53.0) of the saving on the Budget, occurred in the charges for removal of timber and other produce by Government Agencies, and was due to a general contraction of departmental operations. There was also a saving of 39.5 in Establishment charges, which was spread over almost all the Provinces, but occurred chiefly in Madras (15.8) and the Central Provinces (8.9). There was, however, no real contraction of expenditure under this head, for the actuals of 1892-93 generally exceeded those of 1891-92. The Budget Estimates for Establishments were evidently pitched much too high.

67. The apparent increase under General Direction charges, as compared with the accounts of 1891-92, is due to the payment of arrear salary charges on account of that year in 1892-93.

68. Except in Lower Burma the charges for removal of timber and other produce by Government Agency were reduced everywhere in consequence of there being larger stocks, and the demand being slack. The expenditure was smaller than in 1891-92 by 22.3.

69. The charges connected with the removal of Forest produce by Purchasers and Consumers agree in the aggregate with the Budget.

70. Under Other Charges, there was a saving of 14.3 on the whole as compared with the Budget. The saving occurred chiefly in Madras and Bombay, owing to smaller expenditure on demarcation works. In India there was an increase of 4.5, due chiefly to the purchase of two miles of tramway and to increased expenditure on buildings and plantations in the Andamans, and to the transfer from the Military Department to the Forest Department of the administration of the Shwebo Plantation in Beluchistan (see para. 347). In Upper Burma the Budget was very slightly exceeded, but there was an increase of 4.2 over the accounts of 1891-92, which was due chiefly to the purchase of a steam launch and six elephants. The saving on the Budget in Assam was due to the allotments for the Goalpara Forest Survey, and for the purchase of an elephant not having been utilised. In Bengal there was a special item of 2,5 in 1891-92, being part of the cost of construction of the steamer Swan. The saving on the Budget occurred chiefly in the grants for the construction of patrol boats, roads, and buildings, for the purchase of stores, and for Surveys and fire protection.

71. The charge for Establishments was less than the Budget by 39,5, but more than the Actuals of 1891-92 by 27,7. The saving, as compared with the Budget, occurred chiefly in Madras and the Central Provinces, owing, in the first case, to additional establishment which had been provided for not being sanctioned by the Government of India, and in the second case to an over-estimate in the Budget, sufficient allowance not having been made for probable savings. The increase over the accounts of 1891-92 was distributed over all the provinces.

72. The charges were less than the Budget by 7 and more than the Actuals of 1891-92 by 5,2. There was a decrease of 5,0 as compared with the Accounts of 1891-92 under Superintendence, which was nominal, being due to the transfer of the charges on account of the Inspector-General of Registration and his office establishment in the Central Provinces, Assam, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and Bombay from this head to "18—General Administration." The increase of 10,2, as compared with 1891-92 in District Charges, which is distributed over all the provinces except Assam, is due to larger payments of commission to Registrars and Sub-Registrars, following increased receipts. The saving on the Budget in Madras was due to the special provision of 5,0 for the regrading of Registrars and Sub-Registrars and for revision of Establishment not having been utilised.

73. Compared with the previous year there was a falling off of 9.8, being the net result of a decrease in England and Exchange of 44.6, and an increase in India of 34.8. The decrease in England was due to the large receipts in the earlier year from the investment of the cash balances, while there were no such receipts in 1892-93. The increase in India was due to the increase in the currency investment and to the grant of additional loans to the Calcutta Port Trust and other Public Corporations, counterbalanced by a decrease in the receipts from Guaranteed Railway Companies on account of interest on overdrawn capital. The decrease in these receipts and in the interest on loans to Municipal, etc., Corporations especially in the North-Western Provinces, also accounts for the falling off in the actuals as compared with the Budget.

74. As explained in previous reports the receipts under this head in India arise chiefly from the Paper Currency investment and from loans made by Government to Municipalities and other public bodies, Native States and Cultivators. As stated in last year's report the Paper Currency investment was raised in 1891-92 by the purchase of Government Promissory Notes of the nominal value of 955,8, but the full amount of interest on the new notes was not realised during that year, as the investment was made towards its close. The interest realised in 1892-93 includes the interest on these Promissory Notes for a whole year.

75. The following statement shows the balances of the different kinds of loans during the last five years:—

76. The interest paid in 1892-93 by the Local Governments to the Government of India on account of the loans held on the Provincial Account amounted to 95,7, while the actual sum realised by them and credited to Provincial Revenues amounted in the aggregate to 87,8. The fluctuations under the different heads are explained in detail below.

77. Under Interest on Loans to Native States there were no receipts in India, as the debt due by the Jowra State was paid off in 1891-92. The recoveries under Presidency Corporations agreed closely with the Budget Estimate, but exceeded the actuals of the previous year largely in Bengal and slightly in Madras owing to additional loans having been granted to the Calcutta Port Trust and the Madras Harbour Trust, respectively. The small decrease in Bengal compared with the Budget is due to the loan to the Port Trust not having been made as early as was anticipated. As regards recoveries from Municipal and other Public Corporations the increase in India over the Budget is due to an additional loan having been sanctioned for water-works at Ajmere, and that in the Central Provinces to interest for a half year on the loan of 10,0 granted to the Nagpore Municipality for the purpose of acquiring the catchment area of the Ambajhari Reservoir and laying a second main from the tank to the pumping reservoir; no provision for this was made in the Budget Estimate. In Lower Burma the falling off is attributed to the new loans sanctioned not having been taken up as early as was anticipated. In Bengal the Budget was pitched too high, while in the North-Western Provinces the decrease, which is considerable, is stated to be due (a) to a reduction in the rate of interest from 4½ to 4 per cent. on loans to Municipalities with retrospective effect; (b) to the consequent refund of interest to the Allahabad, Agra and Benares Municipalities; and (c) to new loans not having been granted to Municipalities to the extent anticipated. In Bombay provision was made for the receipt of interest from the Surat and Karachi Municipalities, but the former paid up in 1891-92 the full amount of loan outstanding against it, and no loan was granted to the Karachi Municipality for want of funds. The falling off in Madras under the head Interest on loans to Landholders and other Notabilities is due to the remission of the interest payable by the Nawab of Banganapalli for the past year. Under Interest on Advances to Cultivators, the increase in Madras and India is due to large advances having been made in Madras and Ajmere, owing to the agricultural distress which prevailed in the preceding year. In Punjab, Madras, and Bombay the Revised was pitched too high. The interest on the additional investment made in 1891-92 enhanced the receipts under interest on Currency investment as explained in paragraph 74. The Interest on Overdrawn Capital represents the interest on the drawings of the Railway Companies in excess of the balances at their credit. The provision in the Budget was chiefly for amounts expected to be realised from the Bombay, Baroda and Central India and Great Indian Peninsula Railways; but as these Railways raised additional capital during the year, they did not overdraw their balances. The Other Items in India represent chiefly the interest on advances made to the Bank of Bengal, for which no provision was made in the Budget. In Lower Burma the receipt is on account of interest on arrear contribution towards pension of an officer lent to the Rangoon Port Trust, while in Bengal the receipts were augmented by interest on arrear collections of Public Works and Road Cesses, and in Madras by the interest on arrears of Land Revenue, the collection of which had been postponed in the previous year owing to scarcity.

4,315,2	EXPENDITURE	3,977,1	4,343,2	4,374,3

78. The charges for 1892-93 include £44,000 on account of discount on the sterling loan raised in England during the year for which no provision was made in the Budget, while the sum paid in 1891-92 on account of discount on the sterling loan raised in that year was £254,400. The charges on account of exchange in 1892-93 have exceeded the Budget and the actuals of the previous year by 266,2 and 318,0 respectively, chiefly on account of a fall in the rate of exchange. Omitting these special items of difference, the actuals of 1892-93 show a decrease of 48,5 compared with those of 1891-92 and an increase of 87,0 over the Budget. The decrease compared with the previous year is due to the transfer of a much larger portion of the interest charges in India to the Railway Revenue Account in consequence of the increase in the Capital Expenditure on Railways and Irrigation Works, partly counterbalanced by an increase, due to the additional expenditure involved by the conversion in 1892-93 of the greater portion of the 4½ per cent. loans of 1878 and 1879, which mainly contributed to the increase over the Budget.

13.—Interest on Ordinary Debt.

79. Before proceeding to examine the interest charges in detail, it is usual to ascertain first the amount of Loans raised or discharged during the year, and the following figures supply the necessary particulars for 1891-92 and 1892-93:—

80. As announced in the Financial Statement for 1892-93, no public loan was raised in India, but a loan of 250,0 was taken from the Nawab of Rampur for the construction of the Rampur-Moradabad Railway. During the year 10,772,0 of the 4½ per cent. loans of 1878 and 1879 were also converted into the 4 per cent. loan of 1854-55 under the terms of the Finance Department Notification No. 2290, dated 6th June 1892. A sum of 2,0 was provided in the Budget for the discharge of expired loans, but 4,8 was actually claimed during the year. In England the Budget provided for the issue of 3 per cent. stock for £1,800,000 for advances to Railway Companies and for the discharge of debentures of the Oudh and Rohilkhand, South Indian and Southern Mahratta Railways. The debentures of the last-mentioned Railway were however renewed instead of being discharged, and the amount of stock issued was reduced to £1,300,000.

82. The distribution of the charges between 4½ and 4 per cent. loans was considerably affected by the conversion operations referred to in paragraph 80. Taking these payments as a whole, the actuals exceeded the amount due and the Budget Estimate by 96.3 and 91.8 respectively; of these about 65.4 was due to the extra payments involved by the conversion operations, including 10.8 paid on account of brokerage on the notes tendered for conversion in England, and the remainder was due partly to the payment of arrears of previous years and partly to the interest on some securities of the 4½ per cent. loans of 1878 and 1879 having fallen due in March 1893 instead of in April 1893 on their transfer from England to India.

83. The following are the details of the interest paid in England:—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
2,639.3	Interest not charged to Railways	2,395.8	2,433.4	2,433.5

68.6	Exchange	109.9	123.1	123.4
5,454.7	TOTAL AS ABOVE	5,449.5	5,848.9	5,855.1

Under Interest not charged to Railways, the actuals exceeded the Budget by 37.7, being the net result of increases of 44.0 and 3.7 on account of discount and interest respectively on the 3 per cent. stock issued during the year, and a saving of 10.0 owing to the provision for interest on temporary debt not having been required. The decrease compared with the previous year is due chiefly to the discount on the loan raised in that year having been considerably higher. The saving on the Budget under Interest charged against Companies on advances is due to no advance having been made to the Southern Mahratta Railway for the discharge of debentures which were renewed. The increase compared with the previous year is due to fresh advances having been made.

84. There was an increase as compared with the previous year of 41,4, of which 34,2 occurred under Savings Banks, the charges against which were also under-estimated by 7,7. Under interest on Special Loans the principal alteration arose out of the transfer of the loans from the late King of Oudh from the India Books to the Books of the Accountant General, North-Western Provinces and Oudh. There was, however, an actual increase in the charges connected with these loans in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and an increase occurred in India in the annuities payable in respect of the 8 per cent. Madras perpetual loans. The usual details of the interest on Treasury Notes and Service Funds and Savings Bank Deposits are noted below, which show that the estimates were fairly well realized except under Civil Engineers' Provident Fund, Regimental Savings Bank, and Other accounts, in which there was an increase in the interest on the Deposits of the General Family Pension Fund and the Postal Insurance and Life Annuity Fund :—

85. The net expenditure of the Post Office was less than anticipated in the Budget Estimate owing to the curtailment of charges for Stationery and Printing, which were also, however, somewhat over-estimated. There is, as usual, a slight improvement compared with the previous year.

86. The improvement in the net earnings of the Telegraph Department was due to the normal expansion of the operations of the Department. The falling off in 1892-93, as compared with the previous year, was less than would appear from the above figures, Stationery supplied from Central Stores having been charged against the Department for the first time in that year.

87. The better results under Mint were obtained from the exceptionally heavy silver coinage of the year caused by the large importations of the metal in expectation of the closing of the Mints.

88. As usual the revenue exceeded that of the preceding year, but the increase fell short of Budget anticipations by 9,5 owing to an unexpected decrease in postage on unpaid letters and an increase in the deduction made from revenue on account of payments to the London Post Office for Continental transit of Newspapers and Commercial papers and for open and closed mail transit, and to Foreign and Colonial Administrations for certain arrear claims.

92. Compared with the Budget Estimate the actual receipts show an increase of 47,0. It was due chiefly to the growth of message traffic having been greater than was anticipated, and partly to larger receipts on account of rent of wires and instruments leased to railways and others.

93. The increase of 5,3 over the Revised Estimate is attributed to large receipts in the last few weeks of the year, which were not anticipated.

Indo-European Telegraph.

94. The receipts during 1892-93 were 1,4 less than in 1891-92. The decrease was due chiefly to the amount realized in England from other telegraph administrations on account of message revenue having been smaller than in the previous year. The falling off of 1,9, as compared with the Budget Estimate, is the net result of an increase of 4,0 under England and 2,9 under Exchange, and of a decrease of 8,8 in the receipts in India. The increase in England was due to the receipts from the Ottoman Telegraph administration on account of traffic balances of the previous year having been larger than was expected. The falling off in the receipts in India was due partly to a variation in the course of the traffic, owing to which the amounts collected by the department for other administrations were somewhat less, and partly to the receipts under message revenue in the last few weeks of the year having been smaller than was anticipated. Owing to a falling off in the receipts in India in the last few weeks of the year the actuals fell short of the Revised Estimate by 5,3.

95. The large importations of silver, due, in some measure, to the expectation of the early closing of the Mints, account for the large increase under Seignorage. The following table shows the importations of silver and the silver coinage at the Mints in recent years :—

97. The actuals show a saving of 36.9 on the Budget, which occurred almost entirely under Stationery and Printing, and was due partly to an actual reduction of the charges owing to stricter economy and partly to an over-estimate of them.

98. The decrease under Chief Office resulted from the amounts provided in the Budget for changes in the Director General's Office and for extra and temporary establishments in the Account Office not having been utilised in full. The saving under Presidency and District Offices, which was larger than it appears to be, certain charges estimated for under Miscellaneous having been compiled under this head, was also due to the provision for increased establishments not having been fully required. Railway Charges were less than the Budget Estimate, owing partly to an over-estimate and partly to the more economical working of the Railway Mail Service. The Bullock Train and Mail Cart charges exceeded the Budget Estimate, owing partly to an increase in the fixed and temporary establishments, partly to new contracts, and partly to an increase in the contingent charges. The increase under Subsidies was due to arrear payments of the subsidies due to the Tigris Euphrates Company and the Steam Navigation Companies in Assam. The excess under Other Charges was caused by the opening of a new line of postal communication worked by boats in Assam. The large decrease (36.2) under Stationery and Printing has been explained above. The falling off under Miscellaneous was owing chiefly to the charges for construction and repair of Post Offices provided under this head having been compiled under Presidency and District Offices.

99. Under District Post Charges the increase in Bengal was due to charges for conveyance of mails in the Lushai country; and the decrease in Madras was brought about by the conversion of a large number of District Post Establishments into Imperial.

100. The expenditure during 1892-93 (excluding Exchange) was 47,8 more than that in the previous year. There was increased expenditure in India, both under Capital and Revenue. The increase under Capital was chiefly due to the outlay on the telegraph lines in Kashmir, which were transferred to the control of the Telegraph Department from 1892-93. The increase under Revenue was due to the expansion of the operations of the Department, including Kashmir lines, which necessitated larger establishments, more renewals and maintenance of additional offices, and partly to the inclusion for the first time in the Finance accounts of the Telegraph Department of the charges for stationery and printing which were formerly debited to the head "Stationery and Printing." The increase, as compared with the Budget Estimate, is attributed partly to the debit of stationery and printing charges, and partly to the grant for Revenue expenditure having proved insufficient. The increase over the Revised Estimate was chiefly due to the debit to this head of the charges for stationery and printing, for which no provision was made owing to the issue of orders for the adjustment after the Revised Estimate of the year had been framed.

Indo-European Telegraph.

101. Exclusive of the special political charge of 7,1 mentioned in the Appropriation Report for 1891-92, the outlay during that year was 145,3. Compared with this figure the expenditure during 1892-93 shows a decrease of 21,2, which was chiefly due (1) to less cable being manufactured during 1892-93 than in the previous year, (2) to smaller payments for stores than in the previous year, and (3) to smaller payments under the common purse agreement, owing to a slight interruption of the Indo-European route and to a general decrease of traffic.

102. The decrease of 26,7, as compared with the Budget Estimate, was chiefly due (1) to the transfer of certain surplus stores valued at 3,2 to the Indian Telegraph Department; (2) to an over-estimate of the cost of re-insulation of the lines in Persia and certain other works; and (3) to smaller payments under the common purse agreement as explained in the foregoing paragraph.

103. The increase in Calcutta under Establishments was chiefly due to charges for extra hours on account of increased coinage operations. In Bombay the saving was chiefly owing to vacancies in the complement of mechanics and labourers, partially counterbalanced by an increase of 1,0 due to the absence of the Mint and Assay Masters on privilege leave. The Loss of weight in coinage was, as compared with the Budget Estimate, less in Calcutta, chiefly owing to an over-estimate of the amount of uncurrent coins received for re-coinage, partially counterbalanced by an increase due to the larger coinage. In Bombay the excess over the Budget was due to an increase in the coinage of 3½ crores over the Estimate.

104. The receipts in this section show a decrease as compared with both the actuals of the previous year and the Estimates in consequence of a change in the method of accounting for recoveries from other Departments and Local Governments for work executed in Dock-yards, which are now deducted from the expenditure instead of being shown as receipts under Marine. There is, of course, a corresponding reduction under the expenditure head. But for this change the receipts would have shown a small increase, chiefly under Law and Justice, in escheats, and magisterial fines, under Police in cattle pound fees, and under Marine in the sale-proceeds of unserviceable vessels. There was a slight falling off in Educational fees owing to the transfer of a large number of schools to the control of Municipalities in the Central Provinces.

105. The steady progress in the receipts classified under this head, which was noticed in last year's report, is maintained; the accounts of 1892-93 exceeded those of 1891-92 by 1,5 and the Budget Estimate by 12,9.

106. Under Sale-proceeds of Unclaimed and Escheated Property the Revenue is necessarily fluctuating. There was an increase of 8,6 as compared with the Budget, owing to larger receipts on account of unclaimed estates transferred to Government by the Administrator General, Bengal, and to special items in the Satara and Sholapore districts in Bombay.

107. Under Court-fees realised in cash the receipts in Bengal exceeded those of the preceding five years except 1890-91, in which there was a special item of 5,8. But this was partly counterbalanced by slight decreases in Madras and Bombay.

108. The receipts under General Fees, Fines and Forfeitures, consisting chiefly of magisterial fines, show a slight increase; but in Bengal, the Punjab, and Upper Burma there was a slight falling off.

109. Under Other Receipts the accounts of 1892-93 were better than those of 1891-92. The decrease compared with the Budget was nominal, because the Budget for Punjab included 2,1 for Judicial Record Fees, which in the accounts were credited under I.—Land Revenue.

110. The receipts on the whole fell slightly short of the Budget Estimate and the Accounts of 1891-92, but there were considerable differences in the different provinces. The Revised Estimate was pitched too low in the Central Provinces, Burma, and Madras.

111. In Sale-proceeds of Jail Manufactures there was an increase of 12,8, which was contributed chiefly by increased receipts consequent upon extension of factory work in Madras, Upper Burma, and North-Western Provinces and Oudh, counterbalanced by a large falling off in the Central Provinces. This falling off was due partly to the prohibition of an adjustment of the value of cloth for tent manufacturing purposes supplied by the Jubbulpore Central Jail to the School of Industry, which would have resulted in a charge under the same head, and partly to the abolition of the latter institution in January 1893. In Punjab and Bombay the receipts were slightly lower than in 1891-92, owing, in the first case, to a temporary cessation of manufacture in two large jails in consequence of the outbreak of cholera and, in the second case, to the employment of prisoners of the Dhulia Jail extramurally. The net receipts under this head, after deducting the corresponding charges under head 19B, are given below:—

			India.	Central Prov- inces.	BURMA.		Assam.	Bengal.	N.-W. P. and Oudh.	Punjab.	Mad- ras.	Rom- bay.	TOTAL.
					Upper.	Lower.

The largest difference here between the Actuals and the Budget is in Bengal, the charges having been largely over-estimated. It will be noticed that in the Punjab the result of the manufacturing operations was a net charge.

112. Under Other Receipts the decrease in India is due to the adoption of the practice of crediting recoveries from Native States on account of the cost of maintaining their prisoners in Government jails in the North-Western Provinces and Bombay in the books of those provinces instead of in India. The falling off in North-Western Provinces and Oudh is due to the discontinuance of a paper credit in the jail accounts of the value of convict labour employed in the construction of jail buildings. The decline in the Punjab is due to the discontinuance early in the year of the employment of convicts at Chenawan on extramural labour; and, in Bombay, to a reduction in the strength of the Nara gang and to postponement of the adjustment of value of labour supplied to the Hyderabad Jail.

113. The decrease under Convict Receipts at Port Blair occurred partly in the Tea Garden receipts, owing to a short crop and to delay in the adjustment of the value of tea supplied to the Burma Commissariat, and partly in receipts from Native States on account of the cost of maintenance of their prisoners owing to a decrease in their number.

(a) Include 2,7 and 2,8 on account of Steam Boiler Inspection fees formerly shown under Presidency Police.

114. The receipts under this head exceeded those of 1891-92 by 14,4 and the Budget Estimate by 29,5. All the provinces contributed to the increase except India, where however the decline was nominal, because receipts on account of Police supplied to Municipalities in Baluchistan, formerly credited to this head, are now adjusted by deduction from the charges.

115. The increase under Police supplied to Public Departments, Private Companies, and persons was due to special contributions received from certain zemindaries in the Central Provinces, to larger recoveries from private individuals in Patna, to the recovery from the South Indian Railway of seven-tenths of the cost of the Police employed for law and order which was not anticipated in the estimates, and to larger recoveries on account of Excise Police in Bombay.

116. Under Presidency Police the decline in Bengal was nominal, being due to the transfer of steam boiler inspection fees from this head to that of Fees, Fines, etc. In Bombay there was an increase under this head due to the receipt from the Port Trust of 7,2, on account of its contribution towards the cost of the Dock and Harbour Police against 4,0, the amount taken in the Budget. The yearly contribution, which had long been the subject of discussion, was at last fixed at 2,8, being a moiety of the estimated charge, and this amount was paid together with arrears of previous years.

117. Under Fees, Fines, and Forfeitures there was a small increase in most provinces, chiefly from cattle pound fees; and in Burma from fines under the Gambling Act and slaughter-house licenses.

118. The increase under Other Receipts, which occurs in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Madras and Bombay, was due to the return of unserviceable arms and accoutrements to the Military Department.

119. The principal variations under this head are due to the introduction in the accounts of 1892-93 of the system of adjusting recoveries for work done for other Departments and Local Governments by deduction from expenditure instead of by crediting them as receipts under "Dockyard Services." There is, of course, a corresponding reduction in the charges. The decision to adopt this course was arrived at after the Revised Estimate was framed; and the receipts were lower than the Revised Estimate by 73,5, mainly owing to this change.

120. Under the Hooghly Pilotage Receipts there is a falling off of 4,3 as compared with the accounts of 1891-92. These receipts fluctuate with the amount of shipping visiting the port.

121. The decrease in the receipts on account of Dockyard Services has been above explained. The figures shown in the accounts of 1892-93 represent realizations from Port and Local Funds and private individuals, and also include 2,4 realized by the hire of the Sladen and her flats to the Mu Valley State Railway.

122. The increase under Sale-proceeds of Vessels and Stores is accounted for by the sale, which was not anticipated when the Budget was framed, of the Royal Indian Navy vessels Mayu, Lark and Condor, of the Hydraulic Lift at Hog Island, and of the Sandoway and Akyab District Cess launches.

Section D.—RECEIPTS BY CIVIL DEPARTMENTS—*continued.*XIX.—Education—continued.

123. The receipts were 3,2 lower than the Budget Estimate and 1,4 lower than the accounts of 1891-92. There was a decrease of 6,2 in the Central Provinces, due to the transfer of a large number of schools to the control of Municipalities and to smaller transactions on account of the book depôt which, it was expected, would be transferred to a private agency: there are corresponding reductions in the charges. In Bengal there was a decline of 3,3 in the receipts from Fees, for which an increase was taken in the Budget as they have during recent years been progressing: they were however lower than in 1891-92, both for colleges and for schools, and consequently considerably lower than the Budget. In Madras and Bombay there were increases of 2,0 and 2,1 under this head, due, in the first case, to the opening of special law classes for pleadership candidates and to an increase in the number of schools and, in the second case, to improved attendance at existing schools. The increase of 1,8 in Contributions in Bengal is due to donations given by private individuals in Mymensing and Maldah towards educational buildings; there were also larger popular contributions to Local Board Schools in Bombay.

124. The receipts in India were 6,0 more than in the Budget Estimate, of which 6 was in Medical College Fees in Bengal, 3,3 in Hospital Receipts, chiefly in Bengal and Bombay, and 1,1 in Contributions in Bengal and Madras. A part of the increase under Hospital Receipts in Bengal is due to an enhancement of the rate of recovery from the Hospital Port Dues Fund for charges incurred on account of seamen. Under Contributions larger amounts were received from private persons in Bengal and Madras. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the increase under this head was chiefly due to the contributions paid by Town Funds and Municipalities on account of the pay of vaccinators having been for the first time passed through the District Boards' accounts.

125. In England the increase of 9 is due to a larger amount having been realised than was estimated from the sale of furniture and effects at the Ealing Asylum, which was closed.

(a) 3,0, 3, and 5, respectively were included under Other Receipts.

126. The actuals were higher than the Budget Estimate by 9,2. Under Receipts on account of experimental cultivation there was an increase of 2,3, due chiefly to leasing out the Ghazipore Stud Farm lands in North-Western Provinces. Under Veterinary and Stallion receipts there was an increase of 3,9, of which 2,5 was due to a contribution made by Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit of Bombay towards the Veterinary School and Hospital at Belgachia near Calcutta. Under Labour and Emigration there was a decline of 1,0 in Madras, owing to there having been no emigration to Mauritius. The receipts from Sale of Maps, etc., by the Survey Department showed an increase of 1,9. The improvement in Other Receipts is due to increased fees realized in Madras for Uncovenanted Civil Service Examinations.

127. The expenditure in this section exceeded that of 1891-92 by 406,1 and the Budget Estimate by 127,4. As compared with 1891-92 the increase in the ordinary expenditure is larger still, because the charges of that year included 182,1 on account of the Census. The greater portion of this increase is due to the payments made in England for the construction of two Troop-Ships and a dredger. But there was also an increase of 214,3 in the Indian charges, excluding the Census charges, which was due to the gradual growth of expenditure in all the Departments, especially the Medical Department; and to special Political Expenditure on the North-Western Frontier and in the Lushai Country. As compared with the Budget Estimate there were considerable savings under the heads "Police" and "Education" owing to certain schemes, for which provision had been made, not having been carried out; but they were more than counterbalanced by increased charges under the head "Political" and by the charges for the Troop-Ships and the dredger under "Marine," which were not provided for in the Budget.

128. Under this head there was a net excess of 3,9 as compared with the Budget; the excess occurred chiefly under Executive Council in India; under Secretariat Charges in India, Bengal and Madras; under Board of Revenue, etc., in Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Punjab; under Commissioners in Burma and Bengal, and under General Establishment of Local Fund Offices in Bengal. There were also savings in some Provinces; the principal savings occurred in India, chiefly under Staff and Household, Durbar Fund, Legislative Council, Tour Charges, Account Offices and Allowances to Presidency Banks; there were also petty savings under various heads in Assam, North-Western Provinces and Bombay.

129. In India, under Staff and Household, there was a saving of 3,2 in hill journey charges and allowances, partly counterbalanced by an excess of 1,1 under Telegram charges, and of 6 owing to the payment of leave allowances to the Private Secretary. The saving under Durbar Fund resulted from the monthly grant of Rs 10,000 not having been drawn against during two months. The excess under Executive Council was due to the payment of transit pay to the Public Works Member. There was a saving of 3,0 in the Legislative Council on account of salaries and allowances of additional members.

130. The Secretariat charges exceeded the Budget by 12,9, of which 8,3 was in India, 3,7 in Bengal and 2,1 in Madras. The details of the India Secretariat charges are given below:—

131. The excess expenditure in the Foreign Department was 6,8, chiefly on account of Telegram charges; and in the Finance Department 1,5 and Home Department 9, chiefly due to the payment of privilege leave allowances, and in the former case to the salary of an officer on special duty. The excess in the Record Department is partly accounted for by the special payment of 2 to the officer in charge for editing selections from certain State papers; and partly by the cost of books purchased for the several Secretariats, under Home Department order No. 121, dated 13th February 1893.

132. The excess in Bengal and Madras occurred partly under Salaries due to privilege leave absences and to the appointment of officers on special duty, and in the former case partly under Establishment due to additional appointments sanctioned after the framing of the Budget.

133. The Tour charges were less than in the Budget, owing almost entirely to savings in Tour expenses of the staff and household of the Governor General. In Bengal, there was an excess of 6 under this head over the Revised Estimate, and the expenditure was higher than that of any year since 1887-88. There was excess expenditure also in North-Western Provinces, Punjab and Madras; and there were savings in Bombay, Central Provinces and Burma.

134. The excess of 3,9 under Board of Revenue, etc., was composed of 1,8 in Bengal, 1,3 in North-Western Provinces, and 1,2 in Punjab, chiefly due to leave arrangements, and, in North-Western Provinces, to additional establishment sanctioned by Government, and in the Punjab to additional contingent expenditure, chiefly for purchase and repair of Chubbs locks and for postage. There was an excess under Commissioners of 1,4 in Burma, chiefly owing to leave arrangements, and of 3,2 in Bengal, due partly to the appointment of an additional Commissioner in the Patna Division. In Central Provinces, Assam, North-Western Provinces and Bombay, the expenditure on account of the officer in charge of the Stamp Excise and Registration, etc., Departments and his establishment, which used to be debited in certain proportions to those Departments, was transferred to this head from the commencement of 1892-93 under the new Provincial contract.

135. The total charge for Account and Currency Offices is shown below. There was a saving of 6,1 in Civil Account and Currency Offices, due chiefly to one of the two appointments of Deputy Auditor General not having been filled up for a time and to the grant for temporary establishments not having been fully utilized; and an excess of 1,5 in the office of Accountant General, Public Works Department, due to the appointment of an additional officer on inspection duty during a part of the year:—

136. The saving in the Allowance to the Presidency Banks is due to the allowance being calculated on a smaller amount of Public debt for the reasons mentioned in the last year's report. Charges for General Establishment of Local Fund Offices in Bengal continued to increase.

137. In England the greater portion of the excess is due to the payment for the management of the conversion of the 4½ per cent. Rupee loans: there was also an increase in the charge for stores and Currency note forms.

Section D.—SALARIES AND EXPENSES OF CIVIL DEPARTMENTS—continued.

In Bombay the saving was the net outcome of savings for Travelling Allowances and Contingencies (chiefly due to the transfer of certain charges from this head to "Stationery and Printing") partially counterbalanced by increased charges for salaries and for payments to officers of other provinces. The increased charge under this head in the Central Provinces, as compared with the previous year, was due to the appointment of two Additional Sessions Judges and Judicial Assistants with their establishment and contingent charges.

142. The decrease in Courts of Small Causes, as compared with the accounts of 1891-92, was due to the abolition of the appointment of the Judge of Mofussil Small Cause Courts in Bengal. There was a small saving in Bombay owing to the absence on leave and subsequent retirement of the Chief Judge of the Presidency Small Cause Court.

143. Under Criminal Courts there was a saving of 8,4, 4,7 occurring in Assam, 3,2 in the Central Provinces, 3,1 in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and 3,0 in Madras, while there were also some slight excesses. The saving in Assam, Central Provinces and North-Western Provinces and Oudh occurred mainly owing to reduction in items which are shared equally between this head and "3.—Land Revenue," the causes of which have been explained under that head, but in Assam it was also partly due to a transfer of some of these items to Civil and Sessions Courts as mentioned above. In Madras there was a large saving (9,6) in the provision made in the Budget for the entertainment of stationary Sub-Magistrates to relieve Tahsildars of their Magisterial work, these officials having been entertained only late in the year; but for this saving the expenditure would have considerably exceeded the Budget for the reasons explained under "3.—Land Revenue." The increases of 2,1 and 1,1 in Upper and Lower Burma were due to increased charges for establishments, counterbalanced partially by savings in other items; and the increase of 5 in India was due to the appointment of temporary Extra Assistant Commissioners in Ajmere. The variations in other provinces were unimportant.

144. Under Refunds there was an excess of 7,2 distributed over almost all the provinces due generally to larger refunds of fines imposed by Courts.

145. In England the saving was due to provision having been made in the Budget Estimate for outfit allowance of three Judges, the charges for which were not incurred during the year.

146. The Indian expenditure was 9,2 in excess of the Budget Estimate and 18,4 in excess of the actuals of 1891-92. The increase over the Budget Estimate was due to an excess of 5,4 in Port Blair Charges and of 19 6 in Other Jail Charges, there being a saving of 15,8 in Jail Manufactures.

147. The expenditure on Jail Manufactures was smaller in Central Provinces by 8,8, in Bengal by 11,9, and in Punjab by 2,1. In Central Provinces the decrease was due mainly to the abolition of the School of Industry at Jubbulpore. In Bengal, the Budget had been framed high in view of the orders of the Secretary of State directing that the requirements of the Public Departments should, as far as possible, be supplied by the Jails; but the outlay on the purchase of raw material was smaller than anticipated, although higher than in 1891-92. In the Punjab, there was a restriction of the Jail industry owing to the unhealthiness of the season. On the other hand, there was an increase of 7,0 in Madras, due to an advance in manufacturing operations, there being a corresponding increase in the receipts.

148. Of the increase of 19,6 in Other Jail Charges, the main items were Bengal 13,3, Madras 6,0 and Punjab 3,3. The increased expenditure was due to increase in Jail population and high price of food grains. The excess in Port Blair Charges was caused by increased expenditure of 3,9 in timber supplies and 1,9 in Commissariat supplies.

149. In England the greater portion of the Budget Estimate was for coal for Port Blair, but no demand was made.

150. The expenditure was less than the amount provided in the Budget Estimate by 36,3. There were savings in Burma (31,8), Madras (10,0), and Bombay (42,8), and excess expenditure in Bengal (29,4) and North-Western Provinces (18,0). The saving in Burma occurred mainly in the District Executive Force, which was below the sanctioned strength, and in the Village Police in consequence of the abolition of daid headmen owing to the introduction of the Village Act. In Bombay the Budget provided 23,0 for a reorganisation of the District Executive Force, which, however, was not sanctioned, and there were other considerable savings in the grant for the District Executive Force. In Madras also a scheme for the reorganisation of the Railway Police, for which 8,7 was provided in the Budget, was not carried out. The major part of the excess in North-Western Provinces and Oudh was due to a reorganisation scheme sanctioned by the Secretary of State, on account of which an additional grant of 15,0 was made in the course of the year. In Bengal the increase is more than accounted for by the heavy expenditure in South Lushai Hills, the grant for which proved quite inadequate to meet the charges on account of transport and rations. The variations under the different minor heads are explained in further detail below.

151. As compared with the previous year the total increase was only 5,1, but there were considerable variations in the different Provinces. There were large decreases in Burma (28,0) and Bombay (22,0), but these were more than counterbalanced by increases in all the other Provinces, except Assam, the largest being in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh (18,9) and the Punjab (20,7). The decrease in Burma was due to the scheme introduced in 1892-93 for the reorganization of the Special Police, under which the Military Police in Lower Burma was largely increased, the Civil Police being reduced, and the Karen Levy being transferred from Upper to Lower Burma. In Bombay the decrease occurred chiefly under District Executive Force, owing to a reduction in the charges for clothing and arms and accoutrements, and to special charges having been incurred in 1891-92 in re-arming the force and for clothing, as that year was the last of the quinquennial contract for clothing, and under Presidency Police owing to the contribution paid by the Bombay Municipality, which is credited by deduction from the charges having amounted to 37,4 against 26,9 in the previous year. The increase in the Central Provinces and North-Western Provinces and Oudh and the Punjab was due in part to reorganization schemes, and in the last case also to a large increase under Arms, etc., new arms having been obtained from the Military Department. In Bengal it was due to an increased rate of pay for the lowest grade of constables, to an enhanced grant for contract contingencies, and to the transfer to this head of the charge for Medical Stores required for the Police.

152. Under Presidency Police, the saving in Bombay as compared with the Budget is due to a special provision of 10,1 for a reorganization of the Police force not having been utilised, this saving being partly counterbalanced by an over-estimate by 3,2 of the contribution payable by the Bombay Municipality and a slight increase in expenditure under some heads. In Bengal the increase, as compared with the previous year, was due to the inclusion for the first time under this head of the charges for cattle pounds, and for police supplied to private individuals.

153. Under Superintendence there was an increase of 1,6 in Madras, no provision having been made in the Budget for the appointment of a third Deputy Inspector General of Police; and of 1,3 in Bengal, due, among other causes of a temporary character, to the formation of a Branch Office of the Inspector General at Bankipur.

154. Under District Executive Force there was a saving in all the Provinces except North-Western Provinces and Oudh and Punjab, the net total being 55,1. The greater part of this occurred in Bombay where, in addition to the saving of 23,0 owing to the failure of the reorganisation scheme mentioned above there were savings in other items specially in Establishment and Clothing Charges and Arms, Accoutrements and Ammunition; charges for country Stationery were also transferred from this head to "30—Stationery and Printing;" the total saving was thus raised to 37,9. In Bengal there was a saving of 10,9 chiefly in Salaries and Establishments and in the contract grant for contingencies. There were savings of 7,7 in Upper Burma and of 6,8 in Lower Burma, owing largely to the forces being under sanctioned strength and in the latter case also to the reduction of the Akyab punitive police and to the transfer to the Public Works Department of the provision made for petty construction. In the Central Provinces there was a saving of 4,1, the reorganisation of the force not having been carried out in the beginning of the year as expected. The remaining noteworthy differences have been explained above (paragraphs 150 and 151).

155. The saving of 9,1 in Government Railway Police in Madras has been explained above. The difference between the actuals of the two years in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh is due to the inclusion in the later year of the charges for the Oudh and Rohilkhund Railway Police.

156. Under Village Police the saving of 13,1 in Lower Burma has been already mentioned (paragraph 150). The increased charge in Bengal is due to the extension of Act V of 1887 in the districts of the Chota Nagpore Division. The excess in Bombay was chiefly due to transfer to this head of charges for which provisions had been made under "3—Land Revenue."

157. The increase in the Special Police charges in Bengal was, as already explained, due to heavy expenditure in the South Lushai Hills. In Assam also the Budget provision for Lushai charges was too low. The savings in Bombay arose in connection with the Kathiawar Agency Police and the Mowassee and Bhils, which were not maintained at full strength. The variations between the actuals in Burma have been already explained (paragraph 151).

158. As explained in connection with the corresponding Revenue head (paragraph 119), the variations in the "India" column are to a large extent nominal being due partly to the introduction, under the orders of the Government of India, of the practice of deducting from the expenditure side recoveries for work executed for other Departments and Local Governments, which used previously to be credited to receipts.

159. Another change, which has interfered with a correct comparison under some of the minor heads, between the actuals of 1892-93 on the one hand and the estimates of that year and the actuals of 1891-92 on the other, is that recoveries from the Military Department for charges for stores, coal, landing and embarking troops, etc., which used to be deducted from the total Marine expenditure, are now deducted from each minor head affected.

Section D.—SALARIES AND EXPENSES OF CIVIL DEPARTMENTS—*continued.*21.—Marine—continued.

160. The net total expenditure in the India column can, however, be fairly compared, and it has been as follows:—

Accounts, 1891-92	158,0
Budget Estimate, 1892-93	209,5
Revised Estimate, 1892-93	186,0
Accounts, 1892-93	166,8

The savings on the Budget are, on the whole, due to larger net recoveries from other Departments (after allowing for the extra charges which the work sometimes involved), to savings under Salaries, etc., chiefly due to the turret ships and torpedo boats being taken over by the Admiralty (the subsidy payable to the Admiralty being charged in the Home Accounts), and to the improvement on the receipt side under sale-proceeds of vessels (see paragraph 122). The difference in the actuals is due to special charges for the purchase of vessels, including those required for the Indus Ferry arrangements which were provided for in the Budget, and the Elphinstone for which no such provision was made. These vessels cost altogether 38,9; but against this excess is the set off due to the last two causes mentioned in the preceding paragraph.

161. Under Dockyards the decrease is due to the changes above alluded to in the system of accounting for recoveries from Local Governments and other Departments on account of work. Eliminating the recoveries just mentioned the expenditure compares as follows:—

	Kidderpore.	Bombay.	TOTAL.
Accounts, 1891-92	33.4	38.3	71.7
Budget, 1892-93	38.1	45.9	84.0
Accounts, 1892-93	36.3	52.4	88.7

It will be seen that there was really an increase in the expenditure in 1892-93, though it was mostly for other Departments so that the recoveries were increased too. The variations occurred chiefly in the Bombay Dockyard which was considerably more active than in the previous year.

162. Under Salaries and allowances of officers and men afloat there is a decrease of 14,8 as compared with the Budget in the charges of the Royal Indian Marine, which is due to the establishment having been below strength; to the taking over by the Admiralty of the turret ships and torpedo boats; to the late arrival of the new dredger; and to the non-arrival of the new guard ship for Port Blair. In Upper Burma there is a saving of 2,1 under this head owing to new vessels, for which provision had been made in the estimates, not having arrived during the year. In Madras a grant of 2,6, which had been provided to supplement, in case of necessity, the expenditure incurred by Port Funds for the maintenance of the Dredger Wenlock, was not required.

163. Under Marine Stores and Coal, etc., there is a minus entry under India as the deductions on account of work executed, and stores supplied by the Marine Department include Europe stores, charged in the Home Accounts, and the total recovery thus made exceeded the Indian expenditure in 1892-93.

164. Under Pilot Establishments and Vessels the charges are lower, partly as a consequence of the lower receipts (see paragraph 120) and partly owing to a smaller number of pilot vessels being on commission.

165. Under Other Charges the actuals for 1892-93 in India included 29,9 paid for vessels purchased for the Indus Ferry arrangements which were provided for in the Budget, and 9,0 paid for the steamer Elphinstone which was not so provided for. On the other hand, there was a saving of 6,4 in the charge for hire of vessels, as no vessels were hired for the inspection of the Laccadives or for the tour of the Chief Commissioner of Burma as estimated for. The reduction in Upper Burma is due to the provision in the estimates for the shallow draft steamer then under construction by Messrs. Yarrow and Company of London, not having been utilised in consequence of the cost being finally charged in the Home Accounts. In Lower Burma, the subsidy payable for the Attaran Natman and Kyondo Line for three months was disbursed in the following year, and the provision made for a light vessel for the Baragua flats was not fully utilised. In Bengal, the excess was due to the outlay incurred in the year for the new pilot vessel to replace the Coleroon. In Madras, the expenditure incurred for the construction of vessels to replace the Margaret, Northcote and the Pearl exceeded the original allotment.

166. In England the accounts of 1892-93 exceeded the Budget Estimate by 112,8, the increase in the charge for stores for India being 114,0. This was mainly due to large payments on account of the Troop-Ships Warren Hastings and Minto and the dredger Mud Turtle. Under Contributions towards the expenses of Her Majesty's ships employed in the Indian seas, there was an increase of 2,5 mainly on account of charges in connection with Her Majesty's ship Sphinx. There was a saving of 5,0 in the Subsidy to the Admiralty for manning and maintaining Indian Government Defence Vessels, as the Admiralty did not take charge of the vessels as early as was expected; but there was an increase of 1,3 in the charge for advances of pay to Marine Officers on appointment.

167. The Indian expenditure is steadily increasing and was larger than that of the previous year by 11,9, although it was smaller than the amount provided in the Budget Estimate by 60,1. The saving as compared with the Budget occurred chiefly in the Central Provinces (13,2), Madras (15,7) and Bombay (24,7). In the Central Provinces a number of schools was transferred to Municipalities. In Madras and Bombay the Budget had provided for large increases on account of primary education; but the actual increase in Madras, though considerable, fell short of the amount provided; in Bombay the increase was smaller, but a considerable portion of the saving is also due to certain grants (11,0) estimated under this head having been adjusted as contributions under the adjusting heads. In the North-Western Province and Oudh the Budget Estimate was exceeded owing, among other reasons, to the establishment of an Industrial School at Lucknow, to a special building grant, and to a large refund of an erroneous credit in 1891-92.

168. The increase as compared with the accounts of 1891-92 occurred chiefly in Madras and in the North-Western Provinces and Ouh owing to the reasons mentioned above, and in the former case to the establishment of a Training College at Calicut. The important variations in the different minor heads are explained below.

169. Under Inspection the actuals are slightly less than in 1891-92, when there was a special charge in Bengal on account of arrear contributions for pensions of Local Fund Officers.

170. Under Government Colleges the decrease in Bengal is due to the retirement of senior officers. In Madras there is an increase of 4,7 over the actuals of 1891-92, due partly to the institution in the Law College of special classes for the Pleaders Examination and to the constitution of the Calicut College as a second grade Training College; but chiefly to a redistribution of the expenditure on the Teachers' College between the College and School Departments.

171. Under Government Schools there is a saving, as compared with the Budget, of 34,9, of which 8,9 occurs in the Central Provinces, 15,9 in Madras and 12,9 in Bombay. In the Central Provinces the decrease is due partly to the transfer of a number of Schools to Municipal Committees and partly to the transfer to the head "Grants-in-aid" of 2,5 sanctioned on account of extra expenditure on Primary education. In Madras the provision on account of an extension of District Board schools had been pitched too high with reference to an order of Government which ruled that District Boards should spend on primary education all funds set free by the transfer to Government of charges for technical education. In Bombay, the saving is partly nominal being due to transfers to other heads, and it is partly due to reduction of the special grants made in the Budget under the Local Boards Act. In both these provinces, however, there was an increase, as compared with the accounts of 1891-92, due to the extension of Primary Education. In North-Western Provinces and Oudh there is an increase of 3,0, due partly to the establishment of an Industrial School at Lucknow and partly to an additional grant sanctioned for connecting the Agra Normal School with the water-works.

172. Under Grants-in-aid and Payments by Results there was an increase of 2,3 in North-Western Provinces and Oudh, due to additional grants for buildings and for the education of European and Eurasian indigent children; of 1,0 in the Punjab, due to a special grant for a chapel for the Murree Asylum; and of 1,5 in Upper Burma, owing to the Director of Public Instruction having sanctioned large payments of results-grants to indigenous schools out of probable savings which did not exist, the result being an excess under the major head which has been brought by the Comptroller to the notice of the Local Government. There were savings of 2,9 in Lower Burma and in Bengal and 6,8 in Bombay, this last being due to transfers to the Public Works and adjusting heads.

173. For Scholarships the Budget was too low in Bengal and too high in the Punjab and Bombay; there being very little difference between the actuals for the two years in any of these Provinces.

174. Under Other Charges there was a decrease of 2,7 in the Central Provinces, due to a smaller expenditure on the Government Book Depot at Nagpur owing to the expected transfer of the depot to a private agency. There was also a large saving on this account in Bombay. In Bengal there was excess expenditure owing to a special grant to the Calcutta Public Library, and to large refunds which also contributed to the excess in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

175. The actuals for 1892-93 were less than the Budget Estimate by 1,2, and more than the accounts of 1891-92 by 6,5. The charges of 1891-92 were unusually low owing to the Bishop of Calcutta being absent on leave and to only two Chaplains of the Church of Scotland being actually on duty in Madras. This accounts for the increase in India and Madras.

176. In Upper Burma the increase under Church of England is due to the employment of an additional Junior Chaplain. In North-Western Provinces and Oudh the increase under the same head is due to charges of the newly-created see of Lucknow, for which no provision was made in the Original Estimate.

177. In England provision was made in the Budget for the passage of eight Chaplains, but only six came out.

178. The expenditure in India exceeded the Budget Estimate by 7.4, only but was higher than that of 1891-92 by 50.7, which again was higher than that of the previous year by 77.0. The increase was general in all the provinces and occurred under all the minor heads, but chiefly under Medical Establishments and Hospitals and Dispensaries.

179. Under Medical Establishments the excess over the Budget was 2.8, due chiefly to the extra cost caused by privilege leave and to the additional expenditure incurred from Provincial Funds in Madras on account of Reserve Medical subordinates, who are sent temporarily to relieve officers attached to Local Fund and Municipal Dispensaries. The increase as compared with the previous year occurs in almost all provinces and amounts up to 12.7, though it is not large in any one case.

180. Under Vaccine Establishment and Sanitary Commissioner there was a saving of 4.8 as compared with the Budget, the greater part of which occurred in the Central Provinces owing to the amount provided in the Budget for sanitary improvements in villages not having been fully utilised, although the expenditure was higher than in 1891-92 by 3.7. There were also savings in Lower Burma and Bombay owing to provision for a Sanitary Engineer in the former case and for travelling allowance and establishment of that officer in the other not having been fully utilised. In Madras, there was a decrease of 2.9 as compared with 1891-92, the charges of that year having been swollen by special expenditure in consequence of the famine and for conducting experiments for the manufacture and preservation of animal lymph. In Bengal the decrease compared with the previous year was due to the transfer of certain salaries and allowances from this head to "Medical establishment" under the revised scheme, the savings from which cause were, however, overestimated in the Budget.

181. Under Medical Colleges and Schools there was an increase of 1.8 over the Budget Estimate and of 3.6 over the accounts of 1891-92, which occurred partly in Madras on account of Europe stores and partly in the Punjab on account of additional staff sanctioned for the Lahore College.

182. Under Hospitals and Dispensaries there was a rise of 8.8 as compared with the Budget and of 26.1 as compared with the accounts of 1891-92. The increase was general and was for the most part provided for in the Budget. It was largest in Bombay, Bengal and North-Western Provinces and Oudh. In Bombay, it was due to the opening of two new institutions, the Bai Motlibai and Sir Dinshaw Maneckji Petit Hospitals, and to increased expenditure on furniture, etc., in connection with the opening of the new building in the European General Hospital. In Bengal, the expenditure for diet and clothing of patients in the General and Campbell Hospitals was larger; and both in this Province and in the Punjab there was a considerable rise in the local expenditure, indicating greater activity on the part of Local Boards in the matter of Medical relief. In North-Western Provinces and Oudh there was an increase of 4.9 due to the arrear payment of the grant to the Prince of Wales' Hospital at Benares; to new grants sanctioned; and to special charges on account of purchase of Government Promissory Notes and furniture and fittings for certain dispensaries.

183. The charges for Lunatic Asylums show a small saving of 5 as compared with the Budget, although there was an increase of 2.4 as compared with the accounts of 1891-92, the greater part of which occurred in Madras and Bombay. In Bombay, the expenditure on diet of patients was low in 1891-92.

184. A special grant was sanctioned in Madras for the Victoria Hospital for Goshia women, which partly accounts for the increase in Grants for Medical Purposes.

185. Under Other Charges the increase of 4 in North-Western Provinces and Oudh was due to the reconstitution of the appointment of a Chemical Examiner as a separate office on a salary of Rs. 1,000 from October 1892; and the saving in Bombay was due to a reduction in the pay of the Chemical Analyser.

186. In England there was an excess of 1.4 owing to the incidental expenses in connection with the closing of the asylum at Ealing being larger than was estimated.

for carrying the baggage of military escorts furnished to the Political officers on tour in the Chin Hills; the charge was debited to this head under orders issued after the close of the year and was consequently not allowed for in the Revised. The excess in India 2,9 was chiefly caused by the absence on privilege leave of the Agent to the Governor General in Baluchistan.

189. In the Charges on the North-Western Frontier there was a saving of 3,7, owing to reduction of the grant for the Zhob Levy Corps and to smaller payments for guarding Hill Passes and on account of allowances to the Khyber Tribes, for which last a considerable increase was taken in the Budget, though the actuals show an increase of 3 only.

190. Under Political Subsidies the excess was due to the payment of arrears of the subsidy due for 1891-92 to the Amir of Afghanistan. The saving under this head in the Punjab accrued partly from the Ruler of Chitral not having drawn the amount payable to him till 1893-94, and partly from the cessation of payments made to other chiefs.

191. Under Entertainment of Envoys and Chiefs there was an increase of 6,0 for expenses caused by the visit of the Prime Minister of Nepal.

192. The charge for Durbar Presents, etc., was over-estimated in all provinces, and there was an aggregate saving of 6,5.

193. Under Refugees and State Prisoners there is an excess of 13,6 in Bombay, but this is more than accounted for by transfers from other heads, 7,4 being a transfer from the Punjab, due to the departure of Sardar Hashin Khan and his followers from Rawalpindi to Karachi, and 7,3, a transfer from the head "27—Territorial and Political Pensions" on account of charges for Sardar Sher Ali Khan and other Afghan Refugees. The first of these transfers accounts for the difference in the actuals of the two years; but was allowed for in the Budget Estimate of that Province. The total charge under this head was slightly lower than in 1891-92.

194. Under Other Charges in India there was an increase in the expenditure for organising Imperial Service Troops, due to the appointment of an additional Inspecting officer for Central India, and to the entertainment of additional establishment for musketry training; but this was counterbalanced by the transfer of pensions on account of the Merwara Battalion from this head to "29—Superannuations, etc." The chief increase occurred in the Punjab, where the accounts of 1892-93 include the undermentioned new expenditure, vis., Chinese Turkistan Mission 2,3; administration of the Kurram Valley 8,0; Doctor Robertson's Mission to the Kafirs 1,7; and his Mission to Chitral 2,2. There was also an increase of 1,1 under Telegram charges.

195. In England the sterling expenditure practically agreed with the Budget Estimate. There were several special charges in 1891-92 as explained in the Appropriation Report for that year.

196. The accounts show a reduction in the expenditure in India of 11,8 as compared with the Budget, which is due to petty differences under various heads, which are explained below; the principal saving (18,3) occurred under Survey of India. As compared with 1891-92 there is a decrease of 142,0; but the charges of that year included 182,1 on account of the Census, while those of 1892-93 include only 15,6 on the same account; excluding the census charges there is a slight increase in 1892-93 which occurs under several heads.

197. Under Survey of India the net charge only is shown after deducting charges transferred to other Heads of the Government Accounts, the cost of instruments and maps supplied to other departments by the Mathematical Instrument Department, and the recoveries for work done for private Estates. The following statement classifies the charges and deductions both in the Estimates and the Actuals:—

198. The Actuals of the gross expenditure agree pretty closely with the Budget; and the saving occurs owing to larger recoveries for instruments and maps supplied to other departments and for work done for private estates. Under this last head the recovery from the Burdwan Raj Wards' Estate was under-estimated by 3,0, and no provision was made for the recovery from the Tipperah Estate, which amounted to 6,7. As compared with the previous year the expenditure on Survey Parties shows a considerable increase (23,9), but the deductions are also increased, and the net result is an increase of 7,6 only. The deductions show considerable variations. A new method of dealing with the recoveries from private estates was introduced in the accounts of 1891-92; before that year only actual recoveries were deducted, and the deductions made in any particular year bear no relation to the work done in that year; in the accounts of 1891-92, however, it was decided to relieve the service head at once of the charges for work done for private estates, by transferring them to "Advances Recoverable;" the accounts will thus show the true net amount chargeable to Government for the work of the year, while there is the additional advantage that the recoveries can be more effectively watched; in the first year of the new procedure the accumulated arrears of amount, recoverable (35,4) had also to be transferred, and the deductions in 1891-92 were thus very large. In 1892-93, on the other hand, larger recoveries (47,6) were made from Local Governments, the principal increases being in Burma (21,4), chiefly for the Minbu Cadastral Survey, and in Bengal (26,1), chiefly on account of Revenue Surveys in Orissa and Behar.

199. Under Meteorological Department there was an excess of 1,5, chiefly on account of telegrams and office contingencies. Under Archæological Department there was a saving of 1,8 in India, mainly in the provision for the cost of Dr. Burgess' work in connection with the publication of reports on Archæology; and of 9 in Lower Burma, due to the temporary suspension of operations in consequence of the death of the Government Archæologist. Under Museums there was an increase of 9 in Bengal, due to charges connected with the collection of specimens and preparation of drawings and photographs of old temples and ruins in Orissa. Under Experimental Cultivations a provision of 3,3 for Farms and Farm Schools in Madras was not utilized during the year.

200. The increase of 2,9 in India under Public Exhibitions and Fairs was due to charges connected with the Chicago Exhibition, for which no provision had been made in the Budget. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh there was an increase of 1,8 under the same head, due to additional charges for the Mahabaruni Fair held at Hardwar, and in the Punjab of 9 owing to a special charge in connection with the Punjab Exhibition held in 1893-94.

201. Under Veterinary and Stallion charges there was a saving of 6,0 as compared with the Budget Estimate, and an increase of 6,9 as compared with the accounts of 1891-92. In India a provision of 5,1, of which no details were given in the Budget, and in Madras, the provision of 7 for Veterinary Hospitals, were not utilized. The increase, as compared with the previous year, was due to the establishment of a Veterinary School and Hospital at Belgachia near Calcutta; to the creation of a Civil Veterinary Department in the North-Western Provinces; and to the appointment of a Superintendent for the Civil Veterinary Department, Madras.

202. The Inspector of Factories is an officer newly appointed under the Indian Factories Act. In Bombay provision was made for an Inspector for the mofussil, which was only partially utilized. The increase of 5,5 under Other Statistical Charges was mainly due to higher expenditure on account of the Census than was anticipated.

203. In England there was an excess of 5,4 in the sterling expenditure: the cost of stores for India, due to larger demands, accounts for an excess of 3 7; and the charges included 2,4 for remuneration to Dr. Voelcker in respect of his deputation to India on Agricultural duty.

204. The receipts fell short of the Budget Estimate and the actuals of the previous year by 82,9 and 20,3 respectively. Compared with the Budget there was a falling off of 158,8 under Gain by Exchange, but there was an improvement in all the other heads, notably under Miscellaneous, owing to some special receipts and an increase in the amount of Unclaimed Deposits and in the recoveries on account of insurance and departmental charges on English stores. Compared with the actuals of the previous year, the falling off occurred chiefly under Gain by Exchange (11,8) and Miscellaneous (6,9), under which there were large extraordinary receipts in the previous year, the chief among which was the repayment by the Bombay Port Trust of a portion of its non-interest-bearing debt.

205. Subscriptions to the Military, Military Orphan and Medical Retiring Funds and the Civil Funds are declining every year owing to the retirement and death of old subscribers, the Funds being closed to new entrants. The receipts in Bengal under the first head represent the net receipts from the Orphananj Bazar at Kidderpur, and the smaller receipts as compared with the Budget are again due to large outlay on improvements to the Bazar, which were not foreseen at the time of framing the Revised Estimate. In Madras the Revised was exceeded, owing chiefly to the repayment of loans by some officers.

Contributions for Pensions and Gratuities from officers lent to Foreign Service increased in India owing to contributions paid by additional officers in Rajputana. The higher actuals of 1891-92 in Bengal and Madras were due to the recovery of arrears in the latter case from officers lent to the South Indian Railway Company, while in the Punjab the Budget for 1892-93 was pitched too high.

Under Other Items the falling off in India is met by an increase in Bengal owing to the adjustment, for the first time, on the accounts of Bengal of the receipts of the Marine Pension Fund, which were formerly adjusted in the Marine Accounts and consequently shown in the India column.

206. In England the increase is due to the arrangements made for issuing monthly instead of quarterly the Pay and Pensions from which these subscriptions are deducted.

207. The variations under Receipts from Sale of Stationery are mainly due to variations in the supply of stationery to State Railways. The increased receipts in Bengal arise from the recovery in 1892-93 of the value of stationery supplied in the previous year to the Eastern Bengal State Railway. In Bombay the increase was partly due to a specially large supply of printing paper to a Jail in Berar, which was not anticipated when the Revised was framed. Receipts from Sale of Gazettes and other Publications exceeded the Revised, owing to larger sales of Indian Law Reports and Acts and books in Madras. The Other Press Receipts in the preceding year included large recoveries on account of printing work done in connection with the Census. The improvement over the Budget in the Central Provinces is due to the extensive printing work turned out by the Central Jail Press at Nagpur. The decrease in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh is owing to less work done by the Government Press; while in the Punjab the decline appears chiefly in the earnings of the Jail presses, and is due to the Lahore Central Jail not having printed registers to the extent anticipated in the Budget.

208. The total gain by Exchange fell short of the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimate by 11,8 and 158,8 respectively. In the case of the Subsidised Railways there was a large gain from the transactions of the Assam-Bengal Railway. No provision was made in the Budget for any gain or loss on the remittance transactions of this Railway, as, in the absence of information as to the terms on which a contract might be made with the Company, the payment to be made to it was converted into sterling at the average rate of exchange for the year. In the case of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway also there was an increase in the net gain owing to the fall in the rate of exchange having enhanced the difference between the contract rate for the Railway and the average rate of the year. This would have led to an increase in the gain in connection with the transactions of the other railways also if there had not been a large decrease in the net withdrawals of these railways, which more than counterbalanced the increase in the gain due to the cause mentioned above. As regards the transactions which are passed through the Remittance accounts between India and England there was an increase in the loss on all the transactions, owing chiefly to the fall in the rate of exchange having enhanced the difference between the average rate of the year and the official rate fixed for the adjustment of transactions or the other rates at which the transactions are adjusted under agreement. The largest increase was in the loss on the miscellaneous remittances, due to the difference between the official rate of Exchange and the average rate having been more than 1½d. in the rupee.

209. The decrease under Gain by Exchange on Transactions in India was due to smaller transactions in Hali Sicca Rupees in Hyderabad, Deccan, counterbalanced by a small increase in Indore in consequence of more favourable rates of exchange. The receipts under Premium on Bills in India fell off largely compared with the estimates owing to diminished sales of Supply Bills in Calcutta chiefly in consequence of a decrease in the demand for transfers on Rangoon. In Burma there was an increase in the sales of telegraphic transfers on India and local bills both in Lower and Upper Burma. In Bengal and Bombay an unusually large demand for Supply Bills resulted in the Budget Estimate being exceeded, due, in the case of the latter province, to good harvests in several districts. The head Unclaimed Deposits is liable to considerable fluctuations, and the Estimates proved too low in all the provinces; in Bombay a special adjustment of some old outstanding items in the Bombay Court of Small Causes accounts for a large portion of the increase. The increase in India under Miscellaneous, Fees, Fines and Forfeitures is owing to larger receipts on account of fees for the grant of patents and heavier Dharmasala receipts at Indore, and also to the realisation of heavy fines at Bushire from slave dealers and Chiefs of the Arab Coast, which could not be foreseen. The falling off in Bengal, compared with the Budget, is due to the transfer to the head Other Items of the receipts on account of collections of arrear cesses which was not foreseen at the time of framing the Estimate. This was counterbalanced by increased receipts from fees for the survey of Tea lands. Compared with the previous year the increase is due partly to the same cause and partly to increased receipts from partition fees.

210. Under the head Government Audit Fees there were special arrear recoveries in 1891-92. The increase under the same head in Bengal, as compared with the Budget and the Actuals for the previous year, is due to increased audit fees from Wards' Estates; while the falling off in Bombay is due to the non-receipt, within the year, of the fee for the second half year's audit of the Administrator General's accounts, and to a decrease in the Provincial Receipts, partially counterbalanced by an arrear receipt from the Karachi Port Trust; the Revised allowed for a new fee which, however, was not realized within the year. The decrease under Contributions in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh is due to a change of practice under which the contribution from the Maharaja of Benares is now adjusted by deduction from 3—Land Revenue, while in Bombay it is due to contributions for Public Works hitherto recorded under this head being now shown under XXXII—Civil Works. Under Rents the Budget was not realised in the Central Provinces owing to the orders of the Chief Commissioner under which 4-5ths of the rents of Nizul lands situated within Municipal limits were credited to Municipal Funds. In Upper Burma the rents of Shan Poays (temporary stalls) previously shown under the head Other Items, and the construction and opening of new bazars contributed towards the better results under this head; while in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the increase is due chiefly to high receipts from rents of Nazul buildings in the Lucknow and Fyzabad Districts. The actual collections in Madras in 1891-92 and 1892-93 included arrears chiefly on account of choultry rents in the Tanjore district.

211. The amount shown under Extraordinary Items in India represents the value of confiscated property of one of the Native Chiefs of Manipur, while the entry under Assam represents the indemnity paid by the Manipur State under the orders of the Government of India. The item in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh is composed chiefly of special credits on account of capitalized value of abatement of Land Revenue for lands taken up for the Lucknow-Pilibhit and Cawnpur-Ahmednagar Railways. The credit in 1891-92 in the Punjab consisted of recoveries from Municipalities on account of the late Census, while that in 1892-93 represents the revenue realized in connection with the administration of the Kurram country. In Bombay the Revised provided for the sale-proceeds of certain lands on the Esplanade, which were subsequently taken under Land Revenue under the orders of the Government of India. The exceptional receipts brought to account are as follow:—

Capitalized value of assessment on land sold to the Southern Mahratta Railway	1,0
Recovery from the Bombay Port Trust of capitalized outstandings	1,3
Profit on sale of Government paper in which some of the Bombay Small Cause Court Deposits were invested	3

The actuals of 1891-92 included some large exceptional receipts from the Bombay Port Trust and Municipality, as also the sale-proceeds of some lands on the Esplanade.

212. The increase in India under the head Other Items is due chiefly to a special receipt from the Kotah State on account of the value of a Khillat presented by the Government, for which no provision was made in the Estimates, while in Burma the increase is due to larger receipts from the sale of Durbar presents, and the percentage charged for insurance and other departmental charges on stores supplied by the Secretary of State, chiefly for Provincial Public Works. In Bengal the increase was in the recoveries of insurance and other charges on English stores, which were abnormally high, and in fees and fines of Revenue Courts, sale of elephants, sale-proceeds of trees, and costs incurred for collecting arrear cess, the latter of which were under-estimated, counterbalanced by a decrease in the receipts from recoveries of law charges other than those in pauper suits. Compared with the actuals of the previous year the increase is entirely due to larger receipts on account of insurance and other charge on English stores. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the increase is due chiefly to a special credit, on account of the gain on Famine Advances to cultivators in the Gurhwal district. The decrease in the Punjab is due to smaller collections of Toll Fees on the Khyber road caused by a decline of trade in Eastern Afghanistan, while that in Madras is caused by the transfer to "XX—Medical" of receipts under Sanitation. There was a considerable increase in Bombay under Customs receipts in the Revenues of Berbera and Bulhar, while there was a decline in the Revenue of Zaila due to an epidemic of cholera, and the imposition of quarantine which temporarily affected trade.

213. In England the increase is due to the inclusion of a receipt representing the value of stores lost in transit to India.

214. The expenditure in this section exceeded the Budget Estimate and the Actuals of the previous year by 367,0 and 491,3 respectively. Of these 249,6 and 386,7 occurred under exchange, owing chiefly to a fall in the rate of exchange and to a smaller extent to an increase in the payments of pensions in England, due to the new arrangement regarding the payment of pensions monthly instead of quarterly as before. The remainder of the increases are due chiefly to the normal increase in the charges for superannuation allowances and pensions. The increase over the previous year would have been much larger, if it had not been for some special payments in that year, e.g., payment of arrears of the pension of His Highness Maharaja Dhuleep Sing, adjustment of the sums looted from the Manipur treasury during the disturbance of March 1891, and larger payments for replacing stores lost in transit to India.

215. As noticed in previous reports, the payments on account of Territorial and Political Pensions are decreasing year by year owing to lapses on the death of pensioners. The payments are also largely affected by irregularity on the part of the pensioners in drawing their pensions. In India the decrease, as compared with the previous year, is due to the transfer of the Wasika pensions to the books of the Accountant General, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, where there was consequently an increase. A part of the increase in the latter Province was also due to the commutation of the pension of Sirdar Attar Singh, which was not provided for in the Budget. The variation between the Revised and the Accounts in Bengal is due to a portion of the pension of the Nawab of Moorshedabad having been paid in arrears. In Madras there was an arrear payment under Carnatic Stipends, which was not foreseen even when the Revised was framed. On the other hand, the payments on account of commutations were considerably larger than the Budget Estimate. In Bombay the Estimate included 7,4 on account of Afghan refugees, but the actual payments were charged to "25—Political." The increase in Upper Burma under Charitable Allowances is due to payment of arrears and sanction of new pensions, while the falling off in the Punjab is accounted for by lapses on the death of old pensioners. The Actuals in Bombay represent the funeral expenses of Mir Ali Mardan, a member of the Khairpur Branch of the Sind Mirs, sanctioned by the Government of India in the Foreign Department.

216. In England there was an increase over the Budget in the charges on account of His Highness Maharaja Dhuleep Singh owing to the payment to the British Empire Life Assurance Company for the redemption of the deferred annuity charge which that Company held on Prince Victor's reversionary interest in the Elvedon Estate, and to the legal expenses incurred in the suit instituted against the Company, as well as to an increase in the Bengal Nizamut Family Pensions, owing to one member of the family having drawn arrears of pension. The Actuals of 1891-92 included large arrears on account of the pension of His Highness Maharaja Dhuleep Singh.

The Indian charges represent leave allowances of officers lent to Foreign Service and call for no special remark, except that the amounts are fluctuating and necessarily depend upon the number and grade of such officers on leave. In England there was a decrease in the number of officers drawing their allowances from the India Office; on the other hand, there were additional payments in connection with the recent arrangements made for the issue of pay and allowances monthly instead of quarterly as heretofore.

29.—Superannuation Allowances and Pensions—continued.

218. The charges for Superannuation and Retired Allowances continue to increase yearly owing to the amount of new pensions exceeding the lapses from deaths. The figures for the last five years are as follow :—

1888-89	688,6
1889-90	721,8
1890-91	765,5
1891-92	792,6
1892-93	830,4

Charges on account of Pensions of the Marine Department, which were formerly adjusted on the books of the Military Department and shown under India, but which are now finally charged on the books of the Provincial Accountants General, account for the decrease in India and for a portion of the increases in Bengal, Madras and Bombay. Apart from this there was an increase in India due to the transfer of pensions of the Merwara Battalion from "25—Political" to this head. In the Punjab and Madras the charges were over-estimated.

219. Under Compassionate Allowances the Budget proved too high on the whole; the decrease in Bombay is due to lapses of pensions of the Warden Official Fund. The Pensions of the Military Fund are declining as well as those of the Civil Funds. None of the other heads call for any special remarks.

The increase in England is mainly due to the issue of pensions monthly instead of quarterly in arrear as before.

220. The increase over the Budget and the Actuals of the previous year under the head Stationery Office at the Presidency occurred in Bengal, and was due to larger payments on account of freight, packing cases and contingencies, consequent on larger supplies of stationery to Settlement Officers in Bengal and to the Governments, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Central Provinces and Burma. The savings on the Budget in Bombay were in forwarding charges, which were also considerably less than in 1891-92.

221. Under Purchase of Stationery the charges in Bengal again exceeded the Budget, though they fell short of the exceptionally high expenditure in 1891-92. The increase is attributed to larger supplies having been obtained both from England and in India. In Madras the failure of the contractors in supplying articles within the year reduced the expenditure in 1891-92, but led to a considerable increase in the payments of 1892-93. The increase in Bombay is accounted for by a change in practice, under which the charges for stationery purchased for the larger offices locally, and not through the Stationery Department, are now charged to this head instead of to the heads to which the cost of the offices was charged, while the decrease in the Central Provinces, as compared with the previous year, is due to the cost of country stationery for small offices having been charged as Contingent Expenditure of the offices concerned instead of under this head. In both these cases the change of practice was introduced with a view to secure uniformity of classification in all Provinces.

222. The employment of the Press extends with the growth of business and improvement of administration from year to year; the expenditure under Government Presses is accordingly steadily increasing. The figures for the last five years are —

1888-89	240,6
1889-90	254,1
1890-91	260,4
1891-92	271,5

The Budget Estimates did not generally provide sufficiently for this growth of expenditure, and they were accordingly exceeded in most Provinces. In Bengal the excess was considerable and was partly due to larger supplies of stores for the Presidency Jail Press. The falling off in the Punjab is due to smaller purchases of materials and stock, and also to smaller expenditure in postage charges and office contingencies.

223. Stationery supplied from Central Stores showed a large increase in Bengal, owing to the large supplies made to the Survey and Settlement Departments in connection with the settlement operations in progress. The decrease, as compared with the previous year, is only nominal, a much larger amount than the apparent saving, on account of the cost of plain paper used with Court-fees Stamps, having been charged to "6—Stamps" instead of being charged to this head as in 1891-92. This also accounts for the decrease in the Punjab. The Bombay estimates were pitched too high.

The estimate of Other Charges in Bengal was framed too high. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Punjab and Madras the increase occurred chiefly in the charges for printing at private presses. In the Punjab the Actuals of 1891-92 included some special expenditure for registers for Courts as explained in last year's Report.

In England the demand for stationery supplies was considerably larger than was provided for in the Estimates.

225. Many of the items included under this head are of a fluctuating character and are not susceptible of an accurate forecast.

The Budget Estimates under Remittance Charges were generally framed too high, being based on the average actuals of past years; the expenditure on actual remittance of specie has, however, considerably diminished during the last year or two, owing chiefly to the extension of the system of drawing off surpluses by means of supply bills which are often issued at a premium and thus bring in revenue, the receipts from which (see paragraph 209) now completely cover the total expenditure incurred under this head, which includes the loss by exchange on local transactions. The figures under these heads for the last five years are compared below:—

	Revenue from Premium on Bills.	Expenditure under Remit- tance Charges.
1888-89	22,7	29,4
1889-90	21,8	30,6
1890-91	22,3	24,6
1891-92	24,5	23,2
1892-93	24,2	24,0

The charges for remittance were slightly higher in 1892-93, owing chiefly to larger remittances between Bombay and Calcutta; and also owing to a very largely increased loss by exchange on local transactions (3,5 against 7), owing to the low rate of exchange for Hali Siccas which prevailed in Hyderabad during a great portion of the year.

226. Under Charitable Donations the Budget in Bengal provided 1,7 for purchase of a new site for the Leper Asylum which was not required, but the saving due to this was counterbalanced by a larger donation to the Calcutta Female Nurses' Institution than that which had been provided in either the Budget or the Revised. This donation (3,9) was, however, smaller than that made in 1891-92 (6,0), which accounts for the decrease in the Actuals, as compared with those of 1891-92. Petty Provincial and Local Establishments showed an increase in Bengal, owing to the provision for Khedda Establishment in Julpaiguri having been included both in the Budget and in the Revised under

32.—Miscellaneous—concluded.

Other Items. The Budget in Madras was framed too high. Under Special Commissions of Enquiry the estimate in Bengal was intended to provide for unforeseen charges. The amount expended was on account of the Police Commission, and the higher charges of that Commission in 1891-92 account for the difference between the Actuals of the two years. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the increase is due to the charges of the Rampur and Wheeler Commissions, while in Bombay the excess is due to the Commission appointed to enquire into the working of the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act, the charges for which were higher than was anticipated when the Budget was framed. The charges in 1891-92 in India were on account of the Native Passenger Ships Commission and the Leprosy Commission. In India the increase under Rents, Rates, and Taxes is due to charges for Municipal rates, payable on buildings occupied by more than one Government Office or Department at Simla and Calcutta being paid by the Civil Department and charged under this head. In Bombay the Actuals of 1891-92 included arrears from 1889 of the consolidated rate on the assessable value of Government buildings in Bombay city.

227. The Actuals of 1891-92 under the head Extraordinary Items in Assam represent sums looted from the Manipur Treasury and currency chest during the disturbance, and compensations granted to officers for loss of property during the outbreak. In Bombay the amount provided under this head in the Budget was on account of the amount to be paid to Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son in connection with the pilgrim traffic to Jeddah, but the actual payments have been shown under Other Items. Under this head the Revised in India provided for the charges in connection with the visit of His Imperial Highness the Archduke of Austria, but some of the charges remained unpaid at the end of the year. The Upper Burma charges included a special payment to the Bombay-Burma Trading Corporation, Limited, in satisfaction of their claim against the late Kale Sawbwa, sanctioned by the Government of India in the Finance Department. The decrease in Lower Burma is due to the provision made for amounts to be written off not having been generally required, and to the contribution from the District Cess Fund to the Maubin Municipality having been charged to "45—Civil Works," though provided for under this head. The Actuals of 1891-92 in Bengal included the writes-off of some irrecoverable embankment advances in the Mozufferpur District. The Punjab Budget included a reserve, while the Actuals of 1891-92 were high on account of expenditure incurred by Local Bodies for the destruction of locusts. The increase in Bombay is due, as stated above, to the inclusion under this head of the payments made to Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son in connection with the pilgrim traffic.

228. The falling off in England is due to payments on account of stores lost in transit to India having been smaller than was anticipated.

231. The expenditure in India was incurred for the relief of distress in Ajmere-Merwara which was not foreseen when the Budget was framed, and that in Bengal was incurred chiefly by the District Board of Durbhanga in consequence of scarcity prevailing in that district. In Madras and Bombay provision was made in the Budget under this head for expenditure on Relief Works, but the greater portion of the actual expenditure has been charged to ordinary Public Works heads, the cost of infructuous labour only being charged to this head.

232. This head includes a portion of the capital expenditure of the Government of India on Railways and Irrigation. The total amount of this expenditure and the manner in which it is distributed under various heads is shown in paragraph 374.

The amount charged under this head is the balance of the total Famine Insurance grant of 1,500,0 after providing for the expenditure on Famine Relief and Protective Irrigation Works and the net charge on revenue account of the Protective Railways constructed through the agency of Companies.

233. The decrease in the expenditure in 1892-93, as compared with that of 1891-92, was chiefly due to larger expenditure in the previous year against a larger grant allotted for the vigorous prosecution of the Rushikulya Project in Madras. The saving on the Budget Estimate was due to no expenditure having been incurred on the Swat River Canal in the Punjab, owing to the abandonment of the Nowshera Rajbuha scheme as impracticable, and to the Kalpani extension scheme requiring further investigation.

234. 236. Under Imperial is shown the balance of the Capital expenditure on State Railways in excess of the amounts that may be recorded under "Capital Expenditure not charged to Revenue" and "Construction of Protective Railways." The distribution of the total Capital expenditure is shown in paragraph 374.

237. Under Provincial the decrease, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, is 24,9. On the Hyderabad-Umarkot Railway less expenditure was incurred owing to the completion of the line, which, however, cost more than was anticipated in the Budget. On the Mayavaram-Mutupet Railway more progress was made than during 1891-92, though there was short outlay as compared with the Budget Estimate owing to difficulty in obtaining labour, and to many of the works having been delayed in consequence of early floods. More progress was, however, made in laying the permanent-way on this line than was anticipated in the Revised Estimate.

239. These figures show that the State Railways did worse than in 1891-92 by 1,150.7. Under receipts the most marked decrease occurred in wheat traffic, which was exceptionally large in the previous year. Eliminating these abnormal receipts, the receipts from general traffic on most of the Railways show a large increase in 1892-93. As regards the expenditure, there was a large increase on account of interest and annuities paid in England, due to the fall in exchange. With the payments in England only slightly in excess of those of last year, the increase in the charge for exchange amounted to 615.8.

240. The Guaranteed Railways also did worse than in the preceding year by 472.4. The wheat traffic on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway was far short of that of the previous year, and the charges for interest paid in England were larger owing to the fall in exchange.

241. The net loss to Government on the Revenue Account of Railways during the last few years, as shown above, has been considerably affected by the fluctuations in the rate of exchange. If the rate had not varied from that of 1886-87 the net loss would have been as shown below:—

1892-93 .	-234.1	-321.7	-11.1	+10.9	-556.0
1891-92 .	+315.5	-210.2	-2	-92.0	+13.1

1886-87 .	-375.1	-675.6	-43.6	-94.4	-1,188.7

242. The opening of the Frontier lines and the commencement of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway increased the net loss considerably in 1887-88, but since then the loss steadily decreased year by year to the end of 1891-92, when the growth of the revenue received a check owing to a falling off in the export traffic in wheat.

19,938,1 RECEIPTS.	18,832,7	19,064,2	19,077,1

243. The following are the items comprised in this group. Particulars of them are given in the succeeding statements :—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
16,412,0	State Railways (gross)	15,543,9	15,779,4	15,814,8
3,493,1	Guaranteed Railways (net)	3,260,0	3,260,0	3,244,4

19,938,1		18,832,7	19,064,2	19,077,1

244. State Railways.—The gross receipts are 597,2 below those of the previous year. There was a falling off of 739,1 on the North-Western Railway, due chiefly to a decrease in wheat traffic, which was exceptionally heavy during 1891-92. There was also an appreciable decrease in the passenger traffic on the lines in Northern India, as the receipts from this source were unusually high in 1891-92, owing to the fairs at Hardwar. But there was on the other hand a considerable improvement in the goods traffic on the Rajputana-Malwa and Indian Midland Railways, and in the traffic of all kinds on the South Indian and Burma State Railways. Compared with the Budget Estimate there was a total improvement of 270,9, which is more than accounted for by the improvement of 321,4 on the Rajputana-Malwa line, due chiefly to a brisk traffic in grains (other than wheat) and seeds having continued throughout the year. There were also improvements of 238,6 on the East Indian Railway, the Budget Estimate having been framed too low, and of 95,2 on the Burma Railway owing to a general development of traffic, but these were more than counterbalanced by a falling off of 310,1 on the North-Western Railway, and of 46,7 on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway owing principally to a heavy decline in the wheat traffic arising from unfavourable crops and a dull market. The increase of 35,4 over the Revised Estimate is due to the traffic at the close of the year on many of the lines having proved slightly better than was expected.

245. Guaranteed Railways.—The net receipts are 248,7 below those of the previous year. The traffic on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway in 1891-92 was exceptionally good, and that in 1892-93 showed a considerable falling off, owing to the slackness of trade with Europe in Bombay. The demand for wheat for export was far short of that in the previous year, and the failure of the linseed crop in the Central Provinces, and the smaller movement of food-grains to Southern India, also account for a part of the falling off. The traffic on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway was better than in the previous year, owing to increased traffic in cotton and oilseeds and in coal and Railway materials. The increase was, however, partly counterbalanced by a falling off in wheat traffic. The traffic on the Madras Railway reached normal conditions in 1892-93; the earnings during 1891-92 were abnormally low owing to the prevalence of scarcity and attendant sickness in that part of the country.

246. Compared with the actuals of the previous year the receipts during 1892-93 show a decrease of 68.7, which occurred chiefly in goods traffic, and is accounted for by the fact that in 1891-92 there was a large adjustment on account of arrear coal charges to the extent of nearly 60.0. Allowing for this the goods traffic really shows an increase during the year, being attributed mainly to an abnormally large traffic in grain and rice during the first two months of the official year. The total receipts are better than the Budget Estimate by 238.6, the Estimate having been placed low as it was not expected that the receipts would in any way approach those for 1891-92, which were the best on record. The actuals also include the earnings for 9 months of the Patna-Gya State Railway, which was incorporated with the undertaking from 1st July 1892.

248. The improvement of 42.5 over the actuals of the previous year is due to the traffic in grains (except wheat) and seeds having continued brisk throughout the year, and to the adjustment of a long pending claim against the Indian Midland Railway for their proportion of interest charges on joint works and station expenses at Agra. The receipts from wheat traffic showed a falling off of 133,8 compared with the previous year. The falling off in passenger traffic is explained by the fact that in 1891-92 the pilgrim traffic to and from Hardwar, Muttra, and Soron was abnormal. The increase of 321.4 over the Budget Estimate is attributed to the exceptionally heavy traffic which prevailed throughout the year, and to the special adjustment with the Indian Midland Railway referred to above.

249. Compared with the actuals of the previous year the receipts show a falling off of 739,1, of which about 520,0 occurred in the receipts from wheat traffic, which was abnormally high in the previous year. The traffic in other goods and the passenger traffic was also abnormal in that year owing to the fairs at Hardwar, and to the movement of troops in connection with frontier expeditions. Heavy breaches on the line during the monsoon of 1892-93 also seriously interrupted the flow of traffic, and the grain exports were much lower than usual owing to unfavourable crops and a dull market. The Budget provided for a falling off of 429,0 compared with the receipts of the previous year, but the actuals fell further short by 310,1, owing partly to the causes just mentioned, and partly to large outstandings at the close of the year, caused by heavy freight charges for the Commissariat Department realised after the close of the year.

250. The receipts during 1892-93 fell short of those of the previous year by 33.4. In 1891-92 the earnings from passenger traffic were abnormally high, owing to fairs held at Hardwar, and a considerable decrease was allowed for in the Budget, but the actuals proved a little more favourable than was anticipated.

251. The decrease compared with the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimate occurred almost wholly in goods traffic, and is attributed to the failure of the wheat crop. In the previous year there was an abnormally large traffic in wheat and rice which were exported to meet the scarcity in Europe and the famine-stricken districts in this country.

253. The improvement is due to Hindu pilgrimages and the development of ordinary passenger traffic, and to a large traffic in wheat in the early part of the year, and in cotton piece-goods, food-grains, and other staples in the latter part of the year. The actuals differ but slightly from the Budget, which allowed for some development of the receipts.

256. Compared with the actuals of the previous year, there was an increase of 76.6. The Imperialisation of the Lucknow-Bareilly Railway, which was Provincial before, accounts for an increase of 69.5. There was also an increase of 16.8 on the Mysore Railway due to a steady development of traffic, of 9.5 on the Mu Valley Railway owing to the line having been opened for only a part of the previous year, and of 8.5 on the Umria Colliery due to a larger output of coal. On the other hand, there was a falling off of 32.2 in consequence of the amalgamation of the Patna-Gya State Railway with the East Indian Railway at the end of the first quarter of the year. No allowance was made for this in the Budget, and there was a deficiency of 26.4 in consequence. The Budget also provided 15.0 on account of the Bezvada-Godavery Section of the East Coast Railway, but it was not opened during the year. The other important variations from the Budget are an improvement of 14.2 in the earnings of the Mysore Railway, due to a steady development of traffic as mentioned above and of 9.5 on the Lucknow-Bareilly Railway, due to expansion of traffic and to the opening of the Dudwa Branch and to a general expansion of traffic.

257. The Tounghoo-Mandalay Railway was provincialised from 1st April 1892 and amalgamated with the Burma Railway. The improvement over the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimate was due to a development of traffic generally and to an exceptionally good passenger traffic.

The falling off compared with the Budget was due chiefly to the Hyderabad-Umarkot Railway not having been opened for traffic as early as was expected.

Gross Receipts.

259. The decrease, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, occurred entirely on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. The traffic on this line during 1891-92 was exceptionally good, and there was a considerable decline in the traffic in wheat in the year under review. The failure of the linseed crops in the Central Provinces and the smaller movement of food-grains to Southern India also account for a part of the falling off. On the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway the traffic in cotton and oil-seeds and in coal and Railway materials showed an improvement, but this was partly counterbalanced by a falling off in wheat traffic. On the Madras Railway the traffic recovered to some extent during the year and reached the normal condition; the earnings during 1891-92 were low, owing to the prevalence of scarcity in that part of the country. The decrease, as compared with the Revised Estimate, is on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and is due chiefly to the difficulty of making a reliable forecast of suspense transactions.

Working Expenses.

260. The decrease, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, is principally on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway in consequence of the smaller traffic worked. The expenses of the year were, however, relatively higher than in 1891-92, owing to the construction of new crossing stations and of extensions at Wari Bunder and Poona having been rendered necessary, and to a larger staff having been employed to obviate overpressure such as occurred in the previous year. The working expenses were lower on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, owing to there having been less renewals of permanent-way and smaller expenditure on repairs of flood damages; and on the Madras Railway, owing to less outlay on renewals of locomotives and smaller expenditure on fuel and repairs of vehicles.

261. Compared with the Revised Estimate the actuals show a decrease of 42,5 which occurred chiefly on the Great Indian Peninsula and the Madras Railways. The decrease on the former was due chiefly to the provision for the renewals of engines not having been utilised to the extent anticipated owing to the non-arrival of the engines from England. Decreased mileage and the issue of coal at lower rates also contributed to the decrease to a certain extent. The decrease on the Madras Railway is the result of an over-estimate of the requirements for maintenance of way, repairs of bridges, fuel and repairs of engines.

265. The actuals exceeded those of the previous year and the Budget Estimate by 670,2 and 516,9, respectively. The charges on account of exchange were higher by 988,4 and 572,4, chiefly on account of the fall in the rate of exchange. Excluding exchange the total charges would be smaller than those of the previous year, and the Budget Estimate by 318,2 and 55,5, respectively.

266. The decrease, compared with the actuals of the previous year, occurred chiefly in the working expenses of State Railways, owing to the generally smaller traffic worked during the year, to smaller renewals of permanent-way and repairs of rolling-stock on many of the lines, and to smaller payments of surplus profits to the East Indian Railway and on account of the Rajputana-Malwa Railway to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway. The surplus profits of Guaranteed Railways were also smaller, and there was a special recovery of 89,1 from the Assam-Bengal Railway on account of the past outlay incurred by Government on surveys connected with the line. These decreases were to some extent counterbalanced by an increase of 176,0 in the interest charges, resulting chiefly from the progress of construction of State Railways. The saving on the Budget was due chiefly to the special recovery from the Assam-Bengal Railway just mentioned, and to no charges having been incurred on account of interest on overdrawn capital of the Great Indian Peninsula and Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railways, partly counterbalanced by an increase in working expenses of State Railways, due chiefly to the surplus profits referred to above having exceeded the Budget, which counted on a larger fall than actually took place, and to a special adjustment in the accounts of the Eastern Bengal Railway on account of depreciation of the Bengal Central Railway rolling-stock. The excess over the Revised Estimate occurred chiefly in working expenses, the estimate for which was framed too low, especially in the case of the North-Western Railway, and under which there was also larger expenditure at the close of the year in consequence of a revival of traffic on some of the railways.

267. The particulars of these charges by individual railways are given on page 84. The decrease compared with the actuals of 1891-92 is due to the smaller traffic worked, and to less renewals of permanent-way and repairs of rolling-stock. The excess over the Budget Estimate is due to larger payments on account of surplus profits to the East Indian Railway Company and to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company for working the Rajputana-Malwa Railway in consequence of an increase in the earnings of the railways. The excess over the Revised Estimate is due to an anticipated lapse on the estimate for the North-Western Railway not having been realised, and to larger expenditure at the close of the year in consequence of the revival of traffic on some of the lines.

268. Compared with the actuals of 1891-92 the result shows a decrease of 35,9, due chiefly to smaller payments to the Company on account of its share of surplus profits and contribution to Provident Fund, and to smaller expenditure under "Maintenance." The reduction in the payment on account of surplus profits is due to the fall in the rate of exchange having reduced the net profits, and the smaller contribution to the Provident Fund is accounted for by a special bonus of an extra 10,0 having been given in 1891-92. Under "Maintenance" the decrease is due to smaller renewals of permanent-way and to smaller charges for carriage of revenue stores. The excess under Locomotive resulted from an increase in the rate for carriage of revenue stores, and that under Miscellaneous from larger payments for hire of vehicles, and mileage and demurrage of foreign stock. The increase of 90,6 over the Budget Estimate is due partly to the causes just mentioned, and partly to larger payments on account of the Company's share of surplus profits and contribution to the Provident Fund, owing to increased earnings, to the incorporation of the working expenses of the Patna-Gya line from the 1st July 1892, and to increased running charges attendant on increased earnings.

526,3	TOTAL EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY	540,0	537,5	561,6

269. The decrease of 64,7, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, is due to the heavy outlay incurred during that year on renewals of permanent-way, on compensation claims paid for goods lost and damaged, and on arrears freight charges on coal paid to the East Indian Railway. The increase of 21,6 and 24,1 over the Budget and Revised Estimates, respectively, is mainly due to a special adjustment on account of depreciation of the Bengal Central Railway rolling-stock, provision for which was not made in the estimates.

1,087,9	TOTAL RAJPUTANA-MALWA RAILWAY	995,5	1,065,0	1,018,7

270. The decrease of 69,2, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, is due to a saving in fuel and running expenses on account of smaller train-mileage run; to a large return of materials into stock and to less re-laying of permanent-way having been executed; to less outlay on wheel and axle-changing operations, and to the payment of the Company's share of surplus profits for the second-half of 1892 having been made after the close of the official year. The excess of 23,2 over the Budget Estimate, is attributed chiefly to the larger payment on account of the Company's share of surplus profits, due to the net results of working having proved better than was expected, and to the replacement of three engines and to extensive repairs carried out during the year. The saving of 46,3 on the Revised Estimate is due to less train-mileage run, to fewer repairs and renewals of vehicles, and to the Company's share of surplus profits for the second half of 1892 having been paid after the close of the official year.

1,953,5	TOTAL NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY	1,880,0	1,670,0	1,812,8

271. Compared with the actuals of the previous year there was a decrease of 141,7, due to a general curtailment of expenditure in consequence of the smaller traffic offered, to less consumption of fuel, and to smaller running expenses. The saving of 68,2 on the Budget Estimate is attributed to the late arrival of permanent-way materials and girders from England and to a reduction in expenditure owing to the decline in traffic. The Revised Estimate was framed unduly low.

381,5	TOTAL OUDH AND ROHILKHAND RAILWAY	350,0	375,0	368,7

272. The expenditure was less than that of the previous year by 12,8, the decrease being due generally to the smaller traffic worked. The decrease would have been much greater, but for the increase under "Maintenance," which is due to heavy expenditure on renewals of permanent-way and to the high cost of material consequent on the fall in the rate of exchange, sufficient provision for which was not made in the Budget Estimate. The saving of 6,3 on the Revised Estimate is due chiefly to short receipt of stores from England, and to less expenditure on coal, less payments for joint-station expenses, and to the sale of scrap material towards the close of the year.

Other State Railways—Imperial.

273. The following are the figures for the other Imperial Railways shown on page 84 :—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
303.0	Bengal-Nagpur	325.0	317.5	309.7

497.7	South Indian	540.0	497.5	507.0
279.1	Other Railways	352.4	368.8	365.7

274. On the Bengal-Nagpur Railway the working expenses were really less than those of the previous year, but owing to considerable reductions having been made in outstanding liabilities the expenditure brought to account exceeded that of the previous year by 6.7. The saving on the Budget was due to the larger traffic anticipated not having been realised. The Budget also provided for an additional and faster train service, but this was not introduced during the year. The increase on the Indian Midland Railway over the actuals of the previous year is due mainly to a provisional payment of 28.8 to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company for a share of the joint accommodation at Agra during the period from 1st March 1889 to 31st December 1892. The excess over the Budget and Revised Estimates is due to the share of working expenses chargeable to the Bhopal State Railway having been over-estimated. The amalgamation of the Toung-hoo-Mandalay with the Burma Railway under Provincial from 1st April 1892 accounts for the absence of any charges against it in 1892-93. The Bengal, North-Western and Tirhoot Railway was imperialised from the 1st April 1892. The expenditure shows a decrease of 20.1 compared with the previous year. The working expenses were more by 23.8, due to increased traffic, additional renewals of permanent-way and locomotives, and adjustment of arrear freight charges for coal, and to the payment of a bonus of 50 per cent. to the Provident Fund, with effect from the 1st July 1890; but the payments to the Company on account of its share of net earnings were less by 46.2 owing to payment for three half-years having been made in the previous year. The excess over the Budget Estimate is due to short provision for the Company's share of net earnings and to no provision having been made in the estimate for the special contribution to the Provident Fund. On the Southern Mahratta there was a saving compared with both the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimate, due to less ballasting and carriage of revenue stores, to saving in printing, to a larger share of expenditure having fallen on the Mysore Railway owing to the enhanced earnings of that line, to a proportion of the charges having been charged to the open sections of the Bangalore-Guntakal Railway, and to the payment of $\frac{1}{10}$ of the Company's share of net earnings for the second half of 1892 having been made after the close of the official year. The decrease on the South Indian Railway is attributable to over-estimates for maintenance of way and fuel, and to a smaller average length of line having been opened than was anticipated.

275. As regards other railways the actuals exceeded those of the previous year by 90.6, of which 41.6 is accounted for by the imperialisation of the Lucknow-Bareilly, which was a provincial undertaking up to the end of 1891-92. The remainder of the increase occurred chiefly on the Warora and Umaria collieries and the Mu Valley Railway. The increase on the Warora colliery is due chiefly to an increase in the Sinking Fund charges in consequence of the adoption from 1st April 1892 of an enhanced rate for these charges, and to depreciation charges on railway stores transferred during the year having been debited to the colliery. A larger output of coal augmented the charges of the Umaria colliery, while the increase on the Mu Valley Railway is accounted for by an increased traffic and the larger length of line worked during the year. The excess over the Budget occurred chiefly on the Warora colliery in consequence of the enhanced Sinking Fund charges mentioned above, and on the Mu Valley Railway in consequence of the division of the expenses between this line and the Burma Railway on a more accurate basis than that on which the Budget Estimate was framed.

276. The increase on the Burma Railway is due mainly to the heavier traffic worked, and to larger expenditure on repairs and on printing and stationery. The Bengal, North-Western and Tirhoot Railway, the Eastern Bengal Railway, and the Lucknow-Bareilly Railway have been classed under Imperial from the 1st April 1892.

277. There was a considerable increase over both the Budget Estimate and the Actuals of the previous year in the charges for exchange owing to a fall in the rate. Omitting exchange the charges approximated closely to the Budget Estimate, but as usual exceeded those of the previous year by 176,0, as the charges for interest on capital found by Government are increasing year by year with the progress of construction.

280. As explained in previous reports the Capital required by the above Companies have from 1889-90 been advanced by the Secretary of State from funds raised under the provisions of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway Purchase Act, and the interest chargeable against the Companies on the advances is shown under this head.

281. The increase in the sterling payments over the actuals of the previous year is due to further advances having been made to the Companies by the Secretary of State. The decrease, as compared with the Budget Estimate, is due to provision having been made in the Budget Estimate for advances expected to be made to the Southern Mahratta Railway Company for the redemption of the debentures referred to under "Interest on Capital deposited by Companies;" the debentures were, however, renewed.

282. Excluding exchange the important differences between the actuals and those of the previous year are (1) a decrease of 48,5 against the Southern Mahratta Railway, owing to debentures having been paid off by advances made by the Secretary of State which have enhanced the interest charges under the preceding head; (2) an increase of 26,1 against the Assam-Bengal Railway, representing interest at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on the Company's paid up capital during the year.

283. The differences between the Actuals and the Budget Estimate are (1) an increase of 9,7 against the Southern Mahratta Railway, due to the fact that when the Budget Estimate was framed it was thought probable that £600,000 debentures falling due on 1st April 1892 would be discharged—they were, however, renewed; and (2) a decrease of 13,3 under the Assam-Bengal Railway, due to capital not having been paid up to the extent that was anticipated.

Surplus Profits.

284. The decrease of 155,7, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, is due principally to the goods traffic on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway not having been so high as in 1891-92 for reasons already explained. The removal of the South Indian Railway from the category of guaranteed railways, owing to the line having been purchased by the State, has also contributed to the decrease to a certain extent, as the transactions are now shown under State railways. The increase of 31,4 over the Budget Estimate is due to the Companies' share of surplus profits having been more than was anticipated owing to an improvement in traffic.

Land and Supervision.

285. The increase over the actuals of the previous year is due to the cost of the Technical Section of the Government of India, Public Works Department Secretariat, and of the newly established offices of Consulting Engineer and Government Examiner of Accounts, Assam-Bengal Railway, and to promotions in the superior staff of the Consulting Engineers' Department. The saving on the Budget Estimate is due to the fact that no decision was arrived at during the year regarding the proposed additional land for the extension of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway goods yard at Wari Bander.

286. The decrease, compared with the Actuals of the previous year and with the Budget Estimate, in the amount recoverable from Companies on account of Government supervision, is chiefly due to the amount recovered from the Delhi-Umballa-Kalka Railway Company, on account of rent of buildings, etc., used jointly by the two railways having been credited to the North-Western Railway.

287. The charges in India represent the interest on the funds drawn by the Railways in excess of the balances at their credit. The large decrease in the Actuals is due to the Great Indian Peninsula and Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railways not having made any such overdrawals as they raised additional capital, which also accounts for the increased payments of guaranteed interest in England compared with the previous year.

288. Compared with the actuals of the previous year there is a net decrease of 4,1. There was no fresh acquisition of land for the Bengal and North-Western and the Delhi-Umballa-Kalka Railways, while the payments in connection with the Nilgiri and the Dooars Railways were more than in 1891-92. Owing to additional deposits of Capital in the Government Treasury, the interest paid to the Nilgiri Railway Company also exceeded the amount paid in the previous year.

289. The lapse on the Budget and Revised Estimates is due to less land having been acquired for the Nilgiri Railway than was anticipated, and to short payments in connection with the Bengal and North-Western Railway in consequence of disputed land cases, which were not decided before the close of the year.

290. The total outlay is less than that of the previous year by 103.0. No useful comparison can be made between the outlay of the two years by individual projects, as new surveys are being started every year. The accounts for 1892-93 include special credits amounting to 89.1 on account of refund of the past outlay on surveys in connection with the Assam-Bengal Railway. Eliminating this amount the expenditure of the year is 78.2, as against 92.1 in 1891-92, and 60.0 in the Budget Estimate. The excess over the Budget Estimate is chiefly due to new surveys having been specially sanctioned after the Budget Estimate was passed.

Section J.—IRRIGATION.

291. The following is a general summary of the results under the head of Irrigation :—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
Major Works.
1,404,7	Direct Receipts	1,323,2	1,487,2	1,510,7

1,073,9	Expenditure	1,009,6	1,052,8	1,008,1
-879,8	Net Expenditure (Minor Works)	-820,5	-861,3	-822,2
-673,0	Net Expenditure (Irrigation)	-702,8	-578,0	-521,6

292. The net result on the whole was better than the Budget and the actuals of the previous year by 181,2 and 151,4 respectively. There was an improvement in the net receipts from Major Works of 182,9 and 93,8 compared with the Budget and the actuals of 1891-92 respectively, and the expenditure on Minor Works was also smaller by 1,5 and 65,8, but the receipts from Minor Works were smaller than both the Budget and the actuals of the previous year by 3,2 and 8,2. The improvement under Major Works occurred chiefly in the Punjab, owing to an extension of irrigation from the Bari Doab, Sirhind, Chenab and Swat river canals, and in Bengal from the collection of large arrears of water rates. A portion of the increase over the Budget occurred in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh also, owing to the estimate having been placed too low, and to a much larger area having been irrigated than was anticipated. The decrease in the expenditure on Minor Works compared with the previous year occurred chiefly in Madras, owing to a smaller grant having been made available in the later year, and in Lower Burma, where the expenditure in the previous year was specially high owing to the construction of a lock at Wimpadaw in connection with the Kyaikto Sittang Canal and to the raising, strengthening, and retiring of several miles of the Irrawaddy embankments threatened by river encroachments.

293. The actuals exceeded those of the previous year and the Budget Estimate by 146,9 and 202,2 respectively. The increase was chiefly due to an extension of irrigation from canals in the Punjab, to the recovery of arrears of water-rates in Bengal, and to the seasons having been more favourable for canal irrigation in Madras and Bombay. The excess over the Budget was also due to a larger area having been irrigated by the canals in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh than was anticipated in the estimate, which, however, seems to have been pitched very low, as the revenue, even with this excess, was considerably below that of the previous year.

Direct Receipts—Imperial Works.

294. The gross revenue in 1892-93 was better than that of the previous year by 98.3 and the Budget Estimate by 55.9. The increase occurred chiefly in the Punjab, and was due to an extension of irrigation from the Bari Doab, Sirhind, Chenab, and Swat river canals. There was on the other hand a falling off of the revenue from the Western Jumna Canal, owing to the failure of the supply from the river Jumna during the first three months of the kharif season of 1892. There was also an increase in Madras and Bombay due in the former case to larger collections of water-rates from the Karnul Canal, and in the latter case to extension of irrigation from the Nira Canal, increased demand for water from the Mutha Canal for consumption in the city and cantonment of Poona, and the better supply of water available for cultivation on the Begari Canal.

Direct Receipts—Provincial Works.

295. The gross revenue in 1892-93 exceeded that of the previous year by 7.7. It is the net result of an increase of 28.6 in Bengal, and of a decrease of 20.9 in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. The increase in Bengal was mainly due to the collection of arrears and to a smaller extent to the more prompt recovery of the assessments falling due during the year. The decrease in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh is attributed to the seasons not having been so favourable for irrigation as in the previous year.

296. Of the increase of 131.6 over the Budget Estimate 42.0 was contributed by Bengal, and 89.6 by the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. The increase in Bengal was due to the causes explained above. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the increase was due to a larger area having been irrigated than was anticipated in the Budget which appears to have been pitched very low especially in the case of the Ganges and Lower Ganges Canals. The increase over the Revised Estimate is mainly due to arrear collections in Bengal.

297. The increase in the actuals of 1892-93 over those of the previous year was chiefly due to a falling off of the revenue in 1891-92, owing to large remissions granted on the Penner and Sangam Anicut systems on account of an unfavourable season and to an insufficient supply of water in the canals in Sind. The increase over the Budget Estimate was chiefly due in the Punjab to the introduction of a canal assessment rate on the re-settlement of the Tarntaran Tehsil of the Amritsar District on account of the Bari Doab Canal and in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh to the re-settlement of the Muzaffarnagar District.

2,945,0	EXPENDITURE	2,919,5	2,982,3	2,940,5

299. The expenditure in 1892-93 on the whole agrees closely with that of 1891-92, a falling off in the expenditure on Minor Works having been met by increases in the working expenses of Major Works and in the charges for Interest on Debt. The increase of 21,0 over the Budget Estimate was due to larger expenditure having become necessary for the maintenance and repairs of the Sirhind and Chenab Canals owing to extension of irrigation. In the Revised Estimate the requirements of several of the works classed as "Minor Works and Navigation" in Bengal, Upper Burma and Bombay were over-estimated.

300. The particulars of these charges are given in the table on page 100.

Imperial Works.

301. The increase over the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimate occurred chiefly in the Punjab and to a smaller extent in Madras. In the Punjab the increase was due to a larger expenditure on maintenance and repairs on the Sirhind and Chenab Canals owing to the extension of irrigation. The increase in Madras was due partly to a payment of 3,7 to the Telegraph Department on account of the telegraph line along the Karnul Canal, which had been dismantled as it was no longer required for the use of the canal, and partly to an increase in the establishment charges owing to an increase of revenue. The increase of 6,8 over the Revised Estimate was due to heavy charges for maintenance of the Western Jumna Canal and to the share of establishment charged to the Revenue account of the Chenab Canal being larger than was anticipated.

Provincial Works.

302. The actuals exceeded those of the previous year and the Budget Estimate by 6,0 and 2,4 respectively. The increase occurred chiefly in Bengal, and was due partly to larger collection charges, consequent upon an increase of revenue, and partly to increased cost of maintenance and repairs on the Orissa and Sone Canals. The saving of 3,4 on the Revised Estimate occurred in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and was due chiefly to the transfer of expenditure on the river training works in the Narora Division of the Lower Ganges Canal from the Revenue to the Capital account.

Imperial Works.

305. The rise in the expenditure during 1892-93, as compared with that of 1891-92 and the Budget Estimate, was due chiefly to the construction of more famine relief works in Rajputana and Upper Burma, for which grants amounting to 68,8 were transferred to this head from "45—Civil Works" Imperial (see paragraph 315). The saving on the Budget and Revised Estimates in Bombay was due partly to the estimates having been pitched too high, and partly to failure on the part of contractors, delay in acquiring land and scarcity of labour. The lapse in Upper Burma, as compared with the Revised Estimate, was due to short outlay in restoring and repairing the various scattered tanks, canals, and sluices in the province.

Provincial and Local Works.

306. The decrease in the expenditure during 1892-93 occurred chiefly in Lower Burma, Bengal, and Madras. The decrease in Lower Burma was due to the large expenditure incurred in 1891-92 on the construction of a lock at Wimpadaw in connection with the Kyaikto-Sittang Canal, and on the raising, strengthening, and retiring of several miles of the Irrawaddy embankments threatened by river encroachment. The short outlay in Bengal was due to the approaching completion of the Hidgellee Tidal Canal. In Madras the decrease is attributed to the grant made available for expenditure in 1892-93 not being so large as in the previous year. The Actuals differed materially from the Budget in almost every case. The saving in Lower Burma was due to transfers from this head to "45—Civil Works" (see paragraph 317). In Bengal the expenditure on the Hidgellee Tidal, Orissa Coast, Calcutta and Eastern Canals was over-estimated. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Kicha Weir was held in abeyance; while in the Punjab additional funds were provided for the Michni Nowshera Canal. In Madras excess expenditure was due to construction of famine relief works; and in Bombay a saving occurred owing to the claims for compensation for land taken up for the Gokak Storage Works not having been settled and paid by the end of the year.

307. The receipts in 1892-93 were better than those of the previous year by 26,1 and than the Budget and Revised Estimates by 46,8 and 14,1 respectively, owing mainly to exceptional receipts on account of the sale of the bridge-of-boats over the rivers Gogra and Chowka at Byramghat in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and to larger receipts on account of contributions from Municipalities and private parties in Bengal and Bombay.

308. The decrease, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, was due to a special credit of 6,1 in 1891-92 under India, on account of the sale of certain Military buildings at Khanpur to the North-Western Railway. The increase over the Budget and Revised Estimates was the result of revision of rents and the sale of certain buildings in Bangalore.

A.—Public Works in charge of Departmental Officers. B.—Public Works in charge of Civil Officers.

309. The figures under Imperial do not call for any special remarks.

310. Under Provincial the increase in the receipts by departmental officers, as compared with the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimate, occurred chiefly in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and was due to the sale of boats, tools, etc., appertaining to the ferries over the rivers Gogra and Chowka at Byramghat to the Bengal and North-Western Railway Company, to a further improvement in the profits of the Rurki Workshops, and to larger ferry receipts due partly to the transfer of certain ferries in Gorakhpur from the Civil to the Public Works Department. The Budget Estimate in Bengal was pitched too high and the actuals fell short of it by 6,7, though they corresponded almost exactly with those of the previous year. The receipts by Civil Officers fell short of the actuals of the previous year, and the Budget Estimate by 9,7 and 6,2, respectively. The decrease was principally due to a falling off in the receipts from ferry tolls and to the transfer from Civil to Public Works Department just mentioned.

311. The increase in the receipts by Civil Officers under Local occurred chiefly in Bengal, Punjab, and Bombay. The increase in Bengal and Bombay was mainly due to large contributions received from Municipalities and private parties in aid of Public Works. In the Punjab the increase occurred chiefly in the receipts from the sale of road-side trees. The decrease in Madras, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, was due to the revision of certain taxes in the South Arcot District.

312. The decrease of 362,3, as compared with 1891-92, was due to smaller grants having been assigned for expenditure in 1892-93 from Provincial funds; and to large expenditure incurred in 1891-92 from Imperial funds on famine relief works in Upper Burma, special repairs to buildings at Quetta damaged by abnormal winter rains, the Quetta water-works, and the Morgha-Gomal road. The lapse on the Budget and Revised Estimates occurred entirely under "45—Civil Works," the expenditure under which, as a whole, is generally over-estimated.

313. The ordinary grant for Military Works consists excluding exchange of 150,0 for Upper Burma and 1,000,0 for the rest of India, the latter being a contract grant, savings from which may be added to the grant for the following year. The modifications of the ordinary grant made in the Budget Estimate of 1892-93 were the addition of 30,0 for improvement of water-supply in Cantonments reduced by 15,4 in repayment of special grants made in 1891-92 on condition that the ordinary grant should be proportionately reduced in the following year. The total grant, including 19,2 for exchange, was thus 1,183,8 (1,000,0 + 150,0 + 30,0 - 15,4 + 19,2). Of the grant of 150,0 for Upper Burma, 36,0 was placed at the disposal of the Director-General of Military Works and the actual grant shown under Upper Burma was thus 114,0.

The following additions and deductions were made during the year:—

Grant for accommodation of troops on Chin Hills (Upper Burma)	24,0
Transfer from "45—Civil Works, Imperial," for water-supply scheme at Chaman	1,0
Transfer from Army Estimates for Cantonment General Hospitals	6,3
Provincial Contribution (Punjab) towards cost of drainage and water-supply for Kohat	5

Surrendered in recoupment of excess expenditure in 1891-92	6,3
Lapses on grants transferred to 1893-94	14,0
NET ADDITION TO GRANT	11,1

The total grant available for expenditure in 1892-93 (excluding exchange) was thus 1,175,7 of which 174,0 was for Upper Burma and 1,001,7 for the rest of India. The actual expenditure amounted to 168,2 for Upper Burma, and 1,004,1 for the rest of India, the excess under which, therefore, amounts to 2,4 which has been deducted from the Revised Grant for 1893-94.

314. The total expenditure in 1892-93 was less by 17,8 than that of the previous year, in which a special grant of 61,6 was sanctioned for works designed to facilitate mobilization in time of war. There were also other special grants amounting (net) to 15,4, which were made on condition that the grant for the ensuing year would be reduced by a like amount, which condition was fulfilled as shown above. On the other hand the special grant in Upper Burma for accommodation for troops on the Chin Hills exceeded the similar grant in 1891-92 by 11,5, which accounts for the increased expenditure in Upper Burma in the latter year. In the Revised Estimate the expenditure of the year in Upper Burma was under-estimated.

315. Departmental Officers.—The decrease of 111.6, as compared with the actuals of previous year, occurred chiefly in India, Upper Burma and Bengal. In India it was due to the approaching completion of the Protestant churches at Quetta and Multan, and to large expenditure in 1891-92 on the Quetta water-works and Morgha-Gomal road, and on special repairs to buildings at Quetta damaged by the abnormal winter rains. The decrease in Upper Burma was due to the outlay in 1891-92 having been very large owing to the construction of famine relief works, while in Bengal it was due to the completion of the Imperial Secretariat buildings. There was on the other hand an increase of 45.2 in Assam, due to the expenditure on the Nichuguard-Manipur road the expenditure on which also largely exceeded the estimate. The decrease, as compared with the Budget Estimate, was chiefly due to the transfer of grants amounting to 68.8 from this head to "43—Minor Works and Navigation" on account of famine relief works in Upper Burma and Rajputana, for the former of which a special additional grant of 35.0 was also made by the Government of India in the Department of Finance and Commerce, and to a grant of 10.0 for Mint mechanics' quarters in Bombay not having been required. The lapse of 22.4 from the Revised Estimate was principally due to the expenditure in Assam, Bengal, and Bombay having been over-estimated.

316. Civil Officers.—The increase of 7.5, compared with the actuals of the previous year, was due to the construction of the Consulate House at Meshed. The decrease, as compared with the Budget and Revised Estimates, was due to the grant of 7.7 provided for the construction of the Consulate House at Basra not having been utilized.

Provincial.

317. Departmental Officers.—The decrease, as compared with the actuals of 1891-92, was due to smaller grants having been assigned for expenditure in 1892-93 by all Local Governments and Administrations except Burma and Assam. The increase in Lower Burma is attributed to the pushing on to completion of a number of important roads and buildings in the province. In Assam a large grant was provided from Provincial funds for more extensive operations in 1892-93. The decrease, as compared with the Budget Estimate, occurred chiefly in Bengal, and was due to the cost of repairs to certain buildings having been over-estimated and to a decrease of 7.4 in the suspense balances, for which no provision was made in the Budget Estimate. There was also a considerable saving in Madras partly owing to the credits from other funds, for works executed for them, which are brought to account by deduction from establishment charges, having exceeded the estimate, partly owing to lapses under Tools and Plants, English stores indented for not having been paid within the year, and partly to numerous other petty lapses. In Bombay the Budget grant was exceeded, the Local Government having made an additional grant of 27.5 in the course of the year for emergent works not foreseen when the Budget was framed. The short outlay, compared with the Revised Estimate, occurred mainly in Lower Burma and Madras, and was due to an over-estimate of the requirements. In the former province provision was made in the Revised for spending the additional grants transferred to this head from "43—Minor Works and Navigation" (see para. 306), but they were required to a very small extent only.

318. Civil Officers.—The decrease, as compared with the actuals of 1891-92 and the Budget Estimate, was mainly due to a reduction in the grants-in-aid from Provincial funds to Municipalities, town and cantonment funds in Lower Burma, and to smaller payments to Municipalities in Madras, on account of contributions towards the construction of drainage and water-supply works. The large saving on the Budget in Madras is also due to this last cause. Out of a provision of 53.0 in the Budget for these contributions only 26.4 was actually spent.

Incorporated Local.

319. Departmental Officers.—The increase of 13.9 over the actuals of the previous year was chiefly due to a larger programme of works in Upper Burma, Lower Burma, Assam, Madras, and Bombay during 1892-93. The increase would have been larger had it not been for a decrease of 16.8 in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. In the latter province a smaller grant was assigned for expenditure in 1892-93 owing to exceptional expenditure in 1891-92. The increase, as compared with the Budget Estimate, occurred mainly in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Madras, and Bombay. The increase in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh was chiefly due to increased expenditure on certain roads for which supplementary grants were sanctioned by the Local Government. In Madras the increase was chiefly due to additional expenditure on famine relief works, and that in Bombay to the construction of a number of works not foreseen when the Budget Estimate was framed. In the Revised Estimate the requirements in Assam, Punjab, and Bombay were over-estimated.

320. Civil Officers.—The outlay of the year exceeded that of 1891-92 by 48.9. The increase was due to larger expenditure against larger grants sanctioned by the several Local Governments and Administrations for Public Works. In Madras the expenditure largely exceeded the estimate, but there were savings in several Provinces, and on the whole there was a saving on the Budget Estimate of 7.6.

England.

321. There was a saving in the Budget Estimate of the charges for furlough pay and allowances owing to a decrease in the number of officers drawing their allowances in England, partly counterbalanced by an increase consequent upon the new arrangements made for the issue of pay and allowances monthly instead of quarterly. The charges of the Royal Indian Engineering College were higher partly on account of expenditure incurred on works for protection against fire, and the demands for stores from this country were also higher than anticipated, though considerably below the figure for the previous year.

323. The receipts in this country exceeded the Budget estimate and the actuals of 1891-92 by 108,3 and 70,6, respectively. The increase over the Budget Estimate was principally due to larger sales of Commissariat provisions, stores and malt liquor, extensive disposals of remounts and a credit taken for the value of 260 horses carried over to Egypt by the 7th Dragoon Guards, increase in sale proceeds of clothing necessities and larger contributions towards Indian Military Service Family Pensions. The Revised Estimate did not make sufficient allowance for most of these items.

324. As regards the expenditure in India, the comparison of the actuals with the Budget estimate, and the actuals of the previous year is vitiated by the inclusion in the figures of the expenditure connected with Expeditions and other special items. The following statement shows the special items separately :—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Accounts.
529,2	Extra charges for Upper Burma	540,0	502,6

15,741,1	TOTAL	15,006,7	15,589,1

325. The special items do not call for any remarks except that special additional grants were sanctioned for them during the year amounting in all to 351,0. The ordinary expenditure in India exceeded the Budget Estimate by 277,0. The increase occurred almost wholly under Commissariat, being due to a rise in rates for articles of food for men and animals and to increased transport charges for conveyance of troops and stores, counterbalanced by a saving of 14,2 in Establishments. The Revised Estimate fell short of the actual charges by 66,9. The difference was principally due to a further rise in prices of articles of food and forage after the Revised Estimates were prepared. Compared with the actuals of 1891-92 there was an increase of 597,5, due chiefly to the rise in prices of food just mentioned and to a fall in the rate of exchange for converting the pay of British troops into Indian Currency.

326. The expenditure in England exceeded the estimate by 294,3, chiefly owing to a payment of 212,4 to the War Office on account of arrears of the Home Charges of British Forces serving in India and to the disbursement of the furlough allowances and pay and pensions of non-effective and retired officers of the Indian Service monthly instead of quarterly as before.

327. The decrease in the receipts under Regimental Pay, etc., was due to smaller receipts of Hutting money in Madras in consequence of revised arrangements for the accommodation of Native soldiers and also to recoveries of over-payments of previous years having been adjusted by deduction from charges instead of by credit as a receipt as formerly.

The details of the receipts under Commissariat are as follows:—

1891-92. Accounts.		1892-93.
		Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
234,4	Sale of malt-liquor	252,5	260,5	260,7

31,8	Other heads	33,4	35,6	33,3
373,3	TOTAL	385,7	409,7	412,2

328. The principal increase (19,7) occurred under the second head, there having been larger sales of provisions, stores, and dairy produce, while malt liquor brought in 8,2 more, owing partly to larger sales and partly to English malt liquor having been supplied from stock to British troops at Aden before the system of supply under regimental arrangements was introduced. The receipts from Kheddass did not come up to the estimates owing to fewer elephants having been captured and sold, and the number of transport cattle condemned and sold was also smaller than anticipated. The realisations from grass farms were adjusted in the accounts as receipts instead of being deducted from the expenditure as before.

Section L.—ARMY SERVICES—RECEIPTS—*continued.*XXXIII.—Army—continued.

329. The increase in Remount and Veterinary receipts resulted from the disposal of a large number of rejected remounts from depôts in Bengal, the transfer of a large number of animals to Native Cavalry regiments in Bengal on payment, more castings of regimental horses, increased sale of chargers to officers in Bengal and Madras, and a credit of 24,5 on account of the value of 260 horses taken to Egypt by the 7th Dragoon Guards.

330. The larger receipts under Clothing were due to extensive sales of necessaries and to the adjustment of the value of European stores supplied to the Military Police on the Eastern Frontier, Bengal, and to the Hong-Kong regiment. The supplies to the Hyderabad Contingent, however, fell off from 1,0 to 4.

331. The increased revenue under Ordnance Stores accrued chiefly from extensive sales of unserviceable stores in arsenals and factories, from a supply of stores to the British East Africa Company which was not provided for in the Budget, from larger supplies to the Hyderabad Contingent, and from larger issues of European stores and arms to the Police and other departments in Bengal and Madras. These increases were, however, to some extent counterbalanced by deductions from the receipts made in Bombay on account of large quantities of stores returned by other departments.

332. The receipts under Sea Transport Charges fell short of the Budget owing mainly to an over-estimate in Bombay of the recoveries on account of table money.

Under Miscellaneous Services there were large receipts in connection with expeditions and field operations not foreseen when the Budget Estimate was framed. The recoveries on account of medals issued on payment were provided for in the Budget Estimate under this head, but the actuals were correctly compiled under Rewards for Military Services, which accounts for the increase under the latter head. The contributions towards Widows Pensions, etc., were under-estimated, and some arrear contributions were also received from continuous service Royal Artillery and Royal Engineer Officers.

333. The receipts in England include 8,5 on account of the sale of the Indian Troopship Yumna. The realisations on account of subscriptions towards Indian Military Service Family Pensions were also higher owing to the disbursement monthly, instead of quarterly, of the Pay and Pensions from which these amounts are deducted.

Army and Garrison Staff.

334. The expenditure under Army and Garrison Staff is distributed as follows :—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
54,7	Commander-in-Chief	53,6	53,4	52,4
49,3	Adjutant General	48,3	46,8	46,6

3	Staff Miscellaneous	3	3	3
498,1		517,9	506,4	504,2

335. There were petty savings under most heads, the most noticeable being that under District Commands, which was chiefly due to the abandonment of the scheme for a corps of military staff clerks for which a sum of 3,3 was provided in the Budget, and to the reduction of the Presidency Command in Bengal from a first to a second class command : this last saving was however counterbalanced by the elevation of the Punjab Frontier Force command from a second to a first class district, which accounts for the excess charge under Staff of Local Forces. The only other excess occurred under Miscellaneous Depôts, and was due to the officers at the Pallaveram Depôt having drawn higher salaries than were provided in the Budget. The increase over the previous years' expenditure was chiefly due to the reorganization at extra cost of the Intelligence Branch (India) of the Quarter Master General's Department and to larger grants for Station Conservancy.

Administrative Staff.

336. This head includes the charges for the Personal Staff of the Governor General, Governors and Lieutenant Governors, and for the Military Accounts Department. The variations were not important.

Regimental Pay.

337. Under this head the total charges approximated very closely to the Budget Estimate, but there were considerable variations in the details. The figures relating to the European and Native Armies are as follows :—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
3,264,0	European Army	3,491,8	3,472,0	3,499,3

Regimental Pay—continued.

339. The increase under Infantry was due to the relief arrangements and to the savings on account of the absence of officers on leave in England having been over-estimated. The savings under Cavalry also resulted from the relief arrangements and from the 7th Dragoon Guards having proceeded to Egypt during the year without relief; those under Artillery accrued from short strength of troops and more officers having gone on furlough to Europe than had been expected, and from certain establishments having been paid for March 1892 in 1891-92. There were fewer unemployed officers of the Engineers, Staff Corps, and General List Infantry, and also fewer unemployed General officers. The rise in Other Charges was chiefly owing to a special bounty given for the extension of service of soldiers in India. The large increase in the charges compared with the actuals of the previous year was due chiefly to a lower rate of Exchange having been fixed for the year for the payment of British troops in India, namely, 1s. 4½d. against 1s. 6½d. in 1891-92.

340. The details of the principal sub-heads under the Native Army are as follows:—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
48,4	Artillery	50,1	48,1	48,9
13,1	Body-Guard	13,8	13,5	13,5
1,235,1	Cavalry	1,238,3	1,240,6	1,242,5
117,0	Sappers and Miners	115,4	114,9	115,6
2,233,6	Infantry	2,252,0	2,224,6	2,232,9
46,7	Annual grant-in-aid of half-mounting	48,0	46,7	46,6
43,0	Kit-money and Recruits	40,1	38,5	38,4
35,2	Hutting-money	31,4	39,9	28,2
27,0	Reserve Forces	26,6	29,8	42,7
18,4	Other Charges	16,5	17,0	18,5
3,817,5		3,832,2	3,813,6	3,827,8

341. The savings under Artillery and Infantry were due chiefly to under-estimates of the allowances to be made for the short strength of officers and for officers of junior rank as compared with the sanctioned complement, the excess under Cavalry being due to a similar over-estimate. The provision under Kit-money and Grants-in-aid of half-mounting was not utilized in full. Under Hutting-money, full hutting allowances were not claimed in Bengal to the extent estimated for, and the special grant of 4,0 for new lines at Nadi was not used, while the provision of 5,0 for cavalry lines in Madras had been erroneously made in the Budget under Miscellaneous Services. The Revised Estimate under Hutting-money was raised on account of some special grants which were not ultimately required.

342. The chief increase occurred under Reserve Forces, and was due to large payments in Bengal to reservists who joined regiments for annual training.

Commissariat Charges.

343. The details are classified as follows:—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
502,3	Establishment	514,1	505,7	499,9
1,567,3	Supplies	1,524,9	1,600,5	1,705,3

Commissariat Charges—continued.

345. There were savings under all these sub-heads except Ambulance Transport, chiefly owing to sufficient allowance not having been made for savings through absence of officers on furlough, etc. Under Subordinate establishments the savings were also due in part to the special provision of 10,0 for an increase of pay to transport attendants not having been used in full, and to smaller subordinate establishments having been employed in connection with the experimental use of the Kurrachee route for troops proceeding to and returning from England.

346. Under Supplies the details are as follows:—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
710,8	Provisions for Europeans	700,1	709,5	745,9
219,9	Provisions for Natives	197,0	205,8	223,4
	Compensation to Natives—
282,1	(a) for dearness of provisions	235,0	315,5	361,0
71,1	(b) for dearness of forage	64,0	78,0	71,3
44,3	Purchase of Reserve Stock	29,2	24,2	27,3
2,0	Shwebo Canal Fuel and Fodder Reserve Scheme	2,7
229,6	Malt Liquor purchased locally	284,5	262,9	270,7
4,1	Rum	8,6	7	3,4
2,8	Dairy Farms	2,4	2,7	2,2
6	Contingent Expenses	1,4	1,2	1
1,567,3		1,524,9	1,600,5	1,705,3

347. It will be seen that, of the excess 180,4 over the Budget, 133,3 occurred in the charges for compensation for dearness of provisions and forage owing to high prices of articles of food for men and horses, and 45,8 under provisions for Europeans on account of large stocks laid in at certain stations in the Eastern and Western Circles, Bengal, and at outlying posts in Burma, and to a considerable rise in rates in the Western Circle in Bengal and in Madras. There was also an increase under Provisions for Natives, due mainly to higher rates of money allowance in lieu of rations in the Quetta district, to a rise in the price of rice in certain stations in Burma, and to charges incurred in the Bombay Circle on account of the military escort in Mekran, counterbalanced to some extent by a saving, due to the troops at Manipur having been rationed for a greater portion of the year from stock purchased in 1891-92. The saving of 1,9, under Purchase of reserve stock was due to smaller purchases in Madras and Bombay, and to articles of reserve stock, which were formerly supplied by the Store-keeper General, Madras, having been purchased direct by Commissariat officers and adjusted to ordinary heads. No expenditure was incurred against the provision of 2,7 for the Shwebo Canal fuel and fodder reserve scheme, the undertaking having been transferred to the administration of the Forest Department. Under Malt liquor the saving of 13,8 was owing to short purchases, and would have been still larger but for the fact that higher rates were paid to brewery companies in consequence of a fall in the rate of exchange. There was also a smaller consumption of rum, which led to a saving of 5,2. The large excess over both the actuals of the previous year and the Revised Estimate was due chiefly to the rise in the rates for articles of food for men and animals.

348. Under Services the following details are supplied:—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
162,8	Hire of Transport	116,8	141,3	129,6
48,7	Sea and Inland Water Charges	36,0	44,6	42,0
455,5	Railway Charges	359,5	409,5	418,5
40,7	Grass Cultivation	49,6	49,6	50,2
219,2	Feed of Horses, Battery Mules, Yabooks, Bullocks, and Elephants	226,1	249,1	261,9
14,5	Regimental Equipment and Camp Contingencies	14,5	13,4	10,7
80,9	Implements, Godown Furniture, etc.	33,5	37,9	42,2

1,087,4		892,3	1,004,7	1,016,8

349. The excess over the Budget was large, amounting to 124,5, of which the greater part was made up by 59,0 under Railway charges, owing to a larger number of Native soldiers having proceeded on furlough, to more reservists having been called out for training, and to more stores having been despatched by rail, and by 35,8 under feed of horses, etc., due to large stocks laid in in the Western Circle, Bengal, and the Madras Circle, to higher prices of grain, and to an increase in the salt ration of horses, counterbalanced in the Eastern Circle, Bengal, by successful attempts to keep down expenditure by the use of a cheaper description of grain and forage, by the establishment of bullocks attached to the heavy battery at Jhansi having been reduced, and by the Mounted Infantry in Burma having been below the authorized strength. The excess under Hire of Transport of 12,8 was owing to arrear charges on account of the occupation of Manipur and to expenditure on account of cold-weather operations in Burma having been compiled under this head instead of under "Miscellaneous" (Grant 14), under which provision for it was made in the Budget. Conveyance by river steamers of the 28th Bombay Pioneers and Bengal and Madras Sappers and Miners employed on the Manipur-Nichuguard-Kohima road, and charges connected with the cold-weather field operations in Upper Burma chiefly raised the actuals under Sea and Inland Water charges by 6,0. The increase of 8,7 under Implements, etc., was due chiefly to charges in connection with the replenishment of condemned mobilization stores and the protection of these reserves. The principal increase under Other Heads arose from large purchases of warm clothing, and from the laying in of a reserve stock of bhoosa for the Hissar Cattle Farm.

350. Of the increase of 94,4 under Transport, 86,7 was on account of Captain Yielding's transport arrangements, Kashmir, for which there was no provision in the Budget. The remainder of the increase was due chiefly to larger purchase and higher rates for feed of animals, and to larger replacements of condemned carts, gear, and equipment.

Remounts and Veterinary.

351. The details are given below :—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts
3,2	Supervising Staff	3,3	3,3	3,1
24,0	Depôt Establishments	23,4	22,0	23,7
8,8	Veterinary Inspection	8,3	8,6	8 6
27,6	Station Veterinary Hospitals	28,2	28,4	29,0
3	Veterinary Schools	5	5	4
2,4	Remount Depôt, Garden Reach	2,5	2,5	2,5
159,0	Purchase of Remounts	132,4	146,1	133,9
37,6	Feed of Cattle and Remounts	31,1	33,5	40,1
32,9	Miscellaneous	31,0	31,7	35,1
295,8		260,7	276,6	276,4

352. The excess under Purchase of Remounts was due to the purchase of additional ordnance mules from South Africa for mountain batteries, for which an additional grant of 6,6 was sanctioned during the year. The road expenses of these mules and extra charges for transfer of remounts led to the excess under Miscellaneous. Under Feed of Cattle, etc., the increase was due to a rise in the rates of grain and forage.

Clothing Establishments.

353. The charges fall under the following subheads :—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
9,1	Superintending Establishments	9,1	9,1	8,7
5,0	Manufacturing and Store Establishments	4,8	5,6	5,6
Supplies and Services—
149,6	Factories	131,5	136,2	137,4
16,4	Regimental	20,2	23,2	20,1
67,0	Compensation in lieu of clothing	70,5	80,5	77,9
247,1		236,1	263,6	249,7

354. The increase was due to larger supplies for Factories having been obtained locally in Bengal and to the grant of special allowances for Compensation in lieu of Clothing, on the introduction of the new system of supply of clothing to British troops, for which however the provision made in the Revised Estimate was excessive.

Barrack Establishments.

355. The following are the details under this head :—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
3,2	Executive Establishments	3,4	3,4	3,4
64,5	Subordinate Establishments	63,6	68,2	69,3
10,2	Barrack Furniture	7,7	10,7	9,9

Barrack Establishments—continued.

356. The actuals exceeded the Budget Estimate by 24,1 and the Revised Estimate by 18,6. The increase was due under Subordinate Establishments to larger conservancy and hot weather establishments in Bengal and Madras; under Barrack Furniture to increased purchases in Madras and under Barrack Bedding in Bombay; under Lighting Charges to a stock of kerosine oil laid in for issue in 1893-94; under Miscellaneous to increased expenditure on account of fuel in the Western Circle, the winter having been specially severe, and to larger establishments employed for the supply of water for plunge-baths and wash-houses.

Medical Establishments.

357. The charges are classified under the following heads:—

1891-92. Accounts.	Medical Establishment—	Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
23,0	Head Quarters and Circles	22,9	22,6	22,2
393,7	Districts	393,9	398,3	398,4
6,2	Nursing Service . . .	12,7	11,1	11,0
25,3	Army Hospital Charges .	27,4	26,8	25,6
18,6	Medical Store Depôts . .	18,6	18,4	18,2
2,7	Followers' Hospitals . .	2,2	2,4	2,3
13,8	Miscellaneous	26,7	19,8	12,4
228,1	Medical Supplies . . .	211,0	211,1	220,3
Deduct—
28,6	Issues to other Departments	28,5	29,5	31,6
199,5		182,5	181,6	188,7
682,8		686,9	681,0	678,8

358. There was a saving on the whole under this head. The principal saving occurred under Miscellaneous, and was due to the special grant of 12,5 for opening new cantonment general hospitals in the Eastern and Western Circles, Bengal, not being fully utilised, and to certain cantonment hospitals not having been opened in Madras. Smaller savings also arose under Nursing Service and Army Hospital Corps owing to vacancies in the establishments. The savings due to these causes were however to some extent counterbalanced by extra charges under Medical Establishments Districts, owing to the employment of additional temporary hospital attendants in consequence of the vacancies just mentioned, and to charges in connection with the cold weather field operations in Burma having been adjusted under this head though provided for under "Miscellaneous" (Grant 14). The charges for Medical Supplies were enhanced owing to large stocks having been laid in, and to increased expenditure on account of medical stores and comforts generally.

Ordnance.

The charges are sub-divided below:—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
33,6	Supervising Staff	33,3	32,3	32,9
178,8	Arsenals and Depôts	177,6	181,8	183,3
165,2	Factories	177,3	196,6	187,6
9,9	Fort Armaments	18,6	16,3	15,8
Stores—
114,9	For Arsenals and Depôts	108,9	113,8	114,2
122,4	For Factories	165,2	150,8	148,6
17,7	Purchase of Timber
11,5	Freight	7,1	10,0	14,1
50,7	Camp Equipage	87,9	77,2	72,7
19,9	Line Gear	18,0	21,3	26,2
32,0	Other Charges	37,8	40,1	37,1
Deduct—
32,3	Supplies to other Departments . .	33,0	32,0	42,3
724,3		798,7	808,2	790,2

359. There was a saving on the whole of 8,5. The principal savings were under Stores for Factories (16,6) and Camp Equipage (15,2). Under the former head the savings were due to less stores having been purchased in Bengal and Madras on account of the expected introduction of cordite and to the demands for hides by the Harness and Saddlery Factory at Cawnpore not having come up to the large extra provision made in the Budget; but these savings were partially counteracted by larger expenditure for saltpetre and tin ingot caused by increased outturn in the Gunpowder and Small Arms, etc., Factories in Bombay. Under Camp Equipage fewer tents were purchased owing to the reduction of the proportion of tents to be maintained in future for mobilisation purposes, and to tents ordered to be manufactured in Madras in 1892-93 not having been completed in that year. There was also a further saving (9,3) owing to larger deductions under Supplies to other Departments, due especially to the issue of accoutrements for the use of the Hong-Kong Regiment and of ammunition to the Police Department.

360. On the other hand there was increased expenditure on establishments, both in Arsenals and Depôts and Factories, savings due to absence of officers on leave having been over-estimated in the former and sufficient provision not having been made for the larger establishment required for the larger outturn in the latter. The Freight Charges also exceeded the Budget Estimate, which was pitched rather low; and under Line Gear the Budget provision was exceeded in Madras owing to a large supply of horse brushes, horse blankets, and cordage having been obtained, and in Bombay owing to extensive replacements of stock and to a large stock of head and heel ropes and of new pattern blankets for batteries being laid in.

Other Effective Charges.

361. Education Charges were higher by 1,1 owing to new furniture and clothing for orphans in the Lawrence Asylum, Sanawar.

362. The increase of 3,0 under Sea Transport Charges was due to passages engaged for surplus troops in a private vessel in April 1892.

363. The actuals under Miscellaneous Services include the following special expenditure, for which there was no provision in the Budget, but for which additional grants, amounting to 271,6, were sanctioned during the course of the year :—

											1892-93, Accounts.
Arrear charges on account of the late—
Chin-Lushai Expedition	9
Hazara Expedition	1,1

South Lushai	20,2
Chin Hills Operations	30,3
Kachin Operations	1,4
Isazai Field Force	32,5
Gilgit Agency	10,3
											<hr/> 257,3

364. There was also an increase in telegram charges owing to heavy arrear charges in Bengal and in the charges on account of telegraph lines maintained for mobilisation purposes. There was, on the other hand, a saving owing to the adjustment under the ordinary heads of the charges for cold-weather field operations in Upper Burma, for which a sum of 60,0 was provided in the Budget under this head. There was less outlay on purchase of lands owing to land at Stoli and Nadi not having been acquired, as well as to the charges for Madras Cavalry lines, for which 5,0 was provided under this head, having been compiled under Regimental Pay, etc.

365. Under Volunteer Corps a provision of 10,0 in the Budget Estimate on account of special concessions to volunteers was not used in full, and such expenditure as was incurred has been compiled under the ordinary heads. The appointment of a Naval Officer Instructor for the Calcutta Naval Volunteers provided for in the Budget has not yet been sanctioned, and the pay of the Naval Instructor, Kurrachee Naval Volunteers, was saved owing to the disbandment of the corps. The proposal to raise a Railway Service Corps, for which 5,0 was provided in the Budget, was also abandoned.

Non-effective Charges.

366. The increase of 3,8 under Rewards for Military Services was due to a larger number of admissions of Native commissioned officers to the Order of British India and to heavy payments for Burma, Chin Lushai, and Hazara medals.

Section L.—ARMY SERVICES—EXPENDITURE—continued.Non-effective Charges—continued.

367. The decrease under Military Pensions to Europeans was owing to lower payments of capitalized value of officers' pensions, to transfers of pensions to England, and to casualties.

368. The increase under Military Pensions to Natives was due partly to an under-estimate of the charges in the Western Circle, Bengal, and partly to a rise in rates having caused increased expenditure under compensation for dearness of provisions to pensioners in Madras.

Expenditure in England.

369. In England arrears to the extent of 212,4 in respect of the Home charges of British forces serving in India were paid to the War Office in 1892-93 instead of in 1891-92 as was intended. There was a rise of 41,7 in furlough allowances of officers of the Indian Service owing to monthly payments of these allowances instead of quarterly as before; a reduction in the price of coal and in the Suez Canal dues resulted in a saving of 7,3 under Indian Troop Service, and a smaller number of passages had to be provided for officers otherwise than in troopships, which led to a saving of 1,9 on the Estimate. There was also a saving of 230,2 in Ordnance Stores, but this was partly counterbalanced by an increase of 64,0 in clothing, 10,2 in Commissariat stores, and 17,1 in Medical stores. Under Non-effective charges there was an increase of 11,2 in the payments to the War Office for retired pay of British forces serving in India. A large credit was allowed to India for the cessation of the half pay of purchase officers entering the Militia, India being charged only with a portion of the value of their commissions on retirement, but in the settlement a considerable sum was paid during the year on account of officers retired in former years. There was a saving of 1,4 in the non-effective pay of Colonels of the Royal Artillery, owing to the allowance of one officer having been in abeyance during his tenure of the office of Commander-in-Chief in India. The charges for pay and pensions of non-effective and retired officers of the Indian Service exceeded the Estimate by 181,4, due to the disbursement of such allowances monthly instead of quarterly as before.

Upper Burma Charges.

370. The details of the extra charges for Upper Burma during the year, which amounted to 502,6 against 529,2 in 1891-92, are given below. The Upper Burma charges include 70,7 on account of cold weather field operations and 108,8 on account of Chin-Lushai:—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Actuals.
604,9	EXPENDITURE	614,5	559,3	458,0

371. The actuals of 1892-93 fell short of those of the previous year by 146,9, which was the result principally of reduced expenditure in England on account of armaments and of a write-back of stock valued at 12,8 to "44—Military Works." The short outlay, as compared with the Budget and Revised Estimates, was chiefly due to the expenditure in England on stores and armaments having been over-estimated, and to reduced payments by the Indian to the Home Government, on account of Aden defence works, owing to the approaching completion of the supply of stores and armaments for them.

372. The distribution of the expenditure is noted below:—

373. The figures shown under this head represent the surplus or deficit of each Provincial Government in respect of the revenues and charges assigned to it, including Incorporated Local Funds. The differences between the Estimates and Accounts under the various Revenue and Expenditure heads have been explained in detail in the foregoing pages, and the share of these pertaining to the Provincial and Local sections of the accounts for the several groups is given below separately for each province. The total Provincial and Local shares of the Revenues were, on the whole, better than the Budget by 610,1 and 316,4, respectively, and the expenditure less by 15,3 and 42,5, consequently the Provincial and Local balances were better than expected by 610,1 + 15,3 or 625,4 and 316,4 + 42,5 or 358,9, respectively.

Section M.—PROVINCIAL ADJUSTMENT—continued.

The Budget anticipated that there would be deficits in the Provincial and Local Accounts to the extent of 886,8 and 274,9 respectively, and as there were improvements of 625,4 and 358,9 over the Budget as just shown, the Provincial balance was diminished during the year by (886,8—625,4) 261,4 and the Local balance was increased by (358,9—274,9) 84,0, so the Provincial and Local balances being taken together the actual decrease in the balances in the course of the year amounted to 261,4—84,0 or 177,4 as shown above. The improvement in this year is distributed over all the Provinces, Madras showing the highest increase of 314,4. Next in order come Burma and Bombay, where the increases were 261,3 and 158,5, respectively. The better result was due to improvement in the receipts under principal heads of Revenue, specially under Land Revenue, in consequence of arrear collections in Madras and revision of settlement in some districts of Burma and Bombay, and less expenditure under Public Works Department. The improvements, in the other provinces, were small and do not call for special notice.

3,500,0	EXPENDITURE . . .	4,035,0	3,986,7	3,986,3

374. In 1891-92 the total capital expenditure on Railways and Irrigation Works shown under 48 and 49 capital expenditure in this group was limited to 3,500,0 and the capital expenditure incurred in excess of this sum was charged against the Famine Insurance Grant as capital expenditure on Protective Railways. In 1892-93 a larger programme for capital expenditure was sanctioned, but the amount to be shown under this group was limited to 3,500,0 plus the actual expenditure during the year on the Bareilly-Rampur-Moradabad Railway and the Jherria Extension of the East Indian Railway, and the remainder of the total capital expenditure was to be shown partly under the Famine Insurance Grant and partly under "37.—Construction of Railways." The following table shows the comparison of the whole of the capital expenditure with the estimates of the year and the actuals of the previous year :—

1891-92. Accounts.		Budget.	1892-93. Revised.	Accounts.
484,8	34. Construction of Protective Railways	1,011,7	993,9	984,5
...	37. Construction of Railways, Imperial	118,3	158,5	201,2
2,770,3	48. State Railways . . .	3,485,0	3,436,7	3,455,2
729,7	49. Irrigation Works . . .	550,0	550,0	531,1
3,984,8		5,165,0	5,139,1	5,172,0

375. In order to compare the actual expenditure with the sanctioned grant, the figures connected with the Bareilly-Rampur-Moradabad Railway and the Jherria Extension of the East Indian Railway should be excluded, as the grants allotted for them were outside the ordinary grant for capital expenditure and could not be diverted for other purposes. The Budget also included a grant of 300,0 for the Assam-Bengal Railway, but the construction of the line having been made over to a Company during the year, the grant was transferred from this head and applied to meet the expenditure incurred by the Company and charged against its deposit account. A refund of 47,9 was also obtained from the Company on account of the outlay incurred by Government on the line before its transfer to the Company, and this has been adjusted by deduction from the total expenditure. As this amount cannot be considered to have been available for expenditure during the year, it should also be left out of account in the comparison of the actual expenditure with the sanctioned grant. On the other hand the following additional grants were sanctioned during the course of the year, and should be included in the sanctioned grants :—

For the East Coast Railway . . .	150,0
„ East Indian Railway, Azimgunge Ferry . . .	14,3
„ Tirhoot Railway, Rolling Stock . . .	83,0
„ Godra-Rutlam Railway . . .	130,0
	377,3

If allowance be made for all the special items mentioned above the comparison would stand as follows :—

	Budget.	Accounts.
Total as shown above . . .	5,165,0	5,172,0
Deduct for Jherria Extension and Bareilly-Rampur-Moradabad Railway . . .	—535,0	—486,3
Assam-Bengal Railway . . .	—300,0	+47,9
Add for additional grants sanctioned during the year shown above . . .	+377,3	...
	4,707,3	4,733,6

The actual expenditure has thus exceeded the sanctioned grants by 26,3, and this has been allowed for in the Revised grant for 1893-94.

376. As regards the Lines under Construction the Jherria Extension was commenced during the year and greater progress was made than expected owing to the utilisation of second-hand material instead of waiting for new material which must have been indented for from England. The grant for the Godra-Rutlam also was exceeded owing to a larger supply of materials from England. The lapse on the grant for the Mu Valley Railway was due to the stoppage of work on one division for a part of the year under the orders of the Government of India. The construction of the Assam-Bengal Railway was made over to a Company during the year and the past outlay incurred by Government on the line was transferred to the Company's account by credit under this head. The Barsoe-Kissengunge Extension of the Eastern Bengal Railway was completed during 1892-93 and the actual expenditure exceeded the grant owing to larger outlay on water-ways and the raising of embankments rendered necessary by floods. The Lucknow-Rai Bareilly-Benares and the Bareilly-Rampur-Moradabad Railways were commenced towards the end of the year 1891-92, and the full amounts allotted for them in 1892-93 could not be utilised owing to a delay in the receipt of stores from England. The progress of the Mari-Attock line was considerably retarded by the prevalence of cholera and other sickness in the neighbourhood, but the Mushkaf-Bolan line was pushed on more rapidly than was at first allowed for. The grant for the East Coast Railway was increased during the course of the year and work was pushed on to a greater extent than was contemplated in the Budget programme. The Palanpur-Deesa line was commenced during the year, though no provision had been made for it in the Budget. As regards the Meiktila Branch, provision was made in the Budget for it only as a famine relief work, but funds were subsequently allotted to complete the work.

377. As regards the Open Lines, the large expenditure against the East Indian Railway is due to the transfer of the outlay on the Patna-Gya Railway on its amalgamation with the undertaking, and to the cost of re-sleeping that line having been debited to Capital under the orders of the Government of India. On the Rajputana-Malwa line the expenditure against final heads of account was less than the Budget Estimate, owing to debits for land required at Delhi not having been raised by the Civil Department, to the late receipt of sanction to an estimate for fencing, to sale of press machinery, to credits for materials returned into store, and to the sale of an engine; but, on the other hand, the store balance was not reduced as anticipated, owing to an adjustment on account of rails received from the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, to large purchases of coal and timber late in the year, and to less issue of stores to Revenue and Capital works. There was a large lapse on the grant for the Eastern Bengal Railway in consequence of the late arrival from England of materials for the construction of goods wagons. On the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway certain works were postponed, and the supplies of materials from England were smaller and at the same time credits were obtained for issue of stores to the Bareilly-Rampur-Moradabad and Lucknow Rai Bareilly-Benares Railways. The expenditure on the North-Western Railway includes heavy outlay on gradient improvements. The expenditure against the Guntakal-Dharmavaram line represents the past outlay on this section of the Guntakal-Hindupur line, which was included with the South Indian Railway, but is now recorded separately in consequence of the working of the line having been taken over from the South Indian Railway by the Southern Marhatta Railway Company. This accounts for the credit under the South Indian and Villupuram-Guntakal Railways. The credit under Other Railways is on account of the transfer of the outlay on the Patna-Gya line to the East Indian Railway mentioned above.

378. The decrease in the expenditure during 1892-93, as compared with that of 1891-92, was principally due to the vigorous prosecution of works in connection with the Chenab Canal in the earlier year. In the Budget and Revised Estimates the requirements of the canals in Bengal and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh were over-estimated.

381. The first two heads do not call for any special remarks. The details of Savings Bank Deposits are as follows:—

	Budget.	Revised.	Accounts.
Presidency Savings Banks	+41,5	+47,0	+46,2
Post Office Savings Banks	+664,0	+855,0	+759,5

382. In the Budget Estimate it was not considered desirable to take the net deposits of the Post Office Savings Banks higher than 400,0, excluding the credit on account of interest. The actual net deposits however amounted to 490,2. The State Railway and Civil Engineer's Provident Funds do not call for any special remarks. The fluctuations under Regimental Savings Banks are dependent to a great extent on the transfers of British Regiments between India and England, and are not therefore susceptible of an accurate forecast. The net credit under Special Accounts was chiefly on account of the General Family Pension and the Hindu Family Annuity Funds, which did not invest their balances owing to the high price of Government Securities during the year. There was also a total receipt of 13,2 on account of the Post Office Life Insurance and Guarantee Funds. The other accounts do not call for any special remarks.

383. The net debit under Provincial Balances has been explained in paragraph 373. The transactions of the Excluded Local Funds differed only slightly from the estimates. The Political and Railway Funds comprise the Bahu Begum's Fund and the several Guaranteed Railway Funds. The balance of the Bahu Begum's Fund was exhausted during the year, and the pensions payable from the Fund have since then being treated as expenditure. Under Railway Funds the net credit was over-estimated in the Budget.

384. The character and magnitude of the transactions recorded as Judicial and Departmental Deposits render them unsusceptible of an accurate forecast. The large net credit was due chiefly to a receipt from the Gwalior Durbar on account of stores for the Goona Bina Railway, to the Bengal North-Western Railway Company's share of the net earnings of their Railway, which was not actually paid during the year, having been debited as expenditure by credit to this head, and also to an increase in the Revenue and Civil Courts Deposits in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and Madras, and in the personal deposits in Bombay.

385. The net figures entered against the head Advances may be divided as follows:—

	Budget.	Revised.	Account.
Coinage Accounts	+ 10,0	— 182,2	— 255,9
Other Advances	+ 9,9	— 41,0	+ 19,3
	+ 19,9	— 223,2	— 236,6

The net debit under Coinage Accounts resulted chiefly from the new coin manufactured in the Mints having been less than the Mint certificates paid during the year, and from an increase in the small coin depôt balances at Calcutta and Bombay. The net credit under Other Advances is the final outcome of a number of transactions which do not require special notice here.

386. Under Suspense Accounts the debit of 129,2 is chiefly on account of an increase in the balance in the hands of the officers of the Behar Opium Agency, Postal Department, and Railway Officers of the Public Works Department, counterbalanced by a credit of 20,0 on the realization of a Bill of Exchange outstanding at the end of the previous year.

387. The gross receipts and payments working up to the net figures under Exchange on Remittance Accounts are as follows:—

391. The payment under Loans to Native States represents a portion of the loan granted to the Cooch Behar State for the Cooch Behar Railway. Of the amount repaid 9,4 (for which provision was not made in the Budget) is also on account of the same, and the remaining 5,0 is on account of the balance of loan due from the Cambay State. Under Loans to Presidency Corporations and Port Trusts the Budget provided for an advance of 55,6 only to the Calcutta Port Trust on account of the Kidderpore dock, but 291,7 was actually required during the year. On the other hand, the Madras Harbour Board took only 15,0 out of the loan of 57,7 provided in the Budget. The advance of 10,0 for the Bombay Port Trust provided in the Budget was duly made. The repayments corresponded with the Budget, except that in Bombay there was an extra repayment by the Port Trust from the unexpended balance of the revenue surplus of 1891-92, which was utilised in equal portions for repaying interest-bearing and non-interest-bearing loans. Under Mofussil Municipalities the Ajmere Municipality took a net advance of 7,8 (21,3—13,5) against an estimate of 15,3 (16,0-7). There were also advances of 4,3— and repayments of 2,2 to and by Municipalities in Upper Burma for which provision was made in the Budget under the Provincial Loans and Advances Account. The excess advance under District Committees, etc., was due to a loan of 7,5 to the Cantonment Committee, Secunderabad, for Water Works, which was sanctioned after the Budget was framed. Under Loans to Notabilities it was estimated that the Bishop of Rangoon would receive an advance of 7,5 for the Rangoon Cathedral and repay 10,2, but he took an advance of 2,0 only and repaid nothing. Under Advances to Cultivators the accounts include the advances and repayments in Upper Burma, which were provided for in the Budget under Provincial Loans and Advances ; these advances were smaller and repayments larger than anticipated, the scarcity in that Province having ceased.

393. The estimates of the Loans to Municipalities were generally framed too high. The principal advances made during the year, most of which were for water-works, are—

Raipur Municipality	10,0
Agra	"	10,6
Benares	"	50,0
Cawnpore	"	30,0
Lucknow	"	20,0
Simla	"	30,0
Delhi	"	11,2
Tanjore	"	16,4
Dhulia	"	15,0
												193,2

The principal difference in the repayments under this head was due to the balance (9,4) of the Naini Tal Protective Works Loan having been written off by debit to Public Works Expenditure.

394. The 7,3 entered against Port Funds is on account of a loan to the Chittagong Port Fund.

395 The 21,0 entered against District Committees was granted to the District Boards of Darbhanga (18,0) and Dinajpur (3,0) in Bengal. The Budget Estimate under Advances to Cultivators was considerably exceeded in Madras and Bombay owing to scarcity, an extra grant of 30,0 having been sanctioned for the latter Province by the Government of India. The Advances under Special Laws represent chiefly the Drainage and Embankment advances in Bengal which were over-estimated in the Budget. The recoveries were also chiefly on account of these advances, of advances under the Jhansi-Encumbered Estates' Acts and the Oudh Talukdars' Relief Act, advances by Talookdari, Settlement Officers and to Kaira Thakoors in Bombay.

396. As explained in former reports, these are all net sums. The Indian figures represent the difference between the advances taken by the Railway Companies and the credits given to them chiefly on account of stores used on revenue account. The English figures represent the difference between the capital deposited by the companies with the Secretary of State, and the withdrawals for expenditure on stores, establishment charges, etc. These figures are necessarily liable to great fluctuations.

397. The improvement in the transactions of the Guaranteed Companies in India was due to the withdrawals having been over-estimated in all cases, and the credits to capital on account of stores transferred to revenue under-estimated in some cases. As regards the Subsidised Railways, the requirements of the Assam-Bengal, Southern Mahratta, and Indian Midland Railways were considerably over-estimated.

398. In England a portion of the share capital of the Assam-Bengal Railway Company provided for in 1892-93 was paid in March 1892 and another portion in 1893-94. On the other hand, 209,6 was received from the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company on account of fresh capital for which no provision was made in the Budget. The requirements of most of the Railways for stores, etc., were also over-estimated.

399. The figures entered in this group are the net result of very large transactions, but there is nothing special to record in respect of them, except that the net credit of 117,0 under other Local Remittances is chiefly on account of a supply bill for 100,0 issued in March 1893 from Delhi to the Political Agent, Ulwar, who required it for making a remittance to me for investment in Government Securities. The bill was sent to me in April and cashed in that month. The money order transactions continued to show a rapid growth as will be seen from the following figures:—

	Issued.	Paid.
1887-88	11,665,7	11,660,7
1888-89	12,781,4	12,758,2

The several Reports on the Progress of Education in India during the year 1892-93, with the orders passed on them by Local Governments and Administrations.

R E S O L U T I O N .

In the Resolution recorded in the Home Department, dated the 18th June 1888, the Governor General in Council reviewed at length the statistics regarding education for 1885-86 and 1886-87, in connection with the first General Education Report for the whole of India, which was drawn up by Sir Alfred Croft, Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, and in which the progress of education during the years 1881-82 to 1885-86 was discussed. The second General Report, which treats of the progress made during the five years commencing on the 1st April 1887 and ending on the 31st March 1892, has been prepared by Mr. A. M. Nash, Professor, Presidency College, Calcutta, and is now under the consideration of the Government of India. In publishing, for general information, the statistics of education for 1892-93, His Excellency in Council merely desires to call attention to the most prominent features presented by them.

2. The total number of public and private institutions to which the Educational Reports relate rose from 141,793 in 1891-92 to 144,699 in 1892-93. There was, however, a falling-off in the number of Primary Schools for both boys and girls, the total number being 97,109 in the former year and 96,409 in the latter.

3. The percentage of scholars to the total population of school-going age (calculated at 15 per cent. on the statistics of population according to the last Census) was 11.38 in 1892-93, as compared with 11.06 in 1891-92. The total number of pupils under instruction at the educational institutions of all classes on the 31st March 1893 was 3,966,267, while on the same date of the previous year the number was 3,856,821. The number attending public institutions increased from 3,348,910 in 1891-92 to 3,418,916 in 1892-93, and the number attending private institutions rose from 507,918 in the previous year to 547,351 in the year under report.

4. From the statement given in the margin, which shows the average monthly attendance at the several classes of public institutions during the year, it will be seen that there was an increase in the monthly average number of pupils present at these institutions from 3,158,613 in 1891-92 to 3,228,144 in 1892-93. As noticed in previous Resolutions, statistics to show the monthly average attendance at private institutions (advanced and elementary) are not available. On the 31st March 1893 there were 13,387 scholars on the rolls of the Arts Colleges, as compared with 12,985 on the corresponding date in 1892. The number on the rolls of the Colleges or Departments of Colleges for professional training also increased from 3,292 at the end of the previous year to 3,344 at the end of 1892-93. There was also a satisfactory increase in the number of pupils at Secondary and Primary Schools, from 473,294 and 2,837,607, respectively, on the 31st March 1892 to 488,261 and 2,890,824 on the 31st March 1893. There was a slight falling-off in the number of pupils in Training Schools for Masters (4,327), as compared with the previous year (4,353); but there was a substantial increase in the number on the rolls of Training Schools for Mistresses, which rose from 793 at the close of 1891-92 to 1,092 at the close of 1892-93. The number attending other special schools (17,681) was higher than at the close of 1891-92 (16,586).

5. Of the pupils under instruction, the number (including those at private institutions) engaged in studying English rose from 372,002 in 1891-92 to 388,650 in 1892-93, the chief increase being in Secondary Schools. The total number of scholars studying a classical language rose from 535,330 to 575,789, and the number studying a vernacular language from 3,492,846 to 3,607,327. There was a considerable increase in the number of pupils at private institutions who were studying a classical language as well as those who were studying a vernacular.

6. The race and religion of the pupils, and the proportion of each class to the total number, during the past two years may be seen from the following table :—

Race and Religion.	1891-92.		1892-93.
	Number.	Proportion to total number.	Number.	Proportion to total number.
Hindus	2,600,733	67.43	2,661,136	67.10
Muhammadans	887,236	28.	894,241	22.55
Europeans and Eurasians	25,795	.67	26,952	.67
Native Christians	94,606	2.46	98,423	2.48
Miscellaneous races or religions	248,451	6.44	285,515	7.20

It is satisfactory to observe from the above figures the sustained increase among Muhammadan pupils. * This increase is chiefly noticeable at Secondary and Primary Schools, which were attended by 646,686 Muhammadan pupils as compared with 637,687 in 1891-92.

7. The total expenditure (direct and indirect) rose from R3,05,19,632 in 1891-92 to R3,16,72,827 in the year under review. The direct expenditure, which was R2,40,93,149 in the preceding year, increased to R2,50,54,254; this increase, as in previous years, was mainly due to increased expenditure on Secondary and Primary Education, the amounts spent under these heads in 1892-93 having been R1,03,29,480 and R99,73,177, respectively, as compared with R98,95,691 and R96,14,284 in 1891-92. The expenditure on Arts Colleges rose from R20,43,552 to R21,10,205; that on Professional Colleges fell from R8,29,281 to R7,97,427; that on Training Schools for teachers rose from R6,67,376 to R6,82,740, and that on other special schools from R10,42,965 to R11,61,225. The indirect expenditure on education, which includes charges on account of direction, inspection, scholarships, buildings and miscellaneous items, and which in 1891-92 was R64,26,183, rose to R66,18,573 in 1892-93.

8. This expenditure was met from Provincial and Local Funds, from Municipal revenues, from Fees, and from miscellaneous sources such as Subscriptions, Endowments, etc.

The following statement compares the sums spent from each of these sources, and the proportion of each sum to the total cost of education, in 1891-92 and 1892-93 :—

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, March 3rd, 1894.

The chief features of the week have been the advance of a depression from Baluchistan into North-West India on the 28th February; and the formation of an independent depression on the 1st March in North-East India. Both these depressions were persistent through the rest of the week, though with variations as to character and intensity. The unsettled conditions of the weather at the close of the previous week continued on the 25th, but pressure recovered on the 26th and there were no changes calling for particular notice,—except the great uniformity of the pressure distribution over the whole of India on the 27th,—till the morning of the 28th; on which day there was a general fall of pressure, with a low pressure area over North-West Rajputana where the defect from normal amounted to one-seventh of an inch. By 8 A.M. on the 1st March this depression was of less importance, but an independent depression had formed in North-Eastern India where the pressure was 200 inch below the normal. The depression over Bengal continued to be the chief feature of the next day, while pressure had risen in the north-west; and, though still considerably in defect, the deficiency there was of much less importance and the weather in the north-west appeared to be improving; but a rapid fall of the barometer on the 3rd lowered the pressure to largely below the normal over the greater part of Northern India; the greatest defect, however, continuing to be in Bengal where pressure was as much as quarter of an inch below normal, while it was two-tenths of an inch below in West Punjab. The abnormal conditions of the past week were accompanied with rain and thunderstorms in Bengal and Assam and rain in the north west, especially on the Hills and in the submontane districts of the Himalayas.

The abnormal defect in pressure noticed at the close of the previous week continued practically unchanged on the 25th. Winds were generally light and variable. The rainfall was almost entirely confined to the North-West Hill stations, Bengal and Assam. At Gnatong 1.20 inches snow fell and several stations received over half an inch of rain. The distribution of pressure on the 26th was irregular, with a shallow low pressure area over Bengal, but pressure was fairly uniform and the variations from the normal small. Winds showed an irregular cyclonic tendency in Bengal, but elsewhere their direction continued very variable. Heavy rain fell in Baluchistan, Chaman receiving 2.05 inches and Quetta 0.95 inch, but in India showers were light and of little importance. On the 27th there was a slight tendency shown to the formation of the hot weather low pressure area over Orissa and Chota Nagpur, but the chief feature in the meteorology of the day was the great uniformity in pressure, the greatest pressure differences over the whole of the Indian region not being more than one-tenth of an inch. Light local showers in some cases accompanying thunderstorms were reported, Silchar and Quetta each receiving half an inch. The advance of a shallow depression from Baluchistan into Rajputana had by the morning of the 28th given general rain in Baluchistan and the Punjab, more especially at the North-West Hill stations. With the exception, however, of Chaman and Simla, each of which received over an inch, the fall was light. Rain also fell at stations in Bengal and Assam, chiefly along the Hills. Silchar registered 1.21 inches. Winds were feebly cyclonic in the depression area and calms were prevalent in the Gangetic plain. Large and important changes took place during the next 24 hours. There was a rapid fall of pressure over North-East India; and a depression, independent of the one of the previous day over North-West India (which was still apparent), had formed over Chota Nagpur and West Bengal. There was a feeble but fairly well marked cyclonic circulation of the winds in North-Eastern India, with fresh to strong winds at the head of the Bay and at Darjeeling. Rain continued at the North-West Hill stations and the Punjab, and was more general in Bengal and Assam. Simla received 1·19 inches, Ranikhet 1·19 inches, Mussoorie 0·93 inch, Silchar 1·36 inches and Dacca 1·18 inches. By the morning of the 2nd March pressure had risen briskly in Baluchistan, and the deficiency of pressure over the north-west was of much less importance. The depression in the north-east was, however, still in existence, covering nearly the same area, and heavy rain had fallen at some stations in Bengal and Assam; Barisal registering 3·55 inches, Chittagong 1·56 inches, Dacca 0·91 inch and Silchar 0·87 inch. Light to moderate showers had also continued in the Punjab and north-western districts of the North-Western Provinces; Montgomery and Dehra Ismail Khan each receiving half an inch. Winds had increased in force at the head of the Bay and were more westerly than the day previous in South-West Bengal. They were unusually strong on the West Coast and were light in Upper India. There was another general fall of pressure on the 3rd, the fall being greatest in Baluchistan, the Punjab, North Bengal and Upper Burma. The deficiency was greatest in Bengal where pressure was more than quarter of an inch below the normal. In West Punjab it was upwards of two-tenths of an inch in defect. The intensification of the pressure in Bengal had caused a considerable increase in the strength of the westerly winds in the Gangetic plain. Winds had fallen off in strength at the head of the Bay and also on the Sind, Cutch and Kathiawar Coasts. In Baluchistan, Chaman and Quetta had each received over half an inch of rain, but very little rain had fallen in North-Western India. Snow fell at Gnatong and rain continued in Bengal and Assam, Chittagong receiving 2·15 inches, Bogra 1·27 inches and Silchar 0·96 inch. The week thus closed with very abnormal weather conditions, the defect of pressure being greatest in Baluchistan and Bengal. The temperature for the whole of India for the whole week was very nearly normal, being only 0·3° in excess.

Temperature.—The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the different provinces of India :—

PROVINCE.	FEBRUARY 1894.				MARCH 1894.			Mean variation of week.

MEAN FOR WHOLE OF INDIA.	+0·6	+0·7	0	+0·6	-0·5	-0·1	+1·1	+0·3

It will be seen from the above that the heavy rainfall of the week lowered the temperature considerably in Bengal and Assam, and in the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab; the excess over normal in Bengal and Assam being only 0.5° as compared with 3.6° of the previous week; and the mean average temperature of the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab being 1.7° and 1.5° in defect, while last week it was in excess. The mean for the whole of India was normal on the 27th, while it was nearly normal on all the other days of the week; on the first and second the temperature being slightly in defect. The largest variation from the normal occurred in the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab. In the latter province the defect on the 1st and 2nd amounted to about 5° .

Rain.—The concluding table shows that twenty-two of the rainfall divisions received no rain during the week. The average actual rainfall of twelve did not exceed one-tenth of an inch, of ten others it was less than half an inch, while it exceeded half an inch in the case of the remaining eight. The heaviest average rainfalls reported were 3.74 inches in Assam (Surma), 2.13 inches in Eastern Bengal, 1.86 in Punjab Hill Districts and 1.73 in Assam (Brahmaputra).

The rainfall of the week was in excess of the normal over the whole of the Punjab, in most of the divisions of Bengal and Assam, in North Oudh, the Western and Submontane Divisions of the North-Western Provinces, the Central and East Divisions of the Central Provinces and in the East Coast (North) Divisions of Madras.

The last three columns of the table show that from 31st December to 3rd March the total rainfall has been in excess of the normal in East Bengal, Assam, North-Western Provinces, Punjab, Sind, Rajputana, most of the divisions in Madras and in a few other divisions in the Peninsula. The greatest absolute excess occurred in the Hill districts of the Punjab where the actual rainfall amounted to 15.79 inches or 8.98 inches in excess of the normal.

The heaviest falls are reported from Bengal and are as follow :—Noakhally 8.98 inches, 4.78 inches of which fell on the 2nd March; Madaripur (Faridpur) 5.22 inches, Chandpur (Tipperah) 5.10 inches and Bhola (Backergunge) 4.99 inches.

Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 10th March.—No rain except a few light showers in Malabar. Agricultural operations restricted as usual at this season. Standing crops generally good, though cotton is diseased in the Deccan. Harvest continues fair. Pasture or fodder available and cattle in good condition. Prices almost stationary, though very slightly easier in the southern half of the presidency.

Bombay.—For week ending 14th March.—Rain in parts of Sind. Standing crops damaged by blight, rust or insects in parts of three districts; prospects otherwise good, but cotton in Broach is below average owing to unseasonable rain in January. Reaping of late crops progressing in fifteen, and ploughing and sowing operations in five, districts. Cotton-picking continues in seven districts. Deficiency of fodder in one district. Agricultural stock good. Scarcity in parts of Baroda. Number on relief works, 2,093. Prices steady except in two districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 10th March.—Numerous local storms with rain occurred during the week over the greater part of Bengal Proper. In Bihar and Orissa there were a few light showers. The rain has benefited the spring rice and other standing crops, and has facilitated the preparation of lands for the sowing of autumn rice and jute. The harvesting of spring crops is in progress, and the reports are generally favourable except from Chittagong and Noakhali where the rainfall has been excessive. The collection of opium is in progress; but the outturn is not so promising as before owing to the prevalence of blight in parts of Bihar. Cattle are generally in good condition, and there is plenty of fodder and water in all districts. The distribution of gratuitous relief in Faridpur has practically ceased. The price of rice is reported to have slightly risen in some districts.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 14th March—Weather seasonable. Slight rain in five districts. Harvesting of spring crops and opium collection in progress. In Banda and Jhansi wheat has been injured by rust. Prospects are favourable. Supplies and fodder sufficient. Prices generally steady.

Punjab.—For week ending 14th March.—Rain has fallen in all but three districts. Extra spring crops being sown. Cotton sowings in progress. Land is being prepared for the autumn crops. The condition and prospects of the standing crops are good. The spring crops in parts of Lahore are said to have been damaged by field rats and floods from the river. Cattle are generally in good condition and fodder is sufficient throughout the province. The poppy crop is in good condition. Prices falling in three districts; stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 14th March.—The clouds have cleared away and the weather is favourable for harvesting. The wheat crop in Saugor is reported to be a complete failure, and that of the adjacent district of Damoh is very bad. In Hoshangabad the crop is apparently rather worse than was anticipated. The outturn will be fair in the Nagpur country and in Chhattisgarh.

Burma.—For week ending 10th March.—Slight rain throughout Upper Burma except in Thayetmyo, Minbu, Magwe, and the Shan States. In Lower Burma the harvesting of the main paddy crop is nearly finished. Dry-weather crops in Amherst and Tavoy are in good condition. In Upper Burma an excellent wet-weather paddy harvest has been gathered in most places. Sowing of dry-weather paddy and other crops progressing satisfactorily. Reaping of gram, peas, and beans continues. Crop prospects generally favourable and outturns on the whole fair. Fodder and water sufficient. The price of paddy has fallen in eleven districts, and has risen in Mandalay. The price of rice has fallen in six districts and has risen in two others. Prices of paddy are below normal everywhere except in Tavoy, Mergui, Kyaukphyu, and Sandoway where the supply and demand are local. The paddy market is late, and there seems to be a falling tendency in the price of the grain in the principal export markets.

Assam.—For week ending 14th March.—Slight rain. Early rice-ploughing and sugarcane-pressing still continue. Condition of cattle good, and fodder and water sufficient.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 14th March.—MYSORE: Crops and prospects good. Ragi (Eleusine coracana) harvested in Bangalore. Rice sown in parts of the Tumkur and Bangalore districts, and harvested in Mysore and parts of the Bangalore and Chitaldrug districts. Prices fallen slightly in two districts.

COORG: Threshing of rice completed. Manuring of fields in progress. Coffee-picking completed. Fodder and water for cattle sufficient. Prices stationary.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 14th March.—BERAR: The hot weather has fairly set in. Standing crops continue favourable. Threshing of spring crops in progress. Reaping of gram and linseed completed in the Wun district. Preparation of land for the ensuing crop has commenced throughout the province. Fodder sufficient except in parts of the Akola district where it is reported scanty. Water-supply sufficient. Prices steady.

HYDERABAD: No rain during the week. Harvesting of hot-weather crops continues. Cutting of spring crops commenced. Prices steady.

Central India.—For week ending 14th March.—Slight rain during the week in parts of Gwalior. Spring crops being reaped in Bhupal, Bundelkhand, and Baghelkhand. The outturn in Bhopal, Bundelkhand, Goona, and parts of Gwalior will probably be below average. Prices of food-grains rising in parts of Gwalior and Bundelkhand, high in Bhopal, and steady in other Agencies. The condition of the opium crop is indifferent in Bhopal and Neemuch, but good in other parts.

Rajputana.—For week ending 14th March.—Rainfall slight in parts. Agricultural operations, standing crops, and cattle, generally satisfactory. Prospects generally good. Harvest commenced in places. Pasturage or fodder sufficient. Opium injured in Todgurh by high winds and cloudy weather. Prices falling in three States, rising in two others, and steady elsewhere.

Kashmir.—For week ending 13th March.—Snow and rain during the week. Prospects of spring crops are generally good, but fine weather is now required to prepare land for autumn crops. Prices favourable.

Jammu.—For week ending 8th March.—Good rain. Fodder plentiful and cattle in good condition. Prices falling.

Nepal.—For week ending 10th March.—Weather pleasant and sunny. Prospects fair.

M. FINUCANE,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of India.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT for 1894-95.

PART I.

GENERAL REVIEW.

PRELIMINARY.

In accordance with the Statutory Rules for the discussion of the Financial Statement of the Governor General in Council, I have caused a printed copy of the Financial Statement of 1894-95 to be delivered to each Member; and I proceed to submit to the Council the explanations I desire to offer with reference to it. Following the example set last year by Sir David Barbour, the prescribed Financial Statement will form the Second Part of the published compilation, and will set forth and explain in detail the various figures of the receipts and outgoings of the Government, being intended both for the information of the public, and as a permanent official record of the financial arrangements and prospects of the current and the approaching year. My accompanying explanation, which will form the first part of the compilation, is intended to give Honourable Members a more general view of the accounts and estimates, leaving fuller information regarding the details to be sought for in the more elaborate compilation, which has been printed and distributed in accordance with the rules.

2. I have so recently had occasion to lay before Honourable Members a review of our recent and present general financial position that I am to a certain extent discharged from the obligation to look on this occasion beyond the figures of the three years, the finance of which I have to explain, viz., the past year, the current year and the coming year. I do not think that any Finance Minister has yet had the evil fortune to present figures which for all three years shew a deficit of Revenue, but I shall not waste the time of the Council in again going over the ground covered by the statement I laid before them three weeks ago, and bemoaning the adverse fate which a continually dwindling Rupee imposes upon us. I pass at once to the consideration of the accounts and estimates which it is my duty to explain.

ACCOUNTS, 1892-93.

3. The accounts of 1892-93, as finally made up, shew a deficit of Rx. 833,412, as compared with the deficit in the Revised Estimate of Rx. 1,681,900. The improvement, which amounts to Rx. 248,488, is composed of a number of small differences scattered over both the Revenue and Expenditure heads, none of which are large enough to require particular mention. In short, the Revised Estimate presented to the Council twelve months ago represented as accurately as an estimate could be expected to do the outturn of the year. The accounts were made up at an exchange a little less than 1s. 3d. per rupee; the total amount of Council Bills drawn during the year being £16,532,215 at the average rate of 1s. 2'985d.

4. The usual appropriation report, containing the Comptroller and Auditor General's review and comparison of the estimates and accounts of the year, was published in last week's Gazette of India; and with it the year's accounts are consigned to past history.

REVISED ESTIMATES, 1893-94.

+ 299,600 — 650,300 — 60,800 + 487,500 Net — 76,000	5. As compared with the Revised Estimates for 1892-93, which we have seen were very accurately justified by the final figures, the Budget Estimate of 1893-94 provided under Revenue heads for better Land Revenue Rx. 299,600, worse Opium Revenue Rx. 650,300, worse Salt Revenue Rx. 60,800, better Railway Revenue Rx. 487,500, and a number of minor differences. In the aggregate the difference was a difference for the worse of Rx. 15,500.
---	---

+ 335,100 — 621,800 — 241,600 + 252,000 + 654,800 Net + 378,500	6. The Revised Estimates of 1893-94 shew that we have had a very favourable Land Revenue year, even after taking into account the fact that Rx. 207,200 of the increase comes in, in Madras and Bombay, by deduction from, or charge to, other heads. The return is about 25½ crores, whereas we have never yet come up to 25, and is Rx. 335,100 in excess of Budget. But, on the other hand, the loss of Opium Revenue is by Rx. 621,800 greater than anticipated, and whereas the lowest figure recorded for many years has been Rx. 7,879,182, we this year estimate to receive only Rx. 6,694,400. The loss under Salt Revenue has been much greater than anticipated, being Rx. 241,600 as compared with Budget Estimates. On the other principal Revenue heads taken together there has been a gain as compared with Budget of Rx. 252,000. Railways have done extremely well during the year, the Revenue being taken at Rx. 654,800 better than Budget, and more than a crore better than last year.

7. These differences and a number of minor ones give us a net improvement of Rx. 423,800 upon the Budget Estimates on the Revenue side,* of which Rx. 104,900 goes to Provincial account, leaving Rx. 318,500 for Imperial.

1,595,100 — 318,900 1,276,200	8. The Budget Estimates of the year were for a deficit of Rx. 1,595,100 upon the year's account. With the improvement of Revenue which I have noticed, our Expenditure if kept within estimate would have brought out at the end of the year a deficit of only Rx. 1,276,200. Our deficit, however, stands at Rx. 1,792,800, or Rx. 516,600 greater than this figure. And indeed, as a short opium crop has saved us Rx. 370,100 on our estimated opium payments, I have really to explain Rx. 886,700 of excess of Expenditure over Estimate in 1893-94.
-------------------------------------	---

150,500 151,500 318,300 620,300 — 89,000 540,300	9. The only heads of Imperial Expenditure in India which shew any noteworthy excess of Expenditure over Estimate are Interest on Debt (Rx. 159,500), Working Expenses of State Railways (Rx. 151,500), and the Army Expenditure (Rx. 318,300). The excess under the first represents for the most part the discount on the Loan raised in August, which amounted to Rx. 133,000. The excess Expenditure under the second arises in connection with the larger traffic already referred to. Of the Army Expenditure Rx. 263,500 is due to Exchange Compensation Allowances: there has also been expenditure in excess of the Budget Grants of Rx. 21,500 for certain special military and political operations, of Rx. 48,100 for special expenditure in connection with the Gilgit Agency, and Rx. 26,700 for special purchases of horses and mules: on the other hand, savings are anticipated from some of the Budget Grants.

We have saved Rx. 89,000 by short Expenditure upon Special Defences.

10. The items I have mentioned account for excess Imperial Expenditure in India of Rx. 540,300. The smaller differences result in a net saving of Rx. 26,600 and the real excess in the total figures, after allowing for Opium, is Rx. 513,700. So that we have saved more than enough, in minor differences over the rest of the account, to pay for the Exchange Compensation Allowances to non-military officers. These were not included in the Budget, but are estimated at Rx. 137,800 under the non-military heads.

* I neglect for present purposes the fact that about Rx. 30,000 of this is due to the operation in 1893-94 of the New Tariff Act.

11. The sterling expenditure account compared with Budget Estimate shews £104,100 excess payments under Interest; excess marine charges £27,300; short charges for special defence works £66,000, giving, with a few smaller differences, a net excess of £65,800.

	104,100
	27,300
	—66,000
Net	65,400

12. The exchange upon the expenditure was estimated, at 1s. 2½d., to cost Rx. 9,935,900; it is now estimated at Rx. 307,200 more.

13. Adding together these items, the deterioration which I have explained on the expenditure side amounts to the figure above stated, namely—

	Rx.
Imperial Expenditure in India	513,700
Sterling Expenditure	65,800
Exchange	307,200

TOTAL	886,700

and leaves the year's account in deficit by Rx. 1,792,800.

14. I ought to mention as a matter of some public interest in connexion with the estimates of 1893-94, that the Royal Commission on Opium is expected to cost in India about Rx. 20,000, and in England about £1,500; of these amounts, half will be charged to Indian Revenues. The smallness of the expenditure is for the most part due to the fact that the Commissioners (except the one who was placed on the Commission as an officer of the Government of India) neither required nor received any remuneration for their services, being determined that their laborious task should cost as little as possible to the people of India.

BUDGET ESTIMATES, 1894-95.

15. In explaining the Budget Estimates for 1894-95 I ask the Council first to go back to my statement that the Revenue in the Revised Estimates of 1893-94 falls short of the Budgetted Expenditure of that year by Rx. 1,276,200. Our revenue of the coming year is largely estimated upon the basis of the Revised Estimates of the current year, and I propose first to shew, as compared with those Revised Estimates, what additional Revenue under the same heads we may expect to come into our account during the year 1894-95.

16. First, under the principal Revenue heads, the Estimates of Land Revenue show an increase of Rx. 211,300 upon the high figures of 1893-94; and Salt will, we hope, recover from its backward position of the current year, and bring us in an addition of Rx. 283,000. Under both these heads in fact we have some reason to think that certain short collections of February and March, 1894 will come into the accounts of April or May, that is of 1894-95. On the other hand, we do not think it safe to take Opium at even the figure of 1893-94; our realisations are necessarily affected by the adverse exchange arising out of the low price of silver, and we estimate a falling-off of Rx. 300,800. The remaining principal heads show some increases and some decreases, but on the net account a decrease of Rx. 1,600, giving for this section of the accounts a net increase of Rx. 191,900. To this we have to add the estimated increase in Railways of Rx. 201,900 and in Irrigation of Rx. 144,200; but, on the other hand, we lose Rx. 160,400 under Mint Receipts (by reason of discontinuance of coinage). The net amount of all these is an increase of Rx. 377,600, which, by a number of minor differences under other heads, becomes Rx. 395,400. Of this total amount of increase of our revenues, Rx. 240,300 belongs to the Provincial account, and Rx. 155,100 to Imperial. In respect of Revenue, therefore, we expect on the Imperial account to be better off in the approaching year by only Rx. 155,100, as compared with the Revised Estimates of 1893-94; and the result therefore is that if we had on the time. This is, as has been often explained, the grant of surplus revenue to the construction of Protective Railways and Irrigation Works. Part of the original Rx. 1,500,000 is already pledged, that is, it is used to meet the loss to Government on its contracts in respect of the Bengal-Nagpur and Indian Midland Railways. That loss, in the coming year, is estimated at Rx. 368,800, and there is also an estimate of Rx. 10,000 for actual famine charges; so that of the whole grant only Rx. 1,121,200 is capable of being resumed, or rather withheld. We have deemed it expedient to allow Rx. 45,000 on account of certain Irrigation works, to remain charged against this head, but the remaining Rx. 1,075,200 will remain unspent in 1894-95. The principal Railway work which is being charged to this head at present is the East Coast Railway. And, as this work is classed also as a Productive work, a considerable grant has been given to it, under the head of Expenditure not charged against Revenue, so that this particular work will not very greatly suffer by the suspension of the grant. But this only means that the effect of the reduction is passed on to other Railway projects.

27. One other measure we have been obliged to take, namely, to call on Provincial Governments for contributions to our aid, in other words to force upon them severe economies, and appropriate the results to the benefit of our own account. The Government of India were most unwilling to have recourse to a measure which practically means the stoppage for the time of all administrative improvement, a measure which they feel must take all the heart out of Provincial Governments, by making them surrender all the fruits of careful administration, to fill the yawning gulf of our sterling payments. But as the Government of India said in addressing its demand to them, "the imperious necessity for imposing new taxation obliges the Government of India first to exhaust all available methods of increasing their resources; and this necessity is the only justification they can put forward for so soon making a practical revision of 'contracts' made only two years ago, and calling in balances which the Local Governments might legitimately claim as pledged to them for the purpose of administrative improvement."

28. The Government of India wish to acknowledge the readiness with which this demand has been met. The demand was issued on March 1st; it had been complied with by March 12th. Though not very large in amount, except in one case (that of Lower Burma), the demand comes so closely after the adjustment of assigned revenue to assigned expenditure, that it means in every case the adoption of active measures to restrict expenditure; and it must be remembered also that it comes after the Local Governments have already had, in the Exchange Compensation allowances, to meet new expenditure over and above their assignments.

29. The total amounts obtained from the Local Governments come to Rx. 405,000, their balances being, in nearly every case, reduced by the demand to the minimum prescribed by the Secretary of State.

30. By these three measures the deficit in our account is reduced by Rx. 2,621,200, namely:—

	Rx.
New Import Duties, net produce	1,140,000
Suspension of Famine Grant	1,076,200
Contributions from Local Governments	405,000
	2,621,200

from Rx. 2,923,100 to Rx. 301,900, at which figure it stands in the final statements.

31. I have already in my statement made in this place on March 10th given a full account of the reasons which have led to the Government accepting this deficit for the year 1894-95. I shall not weary the Council by a repetition of a subject then very elaborately discussed.

CLOSING OF THE MINTS.

32. The central fact of the Financial History of the year was the closing of the Mints on 26th June last. When the last Budget Estimates were presented to this Council, the Government of India were waiting for the Report of the Committee assembled under Lord Herschell's Presidency, to whom had been committed the examination of the Currency proposals of the Government of India. The Committee reported under date May 31st. Their recommendation was as follows :—

"It remains for us to state the conclusions at which we have arrived. While conscious of the gravity of the suggestion, we cannot, in view of the serious evils with which the Government of India may at any time be confronted if matters are left as they are, advise Your Lordship to overrule the proposals for the closing of the Mints and the adoption of a gold standard which that Government, with their responsibility and deep interest in the success of the measures suggested, have submitted to you.

But we consider that the following modifications of these proposals are advisable. The closing of the Mints against the free coinage of silver should be accompanied by an announcement that, though closed to the public, they will be used by Government for the coinage of rupees in exchange for gold at a ratio to be then fixed, say 1s. 4d. per rupee; and that at the Government treasuries gold will be received in satisfaction of public dues at the same ratio."

33. The Government of India having considered the Report, telegraphed to the Secretary of State on June 15th, proposing to take immediate action on this decision; the Secretary of State's consent was given on June 20th, and the necessary legislation was carried through on June 26th.

34. It was, of course, expected that the value of silver would be immediately affected by this change. It stood at about 38d. till June 25th, and then in four days it fell to 30½d. In July it recovered in the first week to 34d., but settled afterwards at about 32½d. In August and September it stood at about 34d. but it fell during October, and its price from then till the middle of January stood at about 32d. After this, a renewed fall set in, and in the first week of March the price was quoted at 27d.; at that price the metallic value of the rupee is about ten pence farthing.

35. Meantime, Silver legislation was taking place in the United States of America. Congress met on August 7th, and a Bill for the repeal of the silver purchase clause of the Law of 1890 was speedily introduced and was passed on August 28th by an unexpected majority. The Bill remained under discussion in the Senate from August 28th till October 30th, when it was passed after a strong opposition. It received the President's signature on November 1st. But it will be seen from my statement of the history of the price of silver that the legislation of the United States was practically a foregone conclusion. Its effect had been discounted, and the final passing of the law produced but little change in the price. The doubtful element in the case was the Indian legislation, and when that legislation became an accomplished fact, the price of silver immediately assumed a lower level.

36. During the months succeeding the closing of the Mints the price was favourably affected by a strong demand from India. The amounts imported into India during these months were Rx. 2,019,100, Rx. 781,400, Rx. 858,400, Rx. 1,127,400, Rx. 450,400, Rx. 926,600, Rx. 1,658,400, and in February Rx. 1,167,800. Total Rx. 8,989,500.

37. We have naturally been very much interested in the question what became in this country of these large imports of silver, but our enquiries have satisfied us that there has really been a very large demand for it for private use and possibly also for hoarding. The divorce between the value of coined and of uncoined silver brought about a state of things utterly unknown in Indian history—in the experience at least of any of the present generation—vis., that uncoined silver could be sold at a profit for considerably less than its weight in coined silver. Silver dealers rushed in to make a profit out of the inability of the ordinary Indian to understand that it was not necessarily a profitable transaction to buy a tola of rupee-silver for fifteen annas. The question was violently agitated of imposing a silver import duty, so as to prevent a demand for silver that threatened to annihilate, by its own force, that balance of trade which had hitherto required settlement by Council Bills. But it was recognized that this demand for silver would have to be exhausted before our new Currency policy could have a fair chance, and it was determined to leave it to the operation of natural causes. The announcement was made upon January 18th that no duty would be placed on imported silver in aid of the Currency policy.

38. A certain amount of this silver, but not, so far as we can find, a very large amount, passed into Native States for use in coinage. It was easy to foresee that, by the closing of our Mints, our rupees would be appreciated with reference to the silver coinage of Native States, especially if measures were not adopted in these States to restrict their coinage in a corresponding measure. We advised the various Durbars to watch the current rate of exchange between their rupees and the Government rupee, and most of them stopped coinage very shortly after we had done it. The Native States are not, however, so favourably situated as we are, with reference to the maintenance of an appreciated coinage; for their rupees can, in most cases, be manufactured without elaborate machinery, and so far as we know (though we have not yet full information on the point), the local systems of currency are in very few cases strictly limited, like our own, to coin issued by the State in which it is current. We are, however, continuing to watch the effect of our policy upon the coin of Native States, and to advise them, from time to time, as to the economic effect of measures taken by ourselves or intended by them.

39. This excessive import of silver was not the only obstacle which our Currency measures had to meet with. We had been obliged, for reasons for which we were not responsible, to initiate these measures at the most unfavourable time of the year, namely, the beginning of the slack season—that is, the season when our exports are smallest; and the refusal of the Secretary of State to issue his Bills under 15½d. brought other importers into competition besides the importers of silver, and the balance of trade on the whole actually turned against India for a time. I think it is now recognized that the policy of refusing to issue Bills was a mistaken policy, and that it would have been better to issue Bills moderately so as to meet the demands on the Home Treasury. But the circumstances we had created were altogether new, and both officials and merchants and bankers had all to learn, by actual experience, what new economic forces had been called into existence, and how they affected the question of the appreciation of the rupee. The Secretary of State announced, on January 20th, his abandonment of his attempt to maintain a forced value for his Bills, and since then the course of commerce has given us ground for expecting that we shall be able to maintain the rupee at a value considerably above its metallic value, though not as yet approaching the limit at which there is any chance of its functions as a Currency beginning to be replaced by gold.

40. The first considerable issue of Council Bills was on 31st January, when a rate of 14½d. was obtained. The rate fell, till on the 26th February it stood at 13½d., but it has since then recovered to about 14d.

41. The question of the future value of silver is so doubtful that I hesitate to express any opinion regarding it. We are told that it has now touched bottom, but we have been told that very often, in past times, and yet it has sunk lower. I do not agree with those who think that if we were to open our Mints, we would benefit by enhancing the value of silver. It should be remembered that we can enhance that value only by actually absorbing a considerable share of the world's produce of the metal. But the absorption and coinage of a large amount of silver is an effect that can only follow, and be concomitant with, a fall in the value of the rupee. It is, in fact, economically, the effort of the Currency of the country to adapt itself, by increase in volume, to its decrease in value. In other words, if the opening of our Mints is to enhance the value of silver, it can do so only by a process which involves the depreciation of the value of the rupee; and therefore, as it seems to me, no enhancement of the value of silver, brought about by our opening our Mints, can be of any advantage to us.

42. I think that even those who do not believe in the ultimate success of our currency legislation, must at all events admit that we have, by its means, escaped an immediate disaster; and those who believe that the only way of issue from the difficulty lies through bimetallism, will admit that they are several steps nearer its realization when the rest of the world has ceased to rely on India's consent to bear the main portion of the burden of silver-depreciation.

SECRETARY OF STATE'S OPERATIONS.

43. By the circumstances to which I have alluded, the sale of Council Bills was practically in suspense from July 1893 to January 1894, inclusive. The Secretary of State had estimated to raise £18,700,000 by Bills, of which £1,189,200 was the estimated amount of net payments to Railway Companies, the remainder representing the current requirements of the year. During the first three months of the year he issued Bills for £5,722,799, an unusually large amount, which raised his sterling balance on June 30th to £4,173,925; but from that date till the end of January the amounts received were, in each of the seven months, £51,750, £78,250, £6,672, £4,791, £609,544 (in November), £20,937, £90,658, giving a total of only £862,602.

44. During this period, therefore, the Secretary of State had to carry on his transactions by borrowing. The high balance of June 30th carried him over July and August, and besides this balance he had at that time over £400,000 in hand on account of a borrowing and repaying transaction provided for in the Budget Estimates. He had estimated to raise £1,300,000 of 3 per cent. stock to pay off Railway debentures, and though he raised most of this amount in July, the repayments were not complete till October. His cash balance, however, was very low in the end of August, namely, £460,903. In September

£25,000 of this came into October. he issued 3½ per cent. debentures for £1,385,000, and borrowed temporarily

£500,000; and the net temporary borrowings in subsequent months were—October £1,500,000, November £750,000, December £750,000, January £2,750,000, giving a total of £6,250,000.

45. The figures as made up on actual accounts till the end of January, and estimates received from the Secretary of State for the two last months give us—

	Till January : Accounts.	February and March Ac- counts and Estimates.	Total for year.
Funds raised by Permanent Debt	1,386,000	...	1,386,000
Council Bills	6,585,400	2,814,600	9,400,000
Temporary Borrowing (net)	6,250,000	—250,000	6,000,000
	<hr/> 14,221,400	<hr/> 2,564,600	<hr/> 16,786,000

It will be seen therefore that the Estimate of Council Bills now made falls short by £9,300,000 of the Estimate of last March, and that this amount has been made up by permanent debt £1,386,000, temporary debt £6,000,000, a reduction in the cash balance of £1,013,000: total £8,399,000; besides reductions in the payments to Railway Companies and on account of remittances.

46. We have per contra an enormous accumulation of silver in our Treasury Balances in this country. The £8,399,000 of debt incurred, and cash balance reduced, during the year are represented, at an exchange of 15*d.*, by Rx. 13,438,400 in this country, and our cash balances in India being practically increased by this amount, stand at the close of January, February, and March at the unprecedented figures of Rx. 23,802,200, Rx. 25,016,500 and Rx. 26,251,800 (estimated).

47. Next year, it will be seen that it is not the present intention of the Secretary of State to draw Bills on our accumulations of silver in order to pay off his temporary debt. He proposes to borrow £8,300,000, of which £6,000,000 will be used to discharge the temporary obligations outstanding at the end of the current year; and the rest is required for his ordinary transactions. The amount for which he proposes to draw, £17,000,000, is only the expenditure of the year, with the addition of the Capital outlay on account of State Railways, and a portion of his remittance payments. It must, as usual, be understood that these figures are given with reservation of entire liberty to the Secretary of State to vary his borrowings and his drawings as he may find occasion.

LOANS IN INDIA.

48. In the Budget Estimates of 1893-94 we proposed to raise a loan of Rx. 3,000,000. On July 14th, while we were still in ignorance of the approaching failure of Council Bills, a notification was issued calling for tenders for Rx. 3,500,000 at 3½ per cent., and at the same time notice was issued for the discharge of such part of the 4½ per cent. loans of 1878 and 1879 (excluding the 7 shillings per cent. portion) as still remained unconverted, under previous notifications, into four per cents. The loan was raised at an average of Rs. 96-3-2½ per cent., producing Rx. 3,366,130, against a nominal value of Rx. 3,499,100 (as Rx. 900 remained unissued). Of the 4½ per cent loan we estimate to have paid off Rx. 1,100,000 during the current year, leaving Rx. 241,447 undischarged. The three-and-a-half per cents. are now above par.

49. It is hardly necessary to say that with our huge silver balances, we have no intention of raising a loan in India during the year for which estimates are now being presented.

CONCLUSION.

50. Such then is our programme for the approaching year,—a programme of retrenchment and of vigilance, intended to tide us over what I have called a transition period. The means which we have adopted in our Budget Estimates of nearly balancing our Revenue and Expenditure, are means which will hardly be available a second time. It is at some risk that we suspend even for one year the provision of a crore or a crore and a half which we shall certainly require if a famine season comes upon us: we cannot call our financial position safe till we find ourselves again with that crore to the good. The forty lakhs also which we obtain from the Provincial Governments exhausts for the time that source of relief from temporary difficulties. A year hence, as I said a fortnight ago, we shall certainly have to reconsider our position, and we hope by that time to have a much more definite knowledge of the conditions upon which our future financial position rests.

PART II.

DETAILS OF ACCOUNTS AND ESTIMATES.

Section I.—Accounts of 1892-93.

51. The Revised Estimates for the year 1892-93 showed a deficit of Rx. 1,081,900. As anticipated by Sir D. Barbour in paragraph 18 of the Financial Statement of March last, I am now able to state that the actual deficit is somewhat less. The final Accounts have been closed with a deficit of Rx. 833,412.

52. Explanations of the variations under the several heads of the Account figures from those of the Budget and Revised Estimates will be found in the Appropriation Report published in the Gazette of India of the 17th Instant. The following statement contains a general comparison of the Revised Estimates with the Accounts of the year:—

1892-93. General
Results.

53. The total Revenue and total Expenditure in India were higher than taken in the Revised Estimate by Rx. 136,707 and Rx. 56,294, respectively, giving a net improvement of Rx. 80,413. The distribution of these variations between Provincial and Imperial was as follows:—The Imperial Revenue fell short of the Revised Estimate by Rx. 19,678, and the Imperial Expenditure exceeded the Revised Estimate by Rx. 86,350, while the Provincial and Local Revenue exceeded the Revised Estimate by Rx. 156,385, and the Provincial and Local Expenditure fell short of the Revised Estimate by Rx. 30,056. Consequently there was an improvement in the Provincial and Local Section of the Accounts of Rx. 186,441, and a deterioration in the Imperial Section of Rx. 106,028.

In England there was a reduction in Expenditure, including Exchange, of Rx. 339,985, and an increase of Revenue of Rx. 14,531; these together yield an improvement in England of Rx. 354,516. Deducting from the last figure Rx. 106,028, the amount of the deterioration in the Imperial Section of the Accounts in India, we arrive at the net amount of Rx. 248,488, by which the deficit of the Accounts fell short of that estimated in March last.

54. The larger part of the increase in Revenue in India occurred under the Principal Heads of Revenue, Rx. 130,375. The Army Receipts were also under-estimated by Rx. 57,243. 1892-93. Revenue in India.

55. The Army Expenditure in India was under-estimated in the Revised Estimates by Rx. 66,891. Under other heads the Expenditure on the whole was slightly less than the Revised Estimate. 1892-93. Expenditure in India.

56. The Army Expenditure in England fell short of the Revised Estimate by £133,504 and the Special Defence Expenditure by £48,668, owing in both cases chiefly to the progress in the supply of stores being smaller than was anticipated. 1892-93. Expenditure in England.

57. The Expenditure not charged to Revenue amounted to Rx. 3,986,290, being very slightly less than the amount taken in the Revised Estimate. 1892-93.

Section II.—Revised Estimate of 1893-94.

58. The following statement contains a general comparison of the figures of the Budget and Revised Estimates of 1893-94 :—

DEFICIT			Rx.	1,595,100	1,792,800	...	197,700

59. There has been a moderate increase in the Revenue; and the total Expenditure in India has been restricted to a sum slightly less than the Estimate of March last; but the Imperial Expenditure in India and the Expenditure in England have exceeded the Budget Estimate, and the slight fall in the rate of exchange from 1s. 2'75d. to 1s. 2'6d. has caused an increase in the direct charge for exchange of Rx. 265,900. The net result is that it is now anticipated that the deficit of the year will exceed that entered in the Budget Estimate by Rx. 197,700, and will amount to the very considerable sum of Rx. 1,792,800. Probably the deficit will be somewhat reduced when the accounts of the year are made up. 1893-94. General Results.

1893-94. Revenue
in India.

60. The increase in the Revenue in India above the Budget Estimate amounts on the whole only to Rx. 430,100. But the Revenues generally have increased in a very satisfactory manner, and it is the heavy falling off in the receipts from Opium and Salt that has reduced the net increase to the amount named. Of the improvement of Rx. 430,100, the sum of Rx. 325,200 is Imperial and Rx. 104,900 Provincial and Local.

1893-94. Decreases
of Revenue in
India.

61. The only heads under which the Revenue will fall short of the Budget Estimates by any considerable amount are :—

	Rx.
Opium	621,800
Salt	241,600
Provincial Rates	220,800
Marine	54,700
Gain by Exchange	78,000

62. The decrease under Opium is in the receipts from the sale of Bengal Opium, and is due partly to the small crop having necessitated a reduction of 351 chests in the quantity sold, but mainly to the average price realised being only Rs. 1,109 a chest as compared with Rs. 1,250 taken in the Budget Estimate.

63. The decrease under Salt is largest in Madras, amounting to Rx. 140,200 ; there it is due, not to any reduction in the quantity of salt issued, but to the fact that purchasers have again begun, probably in consequence of the fall in the price of Government securities, to avail themselves of the option of deferring payment of duty for six months on lodging security. In Northern India the falling off is considerable, amounting to Rx. 120,000, and represents an actual reduction in the quantity of salt issued. Owing to a failure of manufacture at the Sambhar Lake, the price of that salt had to be raised, and this necessarily had the result of reducing the sales of it. This ought not, however, to have caused a reduction of Salt Revenue in the whole of India, as Salt from other sources should in ordinary course have taken the place of the Sambhar Salt ; but this has not occurred to nearly the full extent of the reduction in Northern India.

64. The decrease in Provincial Rates occurs in Madras. Part of it is nominal, being caused by a change in classification which transfers certain quit-rents, amounting to Rx. 141,100, from this head to Land Revenue. The remainder is due to the suspension of the Village Cess in Madras for one year (1st July 1893 to 30th June 1894), the accumulated balance of the local fund to which the receipts from the cess appertain being sufficient to meet a year's expenditure.

65. The decrease under Marine occurs in the Imperial Marine Department and is nominal, being counterbalanced by a reduction in Expenditure ; recoveries on account of ships or launches built or other work done at the Government Dockyards for Local Governments being now taken on the Dockyard Accounts as deductions from Expenditure instead of as Revenue. The decrease would have been larger had it not been for large receipts, amounting to Rx. 19,300, not anticipated in the Budget Estimate, from the hire of vessels of the Indian Marine.

66. The uncertainty in estimating the transactions which pass under the head of Gain by Exchange was explained in paragraph 48 of the Financial Statement of last March.

1893-94. Increases
of Revenue in
India.

67. The following are the more important increases of Revenue in India :—

	Rx.
Land Revenue, including that due to Irrigation	311,500
Stamps	116,900
Excise	212,000
Forest	88,300
State and Guaranteed Railways	646,300

68. Part, Rx. 141,100, of the increase under Land Revenue is nominal, as explained in paragraph 64 above. A considerable part, Rx. 66,100, of the increase in Bombay is also nominal, as it occurs in the adjustment of alienated Land Revenue, and is counterbalanced by an increase in Expenditure. See paragraph 77 below. The remainder, Rx. 104,300, represents the real increase and is contributed to by all Provinces, except the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Burma and the Central Provinces.

69. The increase under Stamps occurs in all Provinces except Burma. The increase under Excise is also general, the largest increases being in Bengal, Rx. 60,000; Madras, Rx. 50,000; Bombay, Rx. 46,000; and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Rx. 30,000.

70. The largest part of the increase under Forest occurs in Burma, where, owing to a favourable season and the development of forest operations, it is anticipated that the receipts will exceed the Budget Estimate by Rx. 85,000.

71. The Railway Revenue has developed in a most satisfactory manner. The Budget Estimate took credit for a considerable increase in the receipts above those of 1892-93; but the returns up to date justify the anticipation that the Estimate will be exceeded by nearly two-thirds of a crore of rupees. Almost every Railway has shared in the general prosperity, the only exception of note being the Burma Railway, on which the development of traffic has experienced a check for reasons believed to be of a temporary nature: the prices of paddy have been low, and the cultivating classes in Burma have consequently been less well off than usual.

72. The decrease in the sterling Revenue is accounted for by the fact that the Secretary of State, owing to the failure for a time to sell Council Bills, had ^{1893-94. Revenue in England.} for a great part of the year no balance available, as usual, for temporary investment. The receipts under Interest are therefore expected to fall short of the Budget Estimate by £10,400. The receipts under most other heads will also be less than the estimates by small amounts; but the aggregate of these decreases is more than counterbalanced by an increase of £13,700 under Army Receipts in England.

73. The Imperial Expenditure in India is expected to exceed the Budget ^{1893-94. Expenditure in India.} Estimate by Rx. 143,600, while the Provincial and Local Expenditure will be less than the Estimate by Rx. 167,500. The difference between these two is the Rx. 23,500 shown in paragraph 58 as the reduction of the Expenditure in India below the Budget Estimate. This figure is the net result of a number of increases and decreases.

74. Before referring to the several increases and decreases, one cause of ^{Exchange Compensation Allowances.} increased expenditure under most heads may be mentioned. In August last the Government of India decided to give to European and Eurasian officers not domiciled in India some compensation for the losses being suffered by them in consequence of the great and continued fall in the rate of exchange. The form which the portion of this compensation that affects Expenditure in India took was the grant to such officers of an allowance, payable monthly with salary, and designated Exchange Compensation Allowance, sufficient to enable each officer to remit to Europe one-half his salary, subject to a maximum limit of £1,000 a year, at a privileged rate of exchange, which was fixed till further orders at 1s. 6d. the rupee. The allowance is payable as a percentage on salary, varying with the rate of exchange assumed as the market rate for the quarter, and calculated to yield an amount equal to the difference between one-half salary converted at 1s. 6d. and one-half salary converted at the average market rate. The average market rate adopted for the payments of Exchange Compensation Allowance in each quarter is the average Calcutta demand rate for the three months ending on the 15th of the month preceding the quarter. The allowances were granted with effect from the 1st April 1893. The rates taken as the average market rates for calculating the payments in each quarter have been—

* This is the net amount paid, after making from the amounts due the prescribed deductions on account of family remittances at the favourable rate of 1s. 4½d. which were made between April and August before the orders granting the Exchange Compensation Allowances issued. Those orders withdrew the privilege of making family remittances through the Government Account.

The distribution of the Provincial total of Rx. 232,100 among the several Provinces is as follows:—

	Rx.
Central Provinces	13,800
Burma (Lower)	19,700
Assam	7,800
Bengal	45,000
North-West Provinces and Oudh	42,700
Punjab	30,100
Madras	38,400
Bombay	34,600
TOTAL	232,100

76. The more important increases of Expenditure in India in 1893-94 as compared with the Budget Estimates are—

	Rx.
Assignments and Compensations	81,400
Interest	157,000
Law and Justice—Courts of Law	89,600
Political	97,500
Stationery and Printing	38,600
State Railways—Working Expenses	171,600
Army	318,300

*1893-94. Increases

77. The increase under Assignments and Compensations occurs almost entirely in Bombay: the debit and credit adjustments of alienated Land Revenue—adjustments peculiar to that Province—have been increased in consequence of the actual area of certain alienated lands in Sind having been found to be larger than the area previously recorded: there is a similar increase on the Revenue side under Land Revenue. See paragraph 68 above.

78. The increase under Interest represents the discount on the $3\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. loan for Rx. 3,500,000 raised in August last, and the portion of the interest on that loan payable in the year 1893-94, diminished by the saving in the interest on the $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. paper which was notified for discharge in October. When the Budget Estimate was framed last March, no provision was made for the interest on the new loan, as it was then assumed that it would be issued at 4 per cent., and that the interest payable during the year would be covered by the premium on the loan.

79. The grant of Exchange Compensation Allowances accounts for the larger part of the increase under Law and Justice. But in some Provinces also temporary appointments of Judges not provided for in the estimate have had to be sanctioned or continued.

80. The increase under Political is due chiefly to the enhancement by Rx. 60,000 a year of the subsidy paid to the Amir of Afghanistan, which was agreed to in the negotiations of Sir Mortimer Durand, and to the cost of Sir Mortimer Durand's Mission to Cabul. The Herat Mission, the visit to Mekran of the Agent to the Governor General in Baluchistan, the exploration of the Borkhampti Country, the Kinchaing Mission, and the Anglo-Siamese Boundary Commission have also added to the expenditure under this head.

81. Most of the Provinces show an increase of Expenditure on Stationery and Printing: and the demands on the Calcutta Stationery Office have necessitated considerably larger purchases in this country than were anticipated.

82. The increase of Expenditure on State Railways was caused by the larger traffic and was necessary to earn the larger receipts.

83. The larger part of the increase under Army is due to the grant of Exchange Compensation Allowance, the charge to this head being Rx. 263,500 as given in the table in paragraph 75. The following supplementary grants were also sanctioned during the year, namely—

	Rx.
For the Kachin, South Lushai and Kelat operations	21,500
For the Gilgit Agency	48,150
For the purchase of additional horses to replace those taken to Egypt by the 7th Dragoon Guards	16,900
For rations on the field service scale in the Chin country	16,200
Other smaller grants	14,550
TOTAL	117,300

1893-94. Decrease of Expenditure in
India

On the other hand it is anticipated that the Budget Grants for the year will in some cases prove to have been higher than necessary.

84. The more important decreases of Expenditure in India as compared with the Budget Estimates are—

	Rx.
Land Revenue	57,700
Opium	370,800
Forest	69,700
Police	84,000
Marine	115,000
Civil Works	145,400
Special Defences	89,000

85. The decrease under Land Revenue occurs chiefly in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Rx. 23,700, Bombay, Rx. 18,400, and Assam, Rx. 12,200. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the Expenditure on Survey and Settlement has been restricted below the Estimate: in Bombay the payments to Village officers have been less than the Estimate, and some new establishments for which provision was made have not yet been entertained: in Assam the direct payments for the collection of Land Revenue are declining with the substitution of Tahsils for collection through Mauzadars, and in that Province also some new establishments provided for have not yet been entertained.

86. The reduction in Opium Expenditure is caused by the failure of the crop: the Estimate provided for the payments for an average crop.

87. The Budget grants under Forest have proved to be higher than necessary in all Provinces, the saving being largest in Madras and Bombay.

88. The decrease under Police is distributed over all the Provinces: the amounts entered in the Budget Estimates were generally too liberal, provision being made for schemes of re-organisation and improvement not fully ready to be brought into operation, as well as for the full existing scale of expenditure.

89. Most of the saving under Marine occurs in the Imperial Marine Department and is nominal, being counterbalanced by the reduction in Revenue, as explained in paragraph 65 above. There is also a reduction of Rx. 30,100 in Bengal and Burma, due to the progress in the construction of certain new vessels having been slower than was anticipated.

90. The decrease under Civil Works occurs in the Provincial and Local Expenditure of most of the Provinces, the largest reductions being in Madras and Lower Burma. The progress in some works for which provision was made in the Budget Estimate has not been so great as anticipated.

91. The execution of some works for which provision was made in the Estimate for Special Defences has been postponed: hence the saving under that head.

92. The main cause of the excess of £65,800 in the Expenditure in England was the failure to sell Council Bills for a time, which necessitated borrowing and increased the Interest charges. The increase due to this cause amounts to £84,600. Discount on the Loan of £1,300,000 and on India Debentures, for which no provision was made in the Budget Estimate, amounted to £19,500, and raised the total excess under Interest to £104,100. The Expenditure in England on Special Defence Works will be less than the Estimate by £66,000, the indents for stores sent from India having been reduced in consequence of the postponement of works mentioned in the preceding paragraph. The variations in other heads are smaller, and result in a slight excess over the Budget Estimate.

93. The increase in the Sterling payments accounts for Rx. 41,300 of the increase in the charge under Exchange. The remaining Rx. 265,900 is due to the fall in the rate of exchange from 1s. 2.75d. as estimated in March 1893 to 1s. 2.6d. realised upon the remittances of the year.

Section III.—Budget Estimate of 1894-95.

94. The following Statement compares the Revenue and Expenditure in India and in England in the Budget Estimates of 1894-95 with that in those of 1893-94:—

DEFICIT	Rx.	1,595,100	301,900	1,293,200	...

95. The general features of the year 1894-95, as compared with the Budget Estimates of 1893-94, may be enumerated as follows: A substantial increase of Revenue, amounting to Rx. 837,100; an increase of Revenue net (after deducting the increased cost of establishment) of Rx. 1,140,000 by the imposition of new taxation; a large increase of Expenditure in India by the grant of Exchange Compensation Allowances to the services; a large reduction of Expenditure in India secured by the stoppage of all optional Expenditure chargeable to the Famine Grant and by stringent measures of economy under other heads; an increase in the Interest charges in England with reduction of other sterling Expenditure; and a large increase under Exchange caused by the fall in the value of the rupee from 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 2d.

The net result is a considerable improvement: the deficit will be Rx. 301,900 as compared with Rx. 1,595,100 in the Estimates of 1893-94. The reasons why it has been decided by the Government of India to accept a deficit in the Estimates were fully explained to the Council* on March 10th.

1894-95. Revenue in India. 96. The Revenue in India in 1894-95 is expected to exceed that taken in the Budget Estimates of 1893-94 by Rx. 2,037,100. Of this, the sum of Rx. 1,200,000 is secured by the imposition of new taxes.

The increase in Imperial Revenue is Rx. 2,096,900, while there is a decrease of Rx. 59,800 in Provincial and Local Revenue. The distribution between Imperial and Provincial would have been different but for the contributions which the Provincial Governments have been called on to pay in consideration of the severe financial straits of the Imperial Government.

The amounts paid by the several Provinces are:—

	Rx.
Central Provinces	43,000
Lower Burma	180,000
Assam	16,000
Bengal	30,000
North-Western Provinces and Oudh	50,000
Madras	30,000
Bombay	56,000
	<hr/> 405,000 <hr/>

The contributions are brought upon the Estimates and Accounts by transferring the amount from the Provincial to the Imperial share of the receipts under Land Revenue: the Provincial Revenues being thereby diminished and the Imperial Revenues increased. The amount of the contributions levied being Rx. 405,000, the distribution of the increase of Revenue of Rx. 2,037,100, in ordinary course and apart from the special and extraordinary measure resorted to help towards securing equilibrium in the Imperial Budget Estimate, would have been Imperial Rx. 1,691,900 (or if we exclude the new Customs Revenue, Rx. 491,900) and Provincial and Local Rx. 345,200.

1894-95. Decreases of Revenue in India. 97. The only decreases of Revenue of importance are—

	Rx.
Opium	922,600
Provincial Rates	181,800
Mint	162,800
Marine	74,400

98. The loss under Opium occurs in the receipts from the sale of Bengal Opium, and is caused chiefly by the difference in the market price. Last March the current prices justified the assumption of an average price of Rs. 1,250 a chest: now it is not safe to assume a higher price than Rs. 1,070 a chest. The difference of Rs. 180 a chest means a loss of Rx. 761,400. The

* Extract from the Hon'ble Mr. Westland's speech in the Legislative Council on 10th March 1894:—

"The view which Your Excellency's Government has taken is, that we are at present in a transition period and that whatever measures we take, whether they are sufficient or insufficient to fill up the deficit in the accounts of the year 1894-95, they must be looked upon as only provisional and temporary. We are still passing through—it may be said we have only just entered upon—that currency crisis upon the settlement of which depends our future finance. Whether we shall be able to establish our rupee at what we may call a favourable figure, is a question the solution of which must practically be left to experiment. Until two months ago circumstances were against us, and the experiment was practically in suspense. The period during which we have been able to watch the effect of commercial operations upon our currency is not yet more than a few weeks old—far too short a time to enable us to judge whether the falling rupee is to carry us into perpetually increasing difficulties, or whether a recovery from its present low figure is to give us some respite from our financial troubles and anxieties. Even since my statement was laid before the Council, there has been a change; whether it is a merely temporary one or not, it is nevertheless an important change—in the aspect of the matter. Time has not yet declared on the one side or on the other, and it is impossible for any one as yet to pronounce whether our financial position is going to improve or going to deteriorate. It is a serious confession to make, but it is nevertheless true, that our financial position in the immediate future depends upon circumstances absolutely outside our control, and that we can do little more than watch in what direction the forces are working which will in the end either bring us security from these perpetual variations or still more serious troubles than any we have yet had to provide against."

"This then is the position we had to meet. Do what we will, the year 1894-95 must be a transition period—a period at the end of which, we have every reason to hope, we shall be far better able than we now are, to judge in what direction our finance is progressing."

"Under these circumstances, the question that presented itself to us was whether we were to assume that all hope of the recovery of the rupee, within some measurable distance of time, was lost, and to adopt heroic measures which would place ourselves at once in a position to meet our current rate of expenditure, even with the rupee at fourteen pence; or whether we should for the present adopt a policy of waiting for further developments, making all the temporary arrangements we could for tiding over a year of extreme difficulty, and meantime merely lay the foundation of the fiscal measures to which, in the event of our ultimately having to fill the whole estimated deficit of 3½ crores, we would be obliged to have recourse."

rest of the decrease is in consequence of the reduction in the probable quantity to be sold necessitated by the poor crops of last and previous years.

99. The decrease in Provincial Rates is the result of a decrease in Madras of Rx. 251,100 and an increase in other Provinces of Rx. 69,300. The improvement in the other Provinces is the normal increase in the rates, which increase with the Land Revenue. Of the decrease in Madras, Rx. 151,500 is nominal, being the amount transferred to Land Revenue in consequence of the change of classification described in paragraph 64 above: the remainder is caused by the suspension of the collection of the cess mentioned in the same paragraph during the first three months of the year, and by the rate at which the cess will be levied from 1st July next being lower than in the past.

100. The closing of the Mints to the free coinage of silver accounts for the loss of Revenue under Mint: as no silver will be tendered for coinage, there will be no seignorage receipts.

101. The decrease under Marine is nominal, as explained in paragraph 65 above.

102. The following are the more important increases of Revenue in India anticipated in 1894-95:—

	Rx.
Land Revenue, including that due to Irrigation	599,300
Stamps	127,700
Excise	171,700
Customs	1,207,700
Assessed Taxes	53,700
Forest	57,200
Post Office	56,200
State and Guaranteed Railways	858,900
Irrigation—Major Works	67,900

1894-95. Increase of Revenue in
India.

103. Of the increase under Land Revenue, a portion, Rx. 151,500, in Madras, and Rx. 69,800 in Bombay, is nominal, for reasons explained in paragraphs 99 and 68 above. Bengal being permanently settled, shows a slight increase only, and the small Provinces under the direct administration of the Government of India show hardly any improvement on the whole. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh there is a substantial falling off; but that is merely the result of a correction of an error in estimating. The Estimates of the last few years in that Province have not been realised; and it has been ascertained that sufficient allowance was not made in them for the normal arrears of revenue left uncollected at the end of the financial year: a larger allowance for arrears is made in the Estimate for 1894-95.

Excluding the North-Western Provinces, Bengal and India—General, all the other Provinces show substantial increases in the amount of Land Revenue, these being the result of Survey and Settlement operations in temporarily settled districts, and of the expansion of cultivation in provinces where the amount of the Revenue depends on the extent of cultivation.

104. The improvement in the Stamp Revenue, though unequally distributed over the Provinces, is general throughout India with the exception of Burma, where there has been a check to the development of this branch of income.

105. The increase in the Excise Revenue is also general, Burma being the only exception: the decrease in Burma is due to the adoption of the policy in regard to opium which was described in paragraph 71 of last year's Financial Statement.

106. The increase under Customs is due to the new duties imposed by Act VIII of 1894. The Customs Revenue has not done well in 1893-94, and had there been no change in the duties, it would not have been possible to anticipate any appreciable increase in this head of Revenue.

107. The increase under Assessed Taxes represents the normal development of this branch of Revenue, the amount of increase being somewhat greater than usual; with the exception of Bengal and Bombay, all provinces share in this increase, Madras being the largest contributor.

108. Most Provinces contribute to the increase under Forest, which is of rather more than the normal annual growth of this head of Revenue, the specially large increase being in Burma.

109. The increase under Post Office represents the normal annual progress of the Department, the amount being somewhat higher than usual, as the Revenue increased at more than the average rate in 1893-94.

110. The Railway Revenue is taken at an amount somewhat higher than that which will be realised in 1893-94. The increase is justified either by additional mileage recently opened or to be opened next year, or in the case of lines under development, by the steady growth of traffic.

111. The increase under Irrigation occurs mainly in the Punjab, an extension of irrigation from the Western Jumna, the Bari Doab, and the Chenab Canals being expected. The revenue from the Sirhind Canal was low in 1893-94, owing principally to the closure of the canal for silt clearance for three months: the normal revenue is expected in 1894-95.

1894-95, Expenditure in India.

112. The Expenditure in India in 1894-95 on the whole will be of about the same amount as in the Budget Estimate of 1893-94. Imperial Expenditure will be less by Rx. 572,200, while Provincial and Local Expenditure will be more by Rx. 373,400, the net result being the small excess of Rx. 198,800 shown in the table in paragraph 94. This approximate equality is the final result of many large variations in both directions.

1894-95, Exchange Compensation Allowances.

113. The following table gives the same information for 1894-95 in regard to the Exchange Compensation Allowances as is given above for 1893-94 in the table in paragraph 75. In estimating the amounts for 1894-95, 1s. 2d. the rupee has been assumed as the average market rate of the year:—

	Imperial.	Provincial.	TOTAL.

TOTAL	712,900	400,400	1,113,300

The distribution of the Provincial total of Rx. 400,400 among the several Provinces is as follows :—

	Rx.
Central Provinces	22,600
Burma (Lower)	33,100
Assam	13,900
Bengal	72,700
North-West Provinces and Oudh	73,900
Punjab	51,100
Madras	69,300
Bombay	63,800
TOTAL	400,400

114. The more important increases of Expenditure in India are—

	Rx.
Assignments and Compensations	98,700
Land Revenue	74,500
Customs	64,700
General Administration	67,400
Law and Justice—Courts of Law	141,500
Police	82,600
Medical	56,100

*1894-95. Increases
India.*

115. Of the increase under Assignments and Compensations the larger part, Rx. 72,200, occurs in Bombay and is nearly counterbalanced by an increase of the receipts under Land Revenue, see paragraph 103 above. Most of the balance occurs in the Central Provinces, where payments are to be made to certain zemindars as compensation for the resumption of their Abkâri rights by the Government—a step considered expedient in the interests of efficient Excise administration.

116. The increase under Customs is for the establishment required to collect the new Import duties.

117. From the table in paragraph 113 above it will be seen that the Exchange Compensation Allowances account for the greater portions of the increases under Land Revenue, General Administration, Law and Justice—Courts of Law, Police and Medical. The remainder of the increases under these heads represents the ordinary growth of expenditure required to meet the wants of the country under the services mentioned.

118. The Exchange Compensation Allowances account for Rx. 27,500 of the increase under Political. There is also an increase of Rx. 60,000 in the subsidy of the Amir of Afghanistan; and a provision of Rx. 50,000 has been made for the expenditure which will be incurred in connection with the Afghan border demarcation.

119. The increase under Stationery and Printing is explained in paragraphs 81 and 157: no appreciable reduction of the charges under this head below those of 1893-94 can be hoped for.

120. The increase in the Working Expenses of State Railways is an accompaniment of the increased revenue, and that in the Interest Charges is a transfer from Ordinary Debt following the yearly addition to the Capital Expenditure.

121. The more important increases in the Estimate of Army Expenditure for 1894-95 as compared with the estimate for 1893-94 are as follow :—

	Rx.
Exchange Compensation Allowances and alteration in the pay of British soldiers due to different value of the rupee—net	390,100
Smaller allowance for short strength of troops, based on recent actuals (Rx. 63,100 were deducted in 1893-94 and only Rx. 46,100 in the estimate for 1894-95)	17,000
Amount deducted from the Budget Estimate , 1893-94, for probable savings owing to the absence in Egypt of the 7th Dragoon Guards for a part of the year. Full provision is necessary in 1894-95	31,000
Pay of officers on the Unattached List of the British Army who are candidates for the Indian Staff Corps under clause 25, I. A. C., 1892	12,600
Increase in cost of food for men and animals	49,000
Increased provision for malt liquor	35,900
Increased provision for the Kashmir and Gilgit transport arrangements	40,000
Increased provision for railway charges for the conveyance of troops and stores	27,400
Provision for the additional staff, etc., required for part of the year under the new organisation on the abolition of the Presidency Army system	10,000
Replacement of the mobilisation equipments, stores, etc., destroyed by fire at Peshawar	38,200
Increased purchases of transport animals to complete establishment, due to casualties and castings	23,700
Larger provision for volunteer corps with reference to authorised establishments, and an increase in the number of efficient	11,300

The more important decreases are as follow :—

	Rx.
Withdrawal of a battalion of British infantry from the Indian establishment, 20 privates being added to each of the remaining battalions	15,700
Fewer local supplies required for ordnance factories, partly counterbalanced by larger provision for camp equipage	16,700
Reduced provision for capitalised pensions and for pensions of officers drawing their pensions in India	11,700
Smaller provision for charges for special expeditions	132,000
The omission of the following special grants made in 1893-94, namely :—
Reconstitution of Hindustani regiments	12,500
Cutting charges of the Native Army beyond those allowed by regulation	25,900
Purchase of land	10,100
Establishment of new cantonment general hospitals at certain stations in Bengal	10,000

1894-95. Decreases
of Expenditure in
India.

122. The important decreases of expenditure in India are—

	Rx.
Interest	113,200
Marine	105,500
Construction of Protective Railways	1,054,300
Construction of Railways	50,700
Military Works	194,200
Civil Works	408,600
Special Defence Works	138,800

123. The saving under Interest is the result of the annual transfer from Ordinary Debt to Debt on account of the Capital Outlay on Railways and Irrigation Works. That transfer is partly counterbalanced this year by the addition to the Public Debt of Rx. 3,500,000 borrowed at $3\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. interest in August to October 1893, less the diminution of the debt by the notification for discharge of the balance, Rx. 1,341,400, of the $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loans.

124. Of the decrease under Marine, the portion, Rx. 65,200, which occurs in the Imperial Marine Department is nominal, as explained in paragraph 65 above. The remainder occurs chiefly in Burma and Bengal: so many new vessels and launches will not be constructed for the Local Governments next year as in 1893-94.

125. The decrease under Construction of Railways is due to the approaching completion of the Mayavaram-Mutupet Provincial Railway in Madras, the provision for expenditure on that Railway being only Rx. 17,500 as compared with Rx. 67,500 in the Budget Estimate of 1893-94.

126. The decrease under Special Defence Works is secured by the practical completion of the expenditure on those works: in view of the financial position, and for other reasons, several of the not very large number of sanctioned works, which remain to be carried out, have been either postponed or abandoned.

127. The reduction under Construction of Protective Railways and that under Military Works, amounting together to Rx. 1,248,500, have been made expressly as measures of economy to help the Government towards securing equilibrium between Revenue and Expenditure.

128. Of the reduction under Civil Works, the sum of Rx. 176,500 was made from Imperial Expenditure directly with the object described in the preceding paragraph. And of the remainder the larger part is made in Provincial Expenditure indirectly with the same object, the reductions being made to enable the Provincial Governments to pay to the Imperial Government the contributions which they were called on to pay in order to reduce the deficit in the Estimates of 1894-95. Some of the Local Governments have however made the required reductions under other heads of expenditure.

129. It may be mentioned that very strict economy has been insisted on in other Expenditure also, and that the grants under many other heads than those mentioned in the two preceding paragraphs would have been larger had it not been for the efforts made to reduce the deficit in the Estimates. In fact the difficulties of the position have for the last year or two obliged the Government to take every feasible measure to reduce or restrict its current expenditure.

130. The Expenditure in England in 1894-95 will be on the whole less by 1894-95, Expenditure in England. £13,500 than that entered in the Budget Estimate of 1893-94.

131. The only head under which an increase of importance in the expenditure in England is anticipated is Interest, which shows an excess over the Budget Estimate of 1893-94 of £288,500. This is due to the sterling borrowing necessitated by the failure to sell Council Bills during a great part of 1893-94.

132. There are reductions of £33,300 under Marine, as the Warren Hastings, for the construction of which a large provision was made in 1893-94, has been completed, of £152,100 under Special Defence Works, the reason being the same as explained in paragraph 126 above in regard to the expenditure in India under the head, and, of £166,800 under Army Effective Charges, the amount of Clothing and Ordnance Stores, and the payments to the War Office being less than in 1893-94. The Non-Effective Army Charges are, on the other hand, increased by £97,100: it is feared that the maximum of the Non-Effective sterling Army Charges has not yet been reached.

133. The increase of Rx. 1,371,500 in the Exchange on Expenditure in 1894-95, Exchange. England is due to the fall in the rate from 1s. $2\frac{1}{4}d.$ to 1s. $2d.$ the rupee.

134. The figures in the above table show the distribution of the Land Revenue among the several Provinces. The feature which has distinguished this head of Revenue for many years appears again in the Estimates for 1894-95, namely, a progressive increase in consequence of increase of assessment on re-settlement and of extensions of cultivation in the Provinces where the revenue depends on the amount of land under cultivation. Setting aside the small Provinces classed under "India—General," and the permanently-settled Province of Bengal, the only Province which does not show an increase is the North-Western Provinces and Oudh: as explained in paragraph 103, this is due to more careful estimating and not to any actual falling off or to any change of policy in that Province. The Explanations in paragraphs 68 and 99 may also be referred to.

135. The Budget Estimate of receipts in 1893-94 from Bengal Opium was based on the assumption that 43,704 chests would be sold at an average price of R1,250 a chest. The yield of the crop being small, and the reserve having been exhausted, it became necessary to reduce the sales in the last three months of the year by 351 chests. This reduction accounts for a diminution of the receipts by Rx. 43,900. The high prices of 1892-93 were not maintained. The prices in April, May and June showed a distinct falling off: in July the price fell very low in consequence of the apprehensions and uncertainty caused by the passing of the Currency Act a few days before the sale: in subsequent months there was a large recovery; but the average price for the whole year was only R1,109 a chest. This lower price is the cause of the bulk of the falling off in the Bengal receipts.

*Bengal Opium
Revenue in 1893-94.*

136. The price realised at the sale this month was R1,095 a chest, and the tendency has since been downwards. It is therefore not considered safe to assume for 1894-95 a higher average price than R1,070 a chest.

*Bengal Opium
1894-95.*

The quantity of Bengal Opium to be sold in the first nine months of 1893-94 was settled by the notification in June last: the quantity to be sold in the last three months cannot be settled till June next; but for the purpose of the Budget Estimate it is assumed that 42,300 chests will be sold in the whole year, being less by 1,404 than the quantity assumed for 1893-94 in the Budget Estimate of that year.

These reductions in price and quantity account for the considerable diminution on the receipts from Bengal Opium in 1894-95.

137. The exports of Malwa Opium through Bombay have fluctuated considerably from month to month in 1893-94. But the final result of the year promises to be an export of about the same amount as in 1892-93. The Revised Estimate for 1893-94 and the Budget Estimate for 1894-95 have accordingly been placed at approximately the same figure as the actual receipts of 1892-93.

*Bombay Opium
Revenue in 1893-94 and 1894-95.*

Excise Opium in 1893-94 and
1894-95.

138. The receipts from the sale of Excise Opium tend to increase from year to year with the increase in Excise Revenue. The Budget Estimate of 1893-94 was placed lower than it otherwise would have been, because of the intended adoption from 1st June of the very restrictive measures in regard to opium in Burma described in paragraph 71 of the Financial Statement of last March. The arrangements for the change took longer to mature than was expected, and the new rules were brought into force only from 1st January 1894. This postponement and the general increase of the receipts in other Provinces have caused the increase in the Revised Estimate for 1893-94. The restrictive measures will be in force in Burma during the whole of 1894-95, and the reduction in receipts caused thereby more than counterbalances the increases in other Provinces.

Opium Expenditure in 1893-94
and 1894-95.

The expenditure on an average crop of opium was provided for in the Budget Estimate of 1893-94. The crop was again considerably below the average, and the expenditure this year has been less than the Estimate by Rx. 370,800. In 1894-95 provision is as usual made for the payments which an average crop requires.

(a) Chiefly excise on local manufacture. | (b) Chiefly duty on imported salt.

139. The reasons of the falling off in Salt Revenue in 1893-94 have been explained in paragraph 63 above. The reasons are of such a nature that there is no likelihood of their producing a similar effect on the Revenue of next year. The Budget Estimate for 1894-95 has therefore been taken at a figure considerably higher than the probable Revenue of this year, but still less than the Revenue actually secured in 1891-92 and 1892-93.

140. The saving in the Expenditure this year occurs chiefly in Northern India and in Madras: the season was unfavourable for manufacture, and the manufacturing charges are smaller than usual.

141. The Stamp Revenue continues to increase. Burma is the only Province which does not contribute to the increase this year: depression of trade is alleged as the reason, but fluctuations in Stamp Revenue in a particular year can seldom be ascribed with confidence to any particular cause.

142. The Excise Revenue shows this year a fully normal increase. With the exception of Burma all Provinces share in the increase, the North-Western Provinces being now included among the Provinces whose Excise Revenue is increasing. The decrease in Burma, owing to the measures alluded to in paragraph 138 above, has not been so great in 1893-94 as assumed in the Budget Estimate, as the introduction of those measures took place later than intended: the full effect of them will be felt in 1894-95.

Customs Revenue.

144. The Customs Revenue has since 1890-91 shown a tendency to decline. Even with the addition of some receipts in the last three weeks of the year from the new duties imposed from the 10th March by Act VIII of 1894, the Revenue in 1893-94, though higher than in 1892-93, is expected to be slightly less than the Budget Estimate.

For next year without the new duties the estimate would have been about the same as the Budget Estimate for 1893-94. The new duties, as explained in Part I of this Statement, are expected to yield in 1894-95 an additional revenue, after deduction of refunds and drawbacks, of Rx. 1,200,000 in all: Rx. 180,000 under "Petroleum," and Rx. 1,020,000 under "Other Import Duties."

Customs Expenditure in 1894-95.

145. The imposition of the new duties necessitates a considerable increase of establishment: to meet the cost of this a sum of Rx. 60,000 has been added to the Estimate of Expenditure in 1894-95.

Interest Receipts
in India.

149. The reductions in the receipts in India shown in the Revised Estimate for 1893-94 and in the Budget Estimate for 1894-95 are caused by the repayment by the Bombay Port Trust of a loan of Rx. 616,100 on 1st April 1893 and by the Bombay Municipality of a loan of Rx. 420,000.

Interest Receipts in England.

The Secretary of State has not had in 1893-94 any large amounts available from his cash balance for temporary investment at interest, and expects that the same will be the case in 1894-95. Hence the reduction in the Sterling Interest receipts.

Interest Expenditure in India.

150. A loan of Rx. 3,500,000 at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. was raised in August—October 1894 at an average price of Rx. 96-3-2 $\frac{1}{2}$ pies per cent.; and on the other hand, the balance, Rx. 1,341,400, of the $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loan was notified for discharge in October. The discount of Rx. 133,000 on the new loan increases the Interest charges of 1893-94; and about three months' interest on the new loan is payable in the year.

In 1894-95 a whole year's interest is payable amounting to Rx. 122,500; but on the other hand, there is a saving of Rx. 60,363 from the discharge of the $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loan.

The interest transferred to the Public Works Debt on account of the new Capital Expenditure on Railways and Canals amounts to Rx. 205,100 in 1893-94 and Rx. 179,200 in 1894-95.

Sterling Interest charges.

The increases in the Sterling Interest charges in the Revised Estimate for 1893-94 and in the Budget Estimate for 1894-95 are due to the borrowing operations in England described in paragraphs 181, 182 and 186 below in the Ways and Means Section of this Statement.

Savings Banks
Interest charges.

The interest on Savings Banks Balances has been increasing yearly with the growth of the deposits. The reduction in 1894-95 is caused by the reduction of which notice was given on 30th December 1893 in the rate of interest from $3\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. to $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Allowance is also made for the probability that that reduction will cause a diminution in the rate of increase of the Savings Bank Balances.

Other Interest items.

The Interest on Other Obligations, apart from the Savings Bank interest, is a small item which does not vary much, the "other obligations" being in many cases permanent ones.

151. Both the receipts and charges of the Post Office and of the Telegraph Department increase from year to year with the development of the Departments. The net financial result in both Departments tends to improve. Post Office and Telegraphs.

152. The position of the Mints has been entirely changed by the enactment in June last of Act VIII of 1893, by which the free coinage of silver was stopped. For the present the Mints are only required for the coinage of small silver and copper. The seignorage receipts accordingly entirely disappear in 1894-95. The expenditure of the Mints shows a diminution in the Budget Estimate of 1894-95 as a consequence of the cessation of the coinage of rupees, but the permanent establishments have not as yet been reduced. The Mint.

154. The expenditure on Political Pensions tends to decrease with the death of the old pensioners, as the additions made to the list are now small. The death of the Maharajah Duleep Sing causes the larger portion of the reduction in 1894-95.

155. The expenditure on Civil Furlough and Absentee Allowances would be fairly stationary but for the decision to pay those allowances in England at the favourable rate of exchange of 1s. 6d.; this causes an increase to the charges with every fall in the market rate of exchange.

156. The expenditure on Superannuation Allowances is increasing from year to year. The pension list has not yet reached its maximum limit: and the cost of pensions paid in England increases with the fall in exchange, all pensions paid there being now practically fixed in sterling in consequence of the concession of a fixed rate of conversion of 1s. 9d. the rupee for pensions fixed nominally in rupees.

157. The Stationery and Printing charges increase from year to year owing to the yearly increasing amount and complexity of public business.

158. But little expenditure on direct Famine Relief has been necessary this, or is anticipated next, year.

159. As explained in Part I, the financial necessities have compelled the stoppage of expenditure on Railways from the Famine Grant. For the same reason, the expenditure on Protective Irrigation Works has also been restricted to the amounts required to carry on works already begun.

161. The gross traffic receipts from State Railways are now expected to exceed the Budget Estimate in the current year by Rx. 483,800, while the working expenses are increased by Rx. 171,600, the net improvement being Rx. 312,200. State Railways, 1893-94.

The Budget Estimate was prepared for an increase of Rx. 476,700 over the Actuals of 1892-93, while the improvement now expected in the gross traffic receipts of 1893-94 over the Actuals of 1892-93 is Rx. 960,500.

The Railways named below contribute the increases, as compared with the Budget Estimate, noted against them :—

	Increase, Rx.
East Indian	170,000
Rajputana-Malwa	70,000
Eastern Bengal	80,000
North Western	180,000
Southern Mahratta	70,000
Oudh and Rohilkhand	15,000

These good results are due to an increase in coaching traffic, owing partly to the Magh Mela at Allahabad, and to improvement in jute, wheat, seeds, and coal traffic. These increases are to a certain extent absorbed by a fall in the receipts from other Railways of which the undernoted are the most important :—

	Decrease. Rx.
South Indian	40,000
Burma	87,500
Indian Midland	12,500

These decreases are the results of a falling-off in the goods traffic, owing to unfavourable crops and to dull markets.

Guaranteed Railways, 1893-94.

162. The gross receipts of the Madras Railway and the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway show improvements of Rx. 85,000 and Rx. 115,000 respectively, but indications are not wanting of a falling-off upon the first-named Railway. The Great Indian Peninsula showed a considerable falling-off in the earlier months of this year, but has been doing better lately. The net traffic receipts expected from the three Railways are Rx. 153,100 better than the Actuals of 1892-93, and Rx. 162,500 better than Budget Estimate of 1893-94.

State Railways, 1894-95.

163. The gross receipts of State Railways are estimated for 1894-95 at Rx. 164,600 in excess, and the net traffic receipts at Rx. 21,900 in excess of the Revised Estimate for 1893-94. These very moderate additions are fully justified by increased mileage. It is not considered safe to anticipate the larger revenue which several of the lines are bringing this year. The estimates of the East Indian Railway, the Eastern Bengal Railway, and the North-Western Railway are all placed below the receipts expected in 1893-94. The large deterioration in the "net result" shown in the table in paragraph 160 is caused by the addition of interest charges in India and by the increase in the charge for Exchange on interest and annuities paid in England.

Guaranteed Railways, 1894-95.

164. The net traffic receipts of the three Guaranteed Railways are placed at Rx. 48,000 in excess of the Revised Estimate, and Rx. 201,100 in excess of the Actuals of 1892-93. The Madras line is not expected to do better than in the present year, and it has not been thought prudent to calculate upon a repetition in 1894-95 of the most favourable results attained by the Bombay, Baroda and Central India in the current year. On the other hand, an improvement of Rx. 85,000 is expected on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, on which the depression in 1893-94 has been abnormal.

165. The Revised Estimate of receipts is Rx. 18,100 below the Budget Estimate of 1893-94. This small decrease is the result of very considerable variations. A reduction of Rx. 20,000 occurs in the Punjab owing to restriction of irrigation due to abundant rainfall, while the North-Western Provinces contribute an excess of Rx. 25,200 owing to under-estimate of income from flow-irrigation and a general under-estimate of the revenue. Bengal also shows an improvement of Rx. 5,000. The share of land revenue is increased by Rx. 15,400 in the Punjab on the Bari Doab Canal, but it is decreased by Rx. 39,200 in Madras owing to an increase budgeted for not having been realised on account of the late date on which orders were issued in connection with the new settlement in the Tanjore District.

166. The irrigation revenue is expected in 1894-95 to exceed the Revised Estimate of 1893-94 by Rx. 144,200. This improvement falls under—

Major Works	76,500	...	76,500
TOTAL	165,900	—21,700	144,200

The Imperial share of the improvement under direct receipts from Major Works is Rx. 83,000, and is mainly due to an increase of Rx. 80,900 in the Punjab. The estimated increase of Rx. 76,500 under share of land revenue is due chiefly to the introduction of the new settlement in the Tanjore District of the Madras Presidency.

169. The expenditure in India continues to increase. Generally speaking the causes may be said to be—the fall in the rate of Exchange, which affects the amount of pay given to British troops in India, and the percentage of pay granted as Exchange compensation; the increase in the number of volunteers; the greater cost of ammunition and appliances manufactured in India in consequence of the adoption of more elaborate and scientific armaments; the development of local manufactures of all kinds whereby the home charges have been reduced at the expense of the Indian Estimates; the occupation of Gilgit; and the increase in the price of food-supplies in India.

The expenditure in England shows promise of reduction. Exceptionally heavy outlay on Ordnance stores began in 1887-88 in connection with the arming of British troops with magazine rifles, with the supply of the new breech-loading field guns to Batteries in India, and with the completion of the mobilization reserves. These measures have now been practically completed.

This reduction in the Home charges is, however, to some extent counter-balanced by the increase in the effective charges due to the grant of deferred pay to the British Army, and by the increase in non-effective charges, namely, the pension charges for British troops who have served in India, and the pay and pension of non-effective and retired officers of the Indian service.

The increase under Exchange is due to the fall in the rate.

*Revised Estimate,
1893-94.*

171. The difference of Rx. 194,600 between the Revised and Budget Estimates is due to the expenditure in England on armaments and stores having been over-estimated and also to a reduced programme of works in India. The Budget Estimate for 1894-95 is less than the Revised Estimate for 1893-94 by Rx. 189,700, owing to the postponement of several works and to the approaching completion of the supply of stores and armaments for the Aden defence works.

172. The total expenditure on special defence works being estimated at Rx. 5,030,000, if the amounts provided in the Estimates for 1893-94 and 1894-95 are spent, there will remain Rx. 569,827 for Expenditure in 1895-96 and future years.

Section V.—Capital Expenditure on Public Works not charged against Revenue.

173. The Capital Outlay on Railways and Irrigation Works not charged to Revenue has been for many years limited to an annual sum of Rx. 3,500,000. As it was considered desirable to push on the construction of those useful works at a more rapid rate than that limit allowed, it was decided when the Famine Grant was restored that the whole amount available from that grant, after meeting direct Famine Relief Charges and the net charge on account of the Bengal-Nagpur and Indian Midland Railways, should be devoted to the construction of Protective Railways. Accordingly, since 1890-91 the total limit on the annual Capital Expenditure on Railways and Canals has been Rx. 3,500,000, not charged to Revenue, plus the amount available from the Famine Grant, usually about Rx. 1,100,000.

In June 1892 the Secretary of State authorised the Government of India to increase the annual expenditure not charged to Revenue by Rx. 500,000 above the limit of Rx. 3,500,000 in cases where the Government of India are satisfied that the money can without inconvenience be supplied to enable Companies to undertake new lines of railway and extensions.

In 1894-95, as already explained, the financial necessities require the temporary suspension of the Famine Grant. The ordinary programme for Capital Expenditure has therefore had to be restricted to Rx. 3,500,000. The additional Rx. 500,000 provisionally sanctioned by the Secretary of State in June 1892 has also been entered in the Estimates in case it may be required for expenditure by Companies, and this provision brings the total estimate of the expenditure not charged to Revenue up to Rx. 4,000,000.

180. The most important event affecting the Ways and Means of the year was the failure for a time to sell bills on India after the closure of the Indian mints, with effect from 26th June 1893, to the free coinage of silver. It is now estimated that the total drawings of the Secretary of State in 1893-94 will be £9,400,000 against £18,700,000 entered in the Budget Estimate. The deficiency is met (1) by temporary loans to the extent of a net sum of £6,000,000; (2) by the issue of India 3½ per cent. debentures for £1,386,000; (3) by a reduc- 1893-94. Council tion in the cash balances of £1,012,538; and (4) by reduced payments on account of Expenditure not charged to Revenue, of family remittances of officers from India, and of issues to Railway Companies.

1893-94.

Permanent Sterling Debt.

181. It was stated in paragraph 93 of the last Financial Statement that a 3 per cent. sterling loan of £1,300,000 would be raised in 1893-94 for the discharge of Oudh and Rohilkhand and South Indian Railway Debentures and for advances to Railway Companies. This loan was raised at an average price of £98 17s. 3d. per cent.

In addition to the above loan, the Secretary of State issued in September 1893 £1,386,000 India $3\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. debentures repayable after five years in 1898. This issue was required to meet to some extent the demands on the Home Treasury during the period in which the Council Bills were not sold.

1893-94.

Temporary Sterling Loans.

182. It has already been mentioned that the failure of Council Bills for a time necessitated the provision of funds in England by temporary loans in 1893-94. The entries in the Revised Estimate on this account are as follow:—

Temporary Debt incurred—
Loans on security of India Bills		6,000,000
Loans on security of East India Bonds		4,750,000
		<hr/>
TOTAL		10,750,000
Temporary Debt discharged—
Loans on security of East India Bonds		4,750,000
		<hr/>
NET		6,000,000

The India Bills have a currency of six months only and were raised—

- (1) £2,000,000 in November 1893 at an average rate of interest of £2 16s. 7d. per cent. per annum;
- (2) £1,500,000 in December at £2 12s. 3d. per cent.; and
- (3) £2,500,000 in January at £2 7s. 7d. per cent.

The loans on the security of East India Bonds were raised from time to time according to the requirements of the Home Treasury, and have been discharged with funds obtained by the issue of India Bills.

1893-94.

Payments to Railway Companies.

183. The net payments to Railway Companies will be less by £508,400 than taken in the Budget Estimate. Most of the reduction occurs in the issue of funds for Stores and Establishment charges. The estimates of these issues are based on information supplied by the companies, and generally prove too high.

1893-94. Deposits and Advances.

184. The net receipts on account of "Deposits and Advances" are now expected to exceed the Budget Estimate owing to smaller advances having been made on account of Expenditure in England on Defence Works at Aden recoverable from the Imperial Government.

1893-94. Remittances from India

185. The reduction in the net payments on account of remittances is caused by (1) the abolition in August 1893, when Exchange Compensation Allowances were granted, of the system under which Military and some other officers were allowed to make family remittances through the Government Account; (2) the payments for railway stores having been less than the estimate; and (3) considerable repayments by Her Majesty's Treasury and other Public Departments in respect of advances or services in India.

1894-95.

Home Treasury.

186. Provision is made in 1894-95 for a net payment to Railway Companies of their Deposits of £911,400 and for other net disbursements, excluding Loans and Council Bills, of £17,637,100.

It will be seen that the present intention of the Secretary of State is to draw in 1894-95 £17,000,000 by bills on India, and to borrow by temporary loans a net sum of £2,300,000, partly to meet the net disbursements and partly to replenish the Home Treasury balances which have been reduced considerably below the normal amount in the current year. ^{1894-95.} Ways and Means.

The gross amount of the temporary loans is entered at £8,300,000; but provision is made for the repayment of the outstanding balance of those loans raised in 1893-94, namely, £6,000,000.

It should be understood that, in stating the present intentions of the Secretary of State, no sort of pledge is given that he will adhere to the programme.

The headings in italics are connected with, and explained by, the corresponding figures of the Secretary of State's account in England. The others refer to purely Indian transactions.

188. It has been explained in Part I of this Statement that the failure to sell Council Bills for a time has led to a large accumulation of cash balances in India. It is now expected that the balance in the Indian Treasuries on 31st March 1894 will be Rx. 26,251,756 against Rx. 12,643,105 taken in the Budget Estimate. The increase of Rx. 13,608,651 is fully explained by the smaller payments of Council Bills, which with Exchange are entered in the Revised Estimate at Rx. 16,200,800 against Rx. 30,101,800 taken in the Budget Estimate. The other noticeable features in the Ways and Means of this year are (1) an increase of Rx. 500,000* in the $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Public Loan of the year; (2) the ¹⁸⁹³⁻⁹⁴ Main Features.

* The amount entered in the statement in paragraph 187 is Rx. 499,100; the difference of Rx. 900 is due to a tenderer for that amount having failed to take up his allotment.

repayment of the greater part—Rx. 1,100,000—of the outstanding balance of the $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loans; (3) an unanticipated receipt from the Bombay Municipality of Rx. 420,600, the amount of the balance of its loan due to Government; (4) a reduction of Rx. 283,800 under "Unfunded Debt;" this is due to the growth of the Savings Banks balance being less than anticipated—a result of the notice of reduction in the rate of interest from 1st April 1894; and (5) a reduction in the receipts for remittances to England owing to the discontinuance of family remittances through Government of Military and other officers.

New $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.
loan of
Rx. 3,500,000.

189. By Notification No. 2984, published in the Gazette of India Extraordinary of 14th July 1893, tenders were invited for a Public Loan of Rx. 3,500,000 at a rate of interest of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum. The tenders received were opened simultaneously at Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay on the 15th August 1893. The average rate of issue was Rs 96-3-2 $\frac{1}{2}$ pies per cent.

In the Budget Statement of last year the probable amount of the loan in the year was stated as three crores. It was subsequently decided to discharge the outstanding balance of the $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loans, which matured on 15th September 1893, amounting to about 134 lakhs. This necessitated an increase in the amount of the new loan. An improvement in the cash balances, due to the repayment to the Government by the Bombay Municipality of a loan of 42 lakhs and to other causes, rendered it possible to restrict the increase to 50 lakhs. It was considered that the credit of the Indian Government now stands sufficiently high to justify the offer of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. only on the new loan instead of 4 per cent., the rate at which the Government of India has borrowed in India for many years. The quoted market price of the $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. paper is now above par.

Discharge of $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loans.

190. Simultaneously with the issue of the Notification inviting tenders for the new $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loan of 1893-94 the balance of the $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loans of 1878 and 1879 (except the 7 shillings per cent. portion) was notified for discharge on 14th October 1893 by Notification No. 2985, dated 14th July 1893. An option was given to pay in $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Notes the amounts due on tenders for the new loan. It is now expected that the total payments in discharge of the $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loans will be Rx. 1,100,000 in the current year and Rx. 150,000 in 1894-95, and the estimates have been prepared accordingly.

Main Features.

191. The Budget Estimate of 1894-95 provides for the payment of Council Bills for £17,000,000. Though the sterling amount is less than the Budget Estimate of 1893-94 by £1,700,000, equivalent at 1s. 2d. the rupee to Rx. 2,914,300, the decrease in the rupee payments will be only Rx. 958,900.

Owing to the large accumulation of cash balances, it will not be necessary to raise any loan in India in 1894-95, but, on the other hand, provision has been made to meet in full the demands of Local Governments and Administrations for advances to Municipalities and Local Bodies and also to meet an expenditure of Rx. 500,000 on Railway Construction in excess of the ordinary limit of Rx. 3,500,000 fixed for such expenditure from loans and balances.

Public loan.

192. Though it has above been stated that it is not the present intention of the Government of India to raise any loan in 1894-95, yet full liberty is reserved, as usual, to alter the programme now announced to any extent that may be considered desirable.

193. The following are the details of the transactions of Savings Banks Savings Banks. during the last few years:—
